Hussein Orders Guerrilla Sweep

Royalists Corner Insurgent Forces

Times News Services

AMMAN — King Hussein charged today that Palestinian Arab guerrilla leaders are plotting to set up a breakaway Palestinian state in Jordan and vowed to launch a "final crackdown" against them.

The guerrillas immediately reported that all their bases were surrounded by two army divisions and were being "constantly shelled." Government forces seem to have been given a free hand for an all-out assault.

Hussein, in his most unrestrained attack on guerrilla leaders in eight months, accused them of "plotting to grab power at any cost" and of "selling out to the enemy."

He ordered Premier Wasfi Tell to take "bold, decisive and tough action against the handful of professional criminals and conspirators who use the commando movement to disguise their treasonable plots."

"I want no hesitation, tolerance or compromise in handling them," said the king in a letter to Tell, broadcast by Amman radio.

Tell, whom the guerrillas consider their most implacable foe, promised a "quick and sweeping purge" of the guerrilla movement.

Hussein's action apparently heralded stronger army action against 3,000 guerrillas stationed in hilly terrain near the town of Jerash, 25 miles north of Amman. They represent the only sizable guerrilla presence left in Jordan after last September's civil war and April's guerrilla pullout from Amman.

Meanwhile the Jordanian troubles spilled over into Egypt where President Anwar Sadat postponed accepting the credentials of the new Jordanian ambassador because of the fighting between the Jordanian army and guerrillas.

'Limited Strike' Begins

VANCOUVER (CP)—About 130 electrical workers did not report for work today at British Columbia Hydro's Vancouver - area head quarters in surburban Burnaby in what an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had said would be a limited strike.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said he understood the men, who were to have reported for work at 8 a.m., were attending a meeting. They were expected to report to their jobs following the meeting.

Line crews covering the Greater Vancouver area, Burnaby and Richmond operate from the Burnaby headquarters.

Doug Cronk, secretary of the union's Vancouver local, said Tuesday electrical workers would strike to back contract demands, but their action would not affect the entire Hydro system.

The 2,200 electrical workers employed by the Crown corporation can legally strike at any time. Contract talks, in progress since December when the union was asking a 29½-per-cent pay increase over two years, broke off Friday night.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has said a strike by all 2,200 workers would probably shut down the Hydro system in a matter of hours.

He said in the event of rotating strikes, Hydro would try to man the affected areas with supervisory personnel where this could be done safely. A spokesman said there was no need to call on supervisory personnel in today's work stoppage.

Negotiators have said the union has reduced its original demand for an increase of 29½ per cent. Basic pay for electrical workers now is $5.39 an hour.

The latest Hydro offer was seven per cent a year in a contract of any length. Dr. Shrum said he could not offer electrical workers any more than the 21% per cent over three years that Hydro office workers received last month.

FINANCIAL DOOM SEEN FOR CITIES

Financial disaster is overtaking B.C. cities, predicts a report commissioned by the Union of B.C. Municipalities to set the stage for its annual harangue with the government over fiscal policies. See background story by Clement Chapple on Page 3.

On Page 2 NDP leader Dave Barrett says that the report's forecast of doom documents what his party has known for years, and on Page 11 there is local reaction to the indictment.

Campbell Flays Report On Municipal Costs

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today lashed back at criticism of his handling of provincial funds to municipalities.

Mr. Campbell departed from introductory remarks to a municipal officers conference to shout: "I will not stand still when irresponsible statements are made about the financial state of the municipalities of this province."

His voice rising in anger, Mr. Campbell said:

"It does little service to this province to suggest as the Union of B.C. Municipalities does, that the municipalities of this province are financially sick."

The municipalities, in a 103-page report released Tuesday, said communities face "disastrous developments" unless the provincial government assumes total welfare costs and a greater share of education costs.

Mr. Campbell denounced the UBCM report as "irresponsible, juvenile and completely false."

In Vancouver, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer had called for Mr. Campbell's resignation because of a pledge the minister made in the legislature that if anyone could prove that B.C. treated its municipalities poorly, he would resign.

Mr. Campbell replied today by repeating that pledge.

"The finance formula in the province is not sacred, but it's the best in the nation. If that is not a fact, I will resign."

Later in his speech, he added: "Fear not that I will resign, for the financial affairs of the province are in good hands."

Mr. Campbell and deputy municipal affairs minister Jim Baird were to attend the municipal officers conference until Friday.

18 Prisoners Charged In Kingston Rioting

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Eighteen prisoners have been charged as a result of the four-day rebellion at Kingston penitentiary last April that left two convicts dead and the institution wrecked. Ten other prisoners were injured.

Thirteen have been charged with non-capital murder in the two deaths, city police announced Tuesday night. One of the 13 and five others are charged with kidnapping six guards at the start of the April 14 uprising.

Inspector Wilfrid Kealey said in an interview that the charges were laid Monday. No reason was given for the delayed announcement.

Those charged will appear in provincial court here Friday.

Appearing Thursday in court at Napanee, Ont., will be 11 guards from Millhaven penitentiary where about 300 of the Kingston prisoners were moved after their rampage caused damage to the old building, estimated at between $300,000 and $1 million.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

The guards face charges of assaulting prisoners involved in the unrest.

When the prisoners ended their protest and released the guards, officials found the body of Brian Ensor, 26, of Hamilton, in the rubble.

Bertrand H. Robert of Chatham, Ont., died later of massive head injuries suffered during the final hours of the disturbance.

Insp. Kealey said Tuesday that more than 500 prisoners involved in the riot were interviewed.

In a Toronto interview, Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said the investigations resulting in Monday's charges had been conducted mainly by Kingston police with some assistance from provincial police.

Last Thursday, Mr. Lawrence said that the 22 counts of assault laid against the Millhaven guards involved

GUARD PUNCHED

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police here are investigating a disturbance Monday night at nearby Collins Bay penitentiary by prisoners involved in the April Kingston riot.

A police spokesman said five prisoners held in isolation cells since their transfer from Kingston penitentiary after the 92-hour riot allegedly assaulted two guards.

A spokesman for Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer in Ottawa, said today the five wrecked fixtures in their cells and one guard was punched in the face when he attempted to quiet them.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILDREN SWALLOW LSD

EDMONTON (CP) — Two four-year-old children were recovering today from the effects of the hallucinogenic drug LSD, taken from a vial they found while playing today.

Gordon Robert Letvinchuk and Donni Robertson found the vial in front of their home.

Police said that Gordon has swallowed about three tablets and Donni one. Donni's stomach was pumped at hospital and she was later released. Gordon was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

War Crime Charges Face U.S. General

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Army announced today that charges have been preferred against Brig.-Gen. John W. Donaldson, accusing him of murder and assault involving eight Vietnamese civilians.

Donaldson, until recently a top planner for the joint chiefs of staff, is the highest ranking officer to be accused of killing civilians in the Vietnam war.

The 47-year-old West Point graduate also is the first general to be charged with an alleged war crime since the Philippine insurrection 70 years ago.

A U.S. Army spokesman said Donaldson is accused of killing six civilians and assaulting two.

The army also announced murder charges have been preferred against Lt.-Col. William J. McCloskey, who served under Donaldson in Vietnam. No details in McCloskey's case were disclosed. An army spokesman said the two cases involved separate incidents.

The army said charges against McCloskey, 39, involve "two alleged victims." It said the incident occurred in March, 1969.

McCloskey served at the time as the 11th Brigade's operations officer. As a much-decorated veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, he was wounded nine times.

McCloskey now is assigned to the combat developments command, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The incidents on which the charges against Donaldson are based took place, the army said, between November, 1968, and January, 1969, in Quang Ngai province, where the My Lai Massacre occurred the previous March.

COMMANDED BRIGADE

Donaldson, then a colonel, commanded the 11th Infantry Brigade, which included Lieut. William Calley's platoon at the time of the My Lai massacre. However, Donaldson did not take over the brigade until October, 1968, more than six months after My Lai. Calley has been sentenced to a life term for murdering civilians at My Lai.

No details of the Donaldson case were provided, but sources said an investigation was started after statements were made by a helicopter pilot attached to the 11th Brigade during the period.

Lt.-Gen. Claire Hutchin, commanding general of the 1st Army with headquarters at Fort Meade, has not yet announced what course he will follow. Army officials said Hutchin could dismiss the charges or order a grand jury-type proceeding to carry the case further.

Army records show the last general accused of war crimes was Brig.-Gen. Jacob H. Smith, a brigade commander in the Philippines in 1901.

'FIRE CAUSED BY CIGARETTE'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Norwegian team investigating a disastrous May 2 fire on the cruise ship Meteor, said Tuesday it had found no evidence of any criminal acts surrounding the fire which killed 32 crew members.

And the second engineer told a coroner's jury here that a smouldering cigarette may have been the cause of the fire.

John Clark said the cigarette must have fallen off a table and set fire to a piece of paper or clothing.

"The woodwork aboard the Meteor is varnished and if heated up it will form gases that will lie along the ceiling. If a flame hits it (the gas), it will ignite, not only there, but anywhere there is gas."

"This would account for the incredible speed with which the fire spread to the crew's quarters on the ship's lower decks, he said.

THE FIELDS AND HILLS OF CHINA

A Land of Lichee and Lotus

Articles describing the China visit of former Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning will be published as they are received. This is his second account.

By CHESTER RONNING
Special to The Times

DELTA-TUNG KUAN HSIEN, China — My daughter Sylvia Cassady of Camrose, Alberta, and I arrived in Tung Kuan Hsien last night from Canton to see its casava processing factory and one of the ingenious ways of harnessing tide water for hydro electric plants for power and light for one of the many villages of the Tao Chiao commune.

Yesterday afternoon, accompanied by three friends from CTV, we left Canton by car to pass through one of the most productive rice-producing areas of Asia.

In the city and the outskirts we saw hundreds of Phoenix trees in full dress of flaming red-orange blossoms.

People who say Canton is just another dull, drab city do not see the wooded hills, the attractive public parks and many glazed-tile buildings with great banyan trees, rock gardens and flowers of every color.

When one gets out into the open countryside it becomes abundantly evident that it is from these rice paddies, extending to the horizon or to the distant wooded ranges of hills and low mountains, that millions of people in Canton and Hong Kong are supplied with rice, vegetables and fruit.

Driving along the highway in a Russian version of the Cadillac we could see fields of dark green peppers, cucumbers climbing on tripods of bamboo, egg plants and cabbages. The road is lined with shade trees to shield wayfarers from the blazing sun. There are also rows of "horse tail" pines, of bananas producing delicious sweet fruit in great abundance. Orchard after orchard of lichee trees are now heavily laden with this year's first ripe crop of exotic lichees. Most impressive of all is the luxuriant, heavy crops of rice covering thousands upon thousands of acres of rich, delta soil.

DBS SAYS 21,688,243 IS OUR POPULATION

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's population was estimated to number 21,688,243 at noon Tuesday while an actual head-count was under way in the once-a-decade national census.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported the estimate on the basis of calculations reflecting first-quarter trends in births, deaths and migration.

Shadow Mischief

Barrett, McGeer Flay Campbell Over Report

New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett said Tuesday that a report predicting "financial disaster" for municipalities in B.C. documents what his party has known for years.

And Liberal leader Pat McGeer said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell should resign.

Campbell said: "No matter what the report says, no provincial jurisdiction looks after municipalities better than this one."

The report, prepared for the Union of British Columbia Municipalities by a Montreal research firm, said the government should take over 100 per cent of welfare costs and increase its contribution toward education costs.

The report also criticizes the homeowners' grant system and says if the trend toward more municipal revenues being used for welfare and education costs continues, municipalities will be unable to maintain quality essential services such as sewers, parks and roads.

Barrett said the report shows that the "municipalities have got a rough ride ment, from a minister who from the provincial governhas never been much help to them.

"About all he can do is cast aspersions on certain municipalities and then refuse to identify them. He talks about them pulling up their socks and getting on with the job, but he does nothing to help."

Campbell said Tuesday the province is not likely to assume a greater share of education and welfare costs. Speaking in Prince George to northern B.C. regional district officials, Campbell urged municipalities to improve their planning methods.

He also said regional districts must not try to duplicate the services provided by the provincial government.

McGeer called for Campbell's resignation because he said Campbell had promised to quit his portfolio if anyone could prove the government treated municipalities poorly.

"I think these kinds of damning reports come out because of the utter failure in performance of this minister and this government," McGeer said.

Barrett said he found it "incredible" that the government had backed out of the last phase of the study.

But Campbell said he had withdrawn provincial co-operation after completion of the first, information - gathering, phase of the study because the UBCM was not in full agreement with that part of the report.

Barrett said school taxes should not come from property revenues and should be a provincial responsibility in the same way that welfare costs are.

GOOD OLD DAYS

McGeer said the province should return to the practice of governments before Premier Bennett's time, when Victoria guaranteed municipal bonds and purchased them "from their captive funds" such as pension funds.

"Ever since the provincial government has taken on the B.C. Hydro financing the municipalities have been shoved out in the cold," he said.

Conservative leader John de Wolf, whose party has no members in the the B.C. legislature, said he would not like to condemn Campbell because he hopes the minister will be open-minded about the report.

"What Dan Campbell is up to is, very simply, that he is dumping welfare costs on municipalities because he wants to make the regional government system a county government system," de Wolf said.

"He is playing down and indeed holding down the municipalities financially while building up the regional district."

Here there are three crops of rice every year. The farmers are proud of having doubled and tripled the yield before liberation. They informed me that they had themselves by selection developed new strains of rice adapted to local conditions. Each new variety had been named to identify the area where it had been developed, for example: Chi-nan, Kiang-nan, Nan Teh, Chen-chu — all short-straw rice. The old long-straw rice had disappeared as it clogged in heavy rain. The only long-straw rice today is the glutinous variety.

Everywhere in the new network of canals, water reservoirs and connecting tributaries of the Pearl River were flocks of ducks and ducklings, geese and goslings by the thousands. Today, poultry graces the tables of all rural workers.

●

Lotus is cultivated for arrowroot and there are fields of yo-tou (a Chinese-type potato), beans of several varities, corn, peanuts and sorgum. The soil is fertilized by animal dung, night soil and chemical fertilizers. There were sugar cane fields and sugar factories.

The hills and low mountain ranges which were nude in former days have been reforested. From valuable camphor trees wood for carved chests are produced as well as fast-gowing cedar type trees for fuel.

The countryside is dotted with kilns to produce bricks and tiles for new houses.

The delta of the Pearl is a veritable agricultural paradise and today the farmers, workers and their families live in clean, neat houses of brick. Seldom does one see a straw roof over mud walls.

We passed the famous Huang-pu military academy where Dr. Sun Yat-sen had installed Chiang Kai-shek to train troops for the northern expedition of 1926-27. Now, Huang-pu is chiefly a port for ocean-going ships coming up the Pearl River, from a distance the ships seem to be sailing over the rice fields.

As we drove along there were endless stretches of rice fields, vegetable gardens, Nan-kua pumpkins, vegetable marrow and the popular "hollow stream greens." In more sandier soil of the low hills, cassava for glucose and alcohol have been planted and on formerly uncultivated land, sorgum is now grown.

●

Cassava roots are rich in glucose and the leaves above ground provide food for silk worms. We saw a glucose factory whoch does not leave any waste. In processing cassava roots, after the glucose is extracted, the bark of the root is converted into alcohol and the remaining waste makes excellent pig food.

Before we arrived at our destination for the night, the rural workers began to set out great numbers of traps to drown the insect pests which destroy the rice crop during the flowering season.

Lanterns, lamps using kerosene and even neon lights are used to attract the insects which fall and drown in the bowls of water placed under the lights. In the evening all the families in the community sally forth with every available bowl, kettle, basin, crock and bucket. They are spaced in regular patterns to cover all of the rice paddy.

●

Lights as far as the eye can see gleam beautifully in the gloaming after the sun. At night flashlights are used to catch croaking frogs known as paddy chickens for food. These farmers leave no stone unturned to increase production of food for their own use, and for the millions who live in cities. Food is also exported to other Asian countries in exchange for products such as rubber from Ceylon.

The people of Tung Kuan Hsien welcomed us heartily. We enjoyed an excellent evening meal of rice, chicken, vegetables, fresh mushrooms, fish and soup. For dessert we had lichees which had been picked that afternoon.

Lichee trees continue to bear fruit for several months and are reported to improve in flavor as the season progresses.

Lichee trees are so productive that the people cannot consume more than a portion of the annual crop. The balance is used to fertilize gardens and fields.

In the morning we set off in a motor-boat to visit a village hydro-electric power plant in the Tao Chiao commune. There are one hundred and four such plants in the whole commune which utilize the tidal waters from the ocean.

Number one station uses only the incoming water which has been led into a large dam. From the dam, water is admitted into a turbine which turns a grinder to polish rice or to make flour, and a layer mill which crushes leaves and stems of plants to mix with water for hog food, the turbine also runs a generator which provides light for the families of the village.

The completion of this plant after a series of trials and errors enabled the workers of the commune, in co-operation with young men and women trained in elementary engineering, to build 103 additional plants which utilise both the in and out flow of the tides to provide power for small machines and light for all the people of the commune.

I saw a small replica of these power plants demonstrated at the Canton Trade Fair by an enthusiastic young woman from the Tao Chiao commune, who had participated in the construction of some of the plants. She bubbled over with enthusiasm and pride while explaining the details of the workings of these ingeniously simple devices which have, at least in one not unimportant respect, modernized society in all the villages of the commune. I then requested a visit to see an actual plant.

Unless you have been in the dark, dismal, smelly villages of China's past, you will not realize how tremendously village life has been changed by electric lights and power to replace the drudgery of eternal grinding by hand.

Today my eyes have seen agricultural miracles wrought in China's rural society. Farmers, workers, technicians and research workers have co-operated to achieve a transformation affecting the great masses of China's rural population. These people are enthusiastic about the changes which have raised the standard of living as a result of their acceptance of Chairman Mao's stress on the importance of the scientific approach to solve their problems and self-reliance to carry out their plans.

●

The farmers of China are no longer peasants. They are the first to admit that they are only beginning the great effort required to achieve their ultimate goal. They have already transformed the appearance of the whole country side and have increased by two to five times the agricultural production in the few years since 1966.

China's green revolution has taken off. Nothing can stop it if the world escapes nuclear destruction.

With only the merest beginning of the mechanization, the farmers of China have by hand, hoe, plough and draft animal solved the most basic of asia's problems — the production of food sufficient for all its peoples. Despite the increase in population, basic food necessities are now available to all.

Ancient Chinese civilization based solely on agriculture has a history of more than ten millenniums, more than four of which have been recorded. The most rich, fertile river valleys of the Huang, the Yangtse and the Pearl provided the bases of that ancient civilization, which today is being revolutionised and modernised.

VERDICT RENDERED —YET JURY HUNG

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A seven-woman, five-man jury returned a guilty verdict in a municipal court case and spent the next hour imprisoned in a courthouse elevator.

The jury had been released by the judge shortly after the end of the trial and walked to the elevator to go home. It became stuck between the first and second floors.

The perspiring 12 were rescued by firemen who dropped a ladder through a hatch in the elevator's ceiling.

"I've heard of hung juries before, but this is ridiculous," said one of the women.

FREE CONTRACEPTIVES FOR WASHINGTON MINORS

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Washington city council acted Tuesday to provide free contraceptives to all minors who ask for them, after hearing that four out of 10 births in Washington last year were illegitimate and that more than half of the mothers bearing those children were under 20.

Preliminary approval was given to a regulation that would require city health officials to give birth control information and devices (types were not specified), regardless of the age or marital status of the person seeking it, and with or without parental consent.

In April, 1968, the city corporation council set a policy of barring contraceptive help to women under 21. In July, 1970, minimum age limit was dropped to 18. However, where minors have a history of venereal disease or already have children, some city clinics have been known to prescribe contraceptives.

The council, in acting Tuesday, cited city health department figures showing that 40 per cent of the 14,745 births in the District of Columbia last year were illegitimate. Women between 17 and 19 bore 1,761 of them, and girls under 16 produced 958 such children.

Health department figures show that in 1969 the percentage of births out of wedlock was 37; in 1960, 19.8, and in 1950, 11.4.

According to the census bureau 9 per cent of all births in the United States in 1967 were out of wedlock, compared to 3.5 per cent in 1940. About 150,000 such children born in 1967 had mothers under 20, compared to 43,000 in 1940 and about 90,000 in 1960.

Disaster Overtaking B.C. Cities—Report

But Doom Forecast Stays Unanswered

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
(Analysis)

Premier Bennett's homeowner grant, surely a sacred cow among B.C. residential taxpayers, deserves to be put in its place as a discriminatory gimmick that does little to meet the relentless financial crisis facing the province's local governments.

This is one of the more interesting, if not the most emphasized, of the conclusions in a study released Tuesday but the Union of B.C. Municipalities that warns, in somewhat hyperbolic prose, of the "disastrous developments" overtaking our cities and towns under the present fiscal framework they are bound to.

Though written by a Montreal consulting firm named T. J. Plunkett Associates Ltd., the report has all the familiarity of a standard UBCM brief deploring the frightening rise in education and welfare costs and how these are squeezing municipal governments of a respectable function.

SET FOR BATTLE

It won't provide bed-time adventure, but it may be a start to a methodical outflanking of the little verbal battles that the provincial government always seems to win.

Each year the UBCM stages a huge convention and tries to drag as many provincial cabinet ministers on the carpet as possble and impress them with the seriousness of their complaints about the financial deal they are stuck with under the government's fiscal arrangements.

And each year they are told to put their own houses in order and little else. In other words, all the political force behind all the province's municipal politicians isn't enough to change the premier's mind.

The Plunkett report's best contribution, therefore, might be in looking rationally at what have seemed to be the more attractive aspects of the provincial government's policies.

The homeowner's grant, and how it rises miraculously each year, must be an annually appreciated phenomenon by every homeowner to who property taxes are a bind.

But the Plunkett report appeals plaintively: "... these grants must be examined in some kind of perspective."

Whereas the premier's budgets and spending estimates always make the grant seem like an enormous amount of generally applied relief to the sweating municipalities, Plunkett rejects this concept.

"... these do not conform to the generally accepted criteria of what constitutes an inter-governmental transfer.

VS.

The Plunkett Report

"... the homeowner grant does not really offset the decline in the amount of the levy ... which municipalities can retain for municipal purposes."

This is because the homeowner grant is applied only after each city's and town's spending has been determined, and provides no dynamic feature of a municipal budget anywhere.

Plunkett comes right out with it and calls the homeowner grant "discriminatory" because the people it does help, make up a declining proportion of the property taxpayers who must foot an increasing proportion of the municipal budgets.

DISCRIMINATION

The most obvious discrimination is against the home renter, who is, according to the report, increasing in numbers.

This last conclusion about renters is not taken from full data about all B.C.'s municipal areas, but Plunkett says it's true of the most populous parts of the province — the capital region and Greater Vancouver.

This phenomenon results in a further disparity in relief afforded by the grant because of variations in owner-occupied and tenant-occupied homes as a percentage of the total homes in any two communities.

A good example occurs locally. In Victoria, only 47.52 per cent of all dwellings are owner-occupied and eligible for the homeowner grant, while in Saanich the figure is 84.95 per cent.

The total grant isn't exactly a drop in the bucket — 1966 figures used by Plunkett show the amount paid to Saanich, when the grant was $110 (now it's $170), was $1,600,834.

But the point being made is that the usefulness of the grant must be seriously questioned in the context of the full municipal fiscal picture.

By the same figures for 1966, Victoria received $52.57 per dwelling unit of all kinds, compared to the figure for Saanich of $94.28. Moreover, Victoria's amount per dwelling unit was the lowest in the Capital Region.

To really prove this point, Plunkett would have to show that the net tax burden — indirect as well as direct — on Victoria residents — renters as well as owners — is greater than Saanich's and not equalized by a difference in the amount of services needed, and received, by a community of renters as opposed to one of owners.

Plunkett doesn't do this, though a final verdict might be impossible to gain through his almost strict adherence to statistical analysis.

He seems to prove conclusively, however, that the homeowner grant is not in any way a substantial relief to municipal governments, but merely a "grant to a qualifying group of individuals. ..."

FINAL INSULT

The final insult to the homeower grant delivered by Plunkett is to recommend that it not be increased in future years. He admits that it is so well established that its "discontinuance would be difficult if not impossible" but the implication is that it is all wrong in principle and the injury it does to the municipalities should not be enflamed.

After establishing that the grant doesn't even offset the poor revenue situation of the local governments, there seems little if anything to commend it.

Larger parts of the Plunkett report record in statistical fashion what everyone knows has been going on for the last decade and longer: an increasing amount of the municipally-raised tax dollar is being funnelled into education and welfafe, two areas over which policy-setting local governments have "no real control."

The report follows the solid public line the UBCM has been taking in its perennial demand that the province relieve local governments of the cost of welfare and release residential taxpayers of the great burden of education.

BEEN BURDEN

It also shows, painstakingly, how municipal governments have been bearing a larger and larger burden of services, on a decreasing proportion of income over the past decade (up to 1966) while the province has been getting off more lightly.

These conclusions must have been anticipated long ago by the provincial government when it backed out of promised participation in this study after the basic statistics had been gathered.

Now that they are out before the public in responsible and convincing form, the UBCM will hope to have begun to counter the effective propaganda of the government in schemes like the homeowner grant and the education finance formula which has the appeal of appearing to stop "blank cheque" spending by school boards.

NO DOOR-STORMING

Where the report falls down is in leaving its tantalyzing predictions of municipal doom hanging unanswered:

"The continued reduction of the financial capacity of municipal governments to deal effectively with these activities will have unfortunate consequences for community living."

It doesn't describe what these consequences are, or even refer to the fate of other, more developed, communities which already suffer these consequences.

And it's not likely that another "study" by a "consultant" whose conclusion is pretty well predetermined is going to cause residential taxpayers to storm the door of the premier's office.

But the Plunkett report is one of the most solid and convincing arguments for the case of the municipal financial crisis that has appeared in B.C.

SPRING BREAK-UP DIORAMA of the Peace River was inspected Tuesday by Hudson's Bay Co. officials at the provincial museum. The Bay, sponsors of the fur trade gallery now under construction, presented a $2,000 cheque towards the project, the first of five similar donations to be made in the next five years. The diorama is believed to be the largest in Canada and is being painted by museum artist Frank Beebe. Left to right, are Beebe, Douglas Turnbull, president of the Friends of the Museum Association, G. J. Kosich, manager of The Bay, and Dr. Bristol Foster, museum director.

Yard Probes Pop Music Industry

LONDON (AP) — Police have moved in to investigate Britain's pop music industry, Scotland Yard said today.

Detectives are checking 300 record shops throughout the country to examine claims that pop record charts are being rigged to make the work of some singers and musicians look more popular than it actually is. No singers, bands, record companies or agents have been named in preliminary reports of the investigation.

Reports claim that several shop owners were being offered bribes to falsify the sales information to push certain recordings into the top 20 list—and thus greatly increase genuine sales of these records.

Top of the British record charts last week was 'Knock Three Times by Dawn, with the Rolling Stones' Brown Sugar second.

Rail Toll Climbs

RADEVORMWALD (AP) — The death toll rose to 46 in West Germany's worst post-war rail disaster which wiped out more than half the members of a senior high school class returning from a study tour.

The New Assessment

THE DECISION OF THE PROvincial director of pollution control, Mr. William Venables, to reject an application for discharge of mining waste into the sea near Jordan River was a commendable one and it should stand as a precedent for future decisions on both big and little pollution issues.

It is not necessary to criticize the Dison mining interest for its proposal to dump up to a million gallons of mining sludge a day into the shore waters of Juan de Fuca Strait. The mining company was only following the traditional pattern of waste disposal — acceptable to mankind everywhere for uncounted years. Perhaps a harmless alternative method may be found. What is noteworthy is that the new approach to the use of our planet is becoming an expected and required one — a concept which does not permit the destruction of one priceless natural asset merely to facilitate the exploitation of another.

That concept has not yet become dominant. There are many new industrial projects under way today which depend for their economic survival on at least partial destruction of their environment—the strip mining venture now in progress with governmental blessing at the north end of Vancouver Island, to name but one. It would be unrealistic to suggest that all extractive industries come to a stop in order to preserve the natural ecological balance, but it is only common sense to insist that such activities should not cost more than they produce, or cause irreparable loss to the common property of mankind. Mr. Trudeau recently used the term "net human benefit" to describe a system of national accounting which would take into consideration the social intangibles and the environmental costs when determining the real gain from human endeavor.

Ruining the ecology of the waters off Jordan River would be a heavy cost to pay. The life on the sea-bottom, the salmon fisheries, the nature of the coastal water itself, would inevitably be affected by the discharge of large amounts of slurry. That is a cost the public does not wish to pay; it has now been demonstrated as one which the pollution control board also does not countenance.

It is interesting, and heartening, that the many conservation supporters, residents and other interested persons who objected were apparently joined on this occasion by the provincial department of recreation and conservation, and the department of health services — although the recommendations of these departments have not been made public. Government ministers and their staffs should play a leading part in safeguarding natural assets, particularly in this part of the world where the unspoiled natural environment is one of our chief forms of wealth. With the Jordan River decision we have taken an important step ahead.

Starving the Municipalities

BRITISH COLUMBIA MUNICIpalities, with a $70,000 report by T. J. Plunkett Associates of Montreal supporting their stand, have told the provincial government that it is pushing them out of business. Unless the municipalities receive substantial relief — they suggest assumption by the government of total welfare costs and a larger proportion of education costs — they will have insufficient funds to meet the needs of their urban communities.

This is far from a new argument. Its repetition, however, is justified as increasing loads are thrust on municipal taxpayers — a fact which the recent tax notices emphasized.

The municipalities' case is clear. They have to provide services for their residents. The cost, complexity and the number of these services steadily increase. The basis on which they can raise the necessary money is mainly real estate. As the assessment and mill rate go up the impact on families with small or fixed incomes causes anxiety and often hardship. Without sufficient money, the municipalities cannot do the job for which councils are elected.

Over a long period, the municipalities have pressed this case on the government. They have sought frank discussions aimed at finding solutions for the financial problems. Briefly the provincial government appeared to accede to their wishes. In 1968 it agreed to co-operate in supplying information required to find possible remedies. But when the information-gathering phase of the project had been completed, the provincial government withdrew. It was not prepared to face the issue with the municipalities.

The information gathered during the earlier part of the project has now grown old. The figures probably are out of date, but the trend they showed is not. The municipalities are being pushed closer to the breaking point because more is being demanded of them. If further proof of the necessity for relief were needed, the report supplies it. The government should meet the municipalities' words with action.

Preserving Angkor Wat

IN THE PREVAILING VANDALism of war, occasions arise in which combatants, by agreement or by some sense of responsibility, avoid the destruction of cherished architecture. The retreating Germans, falling back through Florence in the Italian campaign, blew up most of the city's bridges but spared the Ponte Vecchio. Similarly, other structures and edifices have been saved.

Now comes the contention that Cambodian Communist, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops are inflicting irreparable harm on Angkor Wat, which they have occupied since the South Vietnamese with American support invaded Cambodia. Were the stories of destruction valid, the world, not just Cambodia, would be losing a treasure.

But the stories of vandalism come up short against a report on the activities of Bernard Grosliер, director of the Ecole Francaise d'Extreme Oriente, which has for years assumed the function of maintaining and conserving the monumental treasures of Angkor Wat. Every two weeks Mr. Grosliер is picked up at his home and taken to Angkor Wat. There he carries out his regular inspection, gives instructions to workmen and returns, with escort, home.

This is scarcely a procedure that could be followed if vandalism were taking place. It is good news that the Cambodian treasure is being preserved — and a comment of some significance on the behavior of those forces that are trying to make the world think otherwise.

FROM NEW YORK — By ROBERT KLEIMAN

Conditions Easing for SALT Accord

PRESIDENT NIXON'S effort starting in January to break the impasse in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks which he had neglected for two years, has led to a more hopeful phase in Soviet-American relations.

The five months of summit exchanges ended with agreement to concentrate this year on completing a treaty limiting defensive anti-ballistic missile (ABM) systems. This was the original pre-SALT American proposal in 1967, which the Soviet Union finally put forward itself last December.

But the Nixon Administration, meanwhile, had gyrated into the 1968 Soviet position, insisting on simultaneous restraints on offensive nuclear weapons, especially the big Soviet SS-9 ICBMs. While Moscow refused to make this commitment in advance, face was saved all around by agreeing to negotiate concurrent restrictions on some offensive weapons in this year's interim accord — which will probably end up with a numerical ceiling on land-based ICBMs as a whole.

Rocky Moments

There were some rocky moments before this compromise. Nixon's first message reached Premier Kosygin shortly before a visit from the leading Democratic candidate, Sen. Edmund Muskie. This circumstance may have had something to do with Communist party chief Brezhnev's skeptical comment later that Nixon followed a zig-zag course abroad influenced by domestic politics.

Another complication was the discovery by U.S. reconnaissance satellites in February that the Soviet Union was digging big new holes for ICBM silos different from those for the giant SS-9.

By April, 40 holes had been discovered, presumably for a new missile or an improved SS-9 to carry MIRV multiple warheads that could threaten the U.S. Minuteman force. By early May, when Nixon had to make his decision on the new SALT work plan, there appeared to be more than 60 big holes. Two were at a test site where, the Pentagon predicted, the new mystery missile would soon be given its first trials.

No New Missiles

But a few days after Nixon decided to go ahead with the SALT plan, risking the discontent of his Congressional-military-industrial constituency, new intelligence arrived. A third or more of the strange new holes turned out to be for small ICBMs of the SS-11 dimension. There was a growing consensus that the big holes themselves were for reinforced SS-9 silos, a stabilizing factor, and that what was to be tested soon was the new silo not a new missile.

Nixon's decision to give priority to an ABM agreement was encouraged by Soviet concessions at the fourth round of the SALT talks, which had resumed in Vienna March 15. The Soviet negotiators had indicated a willingness for the first time, to consider restricting ABM radars in the Moscow area as well as to limit antimissiles to 100. They also appeared to acquiesce in a new American proposal to continue with Safeguard ABM defence of one or two Minuteman sites in Montana and North Dakota, instead of scrapping those sites to defend Washington.

Meanwhile, Soviet and American experts in Vienna had reached agreement to improve the Moscow-Washington teletype "hot line" by using two communications satellites, one American and one Russian.

There was joint planning on how to avoid the triggering of World War III by an accidental missile launch by the U.S., the U.S.S.R. or a third country — such as China. Data on American electronic locks and fail-safe systems are being passed on to the Russians to enable them to improve their less advanced command and control safeguards for nuclear weapons.

None of this means that a first-stage SALT agreement will be easily reached this year. The Soviet proposal simply restricts ABM installations to a circle of 125-mile radius around Moscow. The United States proposes a circle one-fourth that area, which would take in all existing sites. More important, it would restrict the number, size and location elsewhere in the U.S.S.R. of new early-warning, space-track and other large non-ABM radar — which might be surreptitiously "internetted" with the Moscow system or otherwise converted to ABM use. These collateral restrictions, which also would be applied to the United States, are opposed by the Soviet Union.

Comparative Figures

Limitation of offensive land-based ICBMs to existing numbers also involves problems. The fact that it would leave the Soviet Union with about 1,500 to 1,054 American ICBMs poses no immediate difficulty; the United States is ahead in MIRV multiple warheads, long-range bombers and submarine-launched missiles, which would be limited only in a second-stage negotiation. But the Soviet Union insists on a right to "modernize" its decade-old SS-7 and SS-8 ICBMs by replacement with SS-9s or other new missiles that are much larger and may be able ultimately to carry many more multiple warheads. The American Minuteman III is about the same size as the Minuteman I and II it will replace.

More difficult problems lie ahead for a second-stage SALT agreement — which would seek to limit MIRV, missile subs and bombers and, perhaps, reduce missile numbers. But there is no technical reason why the first-stage SALT accord now outlined should not be concluded this year or early next, if the political will exists in the Kremlin at the top to achieve it. That it does exist in the Kremlin as well as the White House is Nixon's conviction now. And he reportedly is prepared to go to Moscow, not to negotiate it, but to sign it once the draft is ready.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Non-Informing Feedback

INFORMATION Canada, attempting to justify its existence, is playing a numbers game with Parliament. The theory is that Info, through its enquiry centres, will promote a two-way flow of information beneficial to the citizen who cannot find, or has not attempted to find, what he wants in the public library, and to Parliament which has a natural interest in citizen concerns. What Parliament is getting in fact is an utterly meaningless collection of monthly statistics. The April "report," for example, provides a breakdown of inquiries received at the centres in the form of letters, telephone calls and visits. Most people, it turns out, use the telephone. Now there is a remarkable finding for Parliament to ponder.

Western

There are tables on origin (by provinces) and on language. Then we have "interests," which suggests, at first glance, an approach to something. But, at second glance, the information consists solely of percentages. Thus, in Winnipeg, 25 per cent of the inquiries had to do with "administration-politics", two per cent with biology, nutrition, pathology; eight per cent with chemistry, physics and earth sciences; and so on.

What Conclusions?

What useful conclusion is to be drawn from unidentified questions?

But then we have "feedback:" the report noting that the centres as a part of the "information in branch" have a responsibility for recording the attitudes and opinions expressed by individual users for Parliament's benefit.

It should be possible, according to the theory, to put "feedback" to some use. Regrettably, there is nothing here that anyone could use because it is all so random, scattered and general. Thus there were six expressions of concern about the economy. One was a comment that economic problems could be solved by introduction of a natal tax and the promotion of homosexuality.

One, a protest against subsidies given to American companies; one, a complaint that only 14 per cent of the national budget is spent on economic deveopment. What guidance is this for Parliament? Is the statistical conclusion to be drawn that there is equality of concern about these various matters?

Too General

The longest section is headed "miscellaneous." This would be a suitable title for the whole report. Very often nothing can be made of the complaints because the language is so general. One complaint concerned the academic system in Quebec. What was it? One complaint had to do with inequitable jail terms given to Indians. Was a particular case cited: if so, what?

There were 22 complaints about the increase in MPs' salaries. Comment: The majority of these were the result of an on-air suggestion of a radio hot line host. Did Information Canada check, or is this surmise? Is it editorializing? The same comment follows the item: 53 complaints on invasion of privacy in the census. Same questions. Also, if Info probed in these cases, (was it an invasion of privacy?) why not in all the others?

If this is "feedback," the whole exercise is manifestly useless. Public money is being wasted on an exercise yielding nothing of value to Parliament. Fourteen persons admired the decor of the new Winnipeg office. How do they feel about their tax bills inflated by the conspicious waste in Ottawa of which Information Canada is so shining an example?

Letters

"Should be Ashamed"

I am writing this letter to applaud Denis Johnston, the valedictorian at the Uvic convocation on Saturday. His words then were honest, refreshing and above all appropriate to the occasion. I admired his courage in speaking openly of the issue to which the chancellor and the president had only cynically alluded.

As a 1971 graduate I deplore the childish and small-minded actions of at least three faculty members and too many students and members of the audience, who, at that assembly of "reasonable" academics gathered together to honor the pursuit of wisdom and a "rational" and "mature" approach to the solution of problems, felt called upon to leave the arena as Mr. Johnston was speaking. The irony of their actions in the context of his speech and those that had gone before was obvious. The members of the audience, possibly bored by the traditional flow of platitudes in earlier speeches, can perhaps be forgiven for leaving; but the faculty members, and especially the graduating students who have the greatest responsibility to the university tradition should be ashamed.—Meryl Connor, 1649 Wilmot.

Academic Tolerance

The accounts in Monday's Times of the events surrounding the Uvic valedictorian's address are astonishing.

Having been trained in a science the valedictorian must have expected that his remarks would be open to criticism — but only after he had been heard out. This is the way one deals in science. Any idea can be expressed and expect a hearing and only then becomes fair game for its detractors. I am not merely speaking of good manners but of the process through which ideas are brought forth and tested in academic circles. It is this kind of academic tolerance that should be one of the foremost lessons of a higher education. How astonishing then that the first persons to leave during the address were members of the faculty.

Prof. Christie points out that she was not the first to leave the platform, two others having preceded her by a side exit. She states elsewhere that she ". . . didn't expect anyone to follow me." Why then did she leave by the centre aisle? By doing so she obviously invited all those present to choose between leaving or staying. The students who left were led out — and from the platform. Some sheep will follow even a foolish shepherd.

If nothing else, the episode clearly demonstrates how divided the campus really is. Your reports indicate about fifty-fifty. — L. C. H. Ireland, 1020 McKenzie.

Sea of Suffering

The other day I saw some youngsters with a trembling mother pigeon and her squabs, and they were busy soliciting the downtown Chinese community with a view to selling them, obviously as food.

Finally they scored a sale and went down the street laughing.

The transaction spoiled my day. On what a sea of suffering do we human beings sustain ourselves! Too late — I thought of purchasing the pigeons to set them free. The great Michelangelo spent a good deal of his money buying doves and releasing them.

I cannot help but think of an old poem:

"Twould ring the bells of heaven,
The loudest peal in years,
If the parson lost his senses
And the people came to theirs.
And he and they together
Knelt down with angry prayers
For wounded blind pit ponies
And little hunted hares."

—Robert Bruce.

Census Comparison

Those who think that the Canadian census being taken this week, asks some personal questions, possibly might be interested in the following questions which were asked in the United States census of 1890.

"If there are any idiots living in the house, what is their head size (small, large or natural)?"

"Is this resident habitually intemperate, a tramp, or syphilitic?"

"Has the origin of this child been respectable?" — Kenneth H. R. Simkin, 636 Dallas.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"MAD, ISN'T SHE?"

Looking Back

From the Times of June 2, 1911:

Vancouver — Public interest in the proposed strike of wage-earners on Monay today centres on the street railway men. The man on the street is asking if the conductors and motormen intend to go on strike.

"I had it straight this morning from a conductor whom I know that the referendum taken yesterday and last night resulted in a declaration in favor of a strike. Why there is no doubt about it. I shall immediately buy a motor cycle," insists the man who has a bowing acquaintance with the conductor of a car.

What Happened to Socialism?

By EDWARD HYAMS
New Statesman

I mean, here, in Britain, because, of course, there are a few places where you can still find it — a glimpse, now and again, on the streets of Montevideo, or in a French or German or even British university, or a fleeting half sight and sound of it in a Japanese high school or in the mountains of Bolivia or Peru; and, of course, at least for a few months until the CIA gets to work, in Allende's Chile.

Elsewhere, it has retreated, taken to the hills; and no wonder after the way it was treated; a pity, because it was a good idea; too good, perhaps, offering what we are not yet grown-up enough to want, a just society and a means to social and economic efficiency.

Forgetting, briefly, my parochial interest, and taking an international view, the trouble was that socialism got its big chance in the wrong place and under impossible conditions.

Point to Russia

Those with a vested interest in the present sordid system can point to the U.S.S.R. and say "I told you so."

I've been told the Russians have the temperament for socialism but it couldn't survive their political incompetence; and if it had, it still couldn't have survived the civil war and the various capitalist adventures in intervention; and had it accomplished that miracle, it could never have survived tsar Stalin. Russia survived as a new and much more powerful empire; but socialism was killed in the process.

And as for its other early 20th-century debuts, there can be no greater tribute to what its enemies judged its potential to be than the enormous sums of money, the amount of care and time, the ear-splitting, brain-paralysing volume of screaming propaganda, the weight of brutal physical violence, which were used to clobber it — for instance in post-World War I Italy and Germany.

Social Cowardice

But to get back to Britain, the reasons for its failure, and for the present triumph of the basest kind of knife-in-the-back, kick-in-the-balls capitalism, are clear enough, of course: the cap-touching social cowardice of the British working class which a century ago astonished observers as different as Karl Marx and Hippolyte Taine; the splitting of the working class by big wage differentials; the refusal of trade union leaders to use industrial action for political ends, because of their all-absorbing desire to be rich, knighted, enobled; the Labour Party's ambition to become the conservative party and willingness to turn Conservative in order to do it; and Leftist scholasticism, that debilitating academic preoccupation of the professional socialist intellectuals with Marxist philophiliosity: you know the sort of thing — how many kinds of schismatic Leninisms can dance on the point of a social-economic argument? The kind of fluid crap that outside of Britain shames its addicts — a Sartre or a Debray for instance — into involving himself in militant action.

The victory of the bourgeoisie, the capitalists, not only over us, the people, but over the policies of the Social-Democratic parties' policies since, say, 1848, is not hard to understand, though what capitalism stands for is old, ugly and base; and what socialism stood for was young, handsome and noble.

Fought Savagely

What the bourgeoisie had to lose was not chains but the minority enjoyment of the good life, at the majority's expense; and for it they fought savagely.

They had luck, too; they produced four, counting Stalin as a bougeois-nationalist-patriot Duce-fuhrrerasdillo — four outstanding militant champions of their cause: Mussolini, Hitler, Franco and, as I say, Stalin, who qualifies if only because he fought so hard to prevent the rise of socialism in Greece and Yugoslavia and to find the young Chinese socialism over to the Kuomintang hangmen; and to restore the raven to his pie-in-the-sky croaking.

And they not only out-fought the socialists when it came to bullets, they outsmarted them when it came to the craft of propaganda; out-squealing the immortal squealer, they convinced all of us bar the hundred million or so existing on the starvation line in America, Russia and Europe that things were getting better all the time. As, of course, they were—for the proponents of that fraudulent optimism.

So successful have they been in persuading millions that socialism has been a flop, that even the few remaining socialists are defensive and overlook the fact that it has not yet been tried; and when Mr. Ford, the capitalist lion, and Mr. Heath, one of his jackals, snarl at us for not working hard enough for them, we pull our forelock.

Rights Stolen

Most people hardly remember what socialism was all about or recall its pristine simplicity: property, said Proudhon, is theft; and the problem therefore was to restore the stolen goods, and the stolen rights which the thieves had pocketed with them.

From Thomas More, through Rousseau, and a dozen others, to Proudhon, Mill, Marx, Engels, Chernychevsky, Kropotkin, and many other thinking, feeling men down to Lenin, disgusted by the ugly squalor of existing social systems which maintained and propagated the poverty and misery of the majority of mankind, sought — and finally found — the means to restore the stolen goods and rights.

If we, in Britain (and, of course, America) have made only such feeble efforts to use their solution and to deny Proudhonian thieves the right to live like parasites on other men's work; have made such half-hearted and fumbling attempts to use the wisdom that a long line of thinkers worked out for us, it is certainly not because the problem has really changed.

It is indeed more and more apparent that those concessions in favor of a little wealth-redistribution wrung from capital, concessions which have saved it for the time being, and paralyzed the socialists, are very far indeed from being enough.

Enriched the Rich

Scientific productivity has produced so much wealth that it has masked the reality; but, as Professor Galbraith wrote in this journal recently, economic growth has enriched — the rich.

We have seemed to be able to afford the gross luxury of capitalism, for all its grotesque inefficiency and comical wastefulness. But, again — it's such an old story — the innate flaws in the system cannot fail, from time to time, to produce the most atrocious consequences in breakdown (e.g., 1929-33 and its outcome, the Second World War); at those crises, the economic imbecility, moral squalor and political repulsiveness of the system become vividly clear again, e.g. in unemployment, climbing to the millions.

Technological advance, with its increased productivity, and recourse to a measure of Keynesianism, have together made it seem, since 1946, that a capitalism modified by a few sub-socialist compromises, was working fairly well.

But the present still-minor breakdown in the United States, now spreading to this side of the Atlantic, and the lectures of Mr. Edward Heath and his friends are doing us a considerable service in making clear that it wasn't — far from it.

Why did we need such lessons? A glance at the condition of the millions of poor on both sides of the Atlantic; at our failure to house ourselves properly; at the continuous erosion of the National Health Service; at our failure to produce enough schools; at our inability even to afford fundamental medical and other kinds of scientific research on anything like an adequate scale, should have revealed the truth without any need for Mr. Heath's assistance. But we wouldn't look; we wanted to believe all that was old stuff.

Loss of Nerve

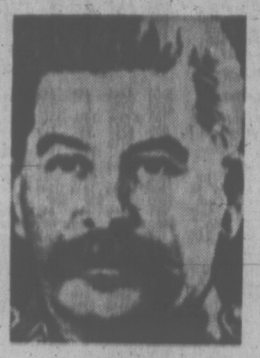
Now we have Mr. Heath with his, at least honest, answer: back to real capitalism, that is to laissez-faire; the market, and to hell with the workers and the poor. It is the right answer from his point of view, the answer which his party is paid to give.

On the other side, there's this extraordinary loss of nerve which I have tried to account for above, and which denies us the power to see, let alone move towards, the real and just and efficient solution: socialism, as it was conceived and worked out by the long line of men of vision and genius.

One of the most hideous consequences of the victory of bourgeois propaganda has been to all but convince us that their way is best just because it is base; that men, as Hitler wrote, can only be ruled through greed, fear and envy, can only be made to work by the same means.

The Labor Party, as it is now, fails because it is half-convinced of this proposition: they're not entirely to blame, the I—you-Jack-I'm-inboard mood of the higher paid workers has done something to force it on them.

KARL MARX



STALIN

Now Heath and Co. may, if they over-reach themselves towards economic Powellism, what Pasternak called "the brute insolence of money", do us the service of changing all that.

But where do we find the apparatus for installing socialism? Communist parties are no use any more; orthodox communism long since lost its purity — and they are horribly tainted, they stink to high heaven.

Is there even a half-chance that, following the example of the Tories in reverting to their kind of realities and waging class-war, the Labour Party will be stimulated into turning, at long last to socialism? I cannot, for my part, see a Wilson, a Callaghan or, heaven help us, a Stewart, in the role of Salvador Allende; or, alas, of any kind of salvador.

Incredible Tide Of Toxic Waste

By BOB HUNTER

Portrait of a river:

At Vanderhoof, some 166,000 gallons of sewage are flushed into the Fraser. The river flows on . . .

At Pinchi Lake, another 10,000 gallons a day are added.

At Fort St. James, the river picks up 190,000 gallons each day.

It flows on to McBride and gains another 80,000 gallons of mainly human waste daily.

Prince George contributes 2.5 million gallons.

Fraser Lake offers 60,000 to 75,000 gallons daily.

Quesnel flushes 350,000 gallons — but at least the sewage here receives secondary treatment. A break for the river. One of the few breaks it gets as it moves down to the sea.

Second of Series

Now it passes Williams Lake. Into its currents surge another 500,000 gallons of water each day.

We may imagine that the river is moving more sluggishly as it approaches 100 Mile House. Certainly it is thicker, more like stew. And now it gains another 175,000 gallons of waste. Daily.

Clinton dumps 100,000 gallons.

Lillooet kicks in 125,000.

At Ashcroft, the river gets its second break. Some 54,000 gallons of waste — but this gets secondary treatment.

Do choked rivers gasp with relief? Probably not, but at any rate the relief is short-lived. Reaching Lytton, it finds itself being slushed with another 55,000 gallons of gluk.

●

Merritt dumps 300,000 gallons. Each day. Lucky for the Fraser, this stuff, too, is processed in a secondary treatment plant.

The luck runs out at Salmon Arm. Another 300,000 gallons of waste are shot into the vein of the river.

And now it comes down to Tranquille and picks up an additional 100,000 gallons.

Arriving at South Kamloops, the river comes close to staggering under the impact of 2.8 million gallons of flowing wastes.

North Kamloops piles roughly 550,000 gallons on top of that.

Hope squirts out another 200,000 a day.

Now the Fraser is flowing heavily down through the Lower Mainland. It reaches Chilliwack and receives a burden of 850,000 gallons.

Harrison Hot Springs holds its contribution back with secondary treatment.

But Maple Ridge lets loose with 385,000 gallons.

Port Coquitlam unleashes a total of 1.3 million gallons.

Abbotsford dumps roughly 800,000 gallons.

And now the Fraser, brown and turgid, loved neither by fish nor men, comes down into the home stretch, passing through the great urban cluster of New Westminster, South Burnaby, Port Moody, Coquitlam, Fraser Mills, Surrey, Langley, and south east Vancouver, and into its filthy trough pour another 52 million to 65 million gallons per day.

The ordeal is not quite finished. Before it may reach the sea, the Fraser must pick up one last surge of waste from Richmond. Another 16 million gallons each day.

●

In all, the mighty Fraser must carry each day at least 87,960,000 gallons of waste. Of that, only about 704,600 gallons can be described as having been properly processed before entering the river.

In a year? Something like 32 billion gallons of inadequately-treated sewage.

And that's only a part of the portrait. For we have been dealing only with sewage. Much, much more than this goes into the river.

But before turning to the non-human wastes, the industrial sewage, it is important to understand that while much of this waste has been chewed up into smaller pieces, it is still essentially raw.

This incredible tide of waste contains 12,000 toxic materials. None of the treatment procedures used anywhere along the river do anything to neutralize these materials.

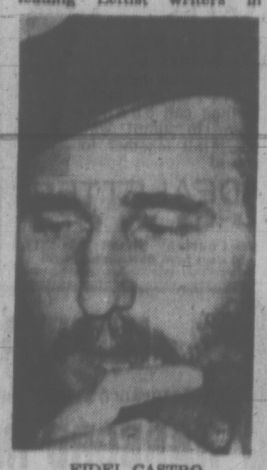
Copying Stalin

I. F. STONE'S BI-WEEKLY

When Heberto Padilla was awarded a poetry prize in 1968 by the Cuban Union of Artists and Writers, Verde Olivo, organ of Castro's armed forces, protested. Brass hats run true to type in every society, and Padilla's passionate concern for truth was too much for them.

Their power has since increased and on March 20 Padilla was imprisoned on unspecified charges in Havana.

On April 9 a group of leading Leftist writers in Western Europe and Latin America, including Jean-Paul Sartre, Carlos Fuentes, Octavia Paz and Carlos Franqui protested in an open letter to Castro that "the use of repressive measures against intellectuals and writers who have exercised their right of criticism within the revolution can only have deeply negative repercussions among the anti-imperialist forces of the entire world." On April 27 Padilla was released but only after signing a confession as phony as the worst in the Stalin era and in Czechoslovakia's Slansky affair.



FIDEL CASTRO

The Cuban novelist, Juan Arcocha, who once represented the Castro daily, Revolucioun, in Moscow declared in the same issue of Le Monde that it could only have been obtained by torture. The confession accused the independent Leftist, K. S. Karol, author of "The Guerrillas in Power," and the Left Socialist agricultural expert, Rene Dumont, author of "Cuba: Est-Il Socialist?" of being CIA agents. Both have visited Cuba several times on Castro's invitation. Both books criticize the growing militarization of Cuba and the negative effect on agriculture and on popular support.

Castro replied to the letter of protest in a speech in which he said it was good news that "the liberal bourgoeisie are at war with us." Stalinist-style, he evaded the basic issue.

How can the regime be saved from military and bureaucratic rigidity, how can Cuba's full human and natural resources be mobilized, if there is no freedom of criticism?

In an earlier day, Castro and Che Guevara themselves made this point. Today Castro is surrounded by yes men. His own vanity and megalomania have become enemies of a besieged revolution.

Beacon on a Long Trail

By ART STOTT

At the Memorial Arena here Saturday afternoon, rolling applause greeted George Clutesi as the University of Victoria paid him high tribute by conferring upon him an honorary doctoral degree. The same warmth was shown atop Burnaby Mountain at approximately the same time as Simon Fraser University accorded similar honors to Chief Dan George.

To some of us, the events stood out as landmarks in our society's recognition of leaders who have contributed significantly to the honest status of their people.

Each has brought to public attention the pride of race, the understanding of native culture and proof of personal abilities which have greatly enhanced the opinions held by other Canadians of Indians.

Since the hope for a better living for Indians is generally based on increased education — a process now in flow — it was highly appropriate that the honors should come from the Universities. They have proved that their doors are open, their honor rolls prepared to welcome, representatives of a people too long denied such accolades.

This is by no means a gesture of condescension. Rather is it a wholesome appreciation for the wisdom and capacities of men who have absorbed a particular knowledge and developed particular skills in fields far from the formal subjects of the universities. They have sudied and trained in life — the like of their people. And they have gained a mastery which enables them to meet the challenges of the day in a manner that is inspiring to Canadians in general.

They are not alone. Others of their people have shown talents in the arts of story, picture and dramatic acting that invite praise throughout the country. Two only were singled out in ceremonies which cannot be all-embracing, but serve to point the way to others.

George Clutesi, in earlier addresses, has made no secret of his understanding that all of the whiteman's civilization on this continent is not perfect. He has been unusually successful in emphasizing the philosophical and cultural values of his own people—the lessons in living he learned from his fathers and the elders who had taught his father.

In many respects he considers them superior to those of the prevailing materialistic society he encounters in Canada today. The distinguished Indian writer and painter nevertheless looks realistically at the times in which he lives. So, according to reports of his recent speeches, does Chief Dan George, who has given Canada a special place in the moving picture industry.

Both resent the position thrust upon the Indian. Yet that resentment is tempered by a certain self-analysis that conditions any inclination to militancy. You notice it in the Clutesi addresses — the frequent appeal to young Indians to so conduct themselves and so improve their educational standing that they re-establish the self-respect a number have lost.

★ ★ ★

Whether his appeal reaches the young Indians any more effectively than the non-Indian adult appeal to non-Indian youth, only time will show.

There is, though, a glimmer of hope. More young Indians are progressing further up the educational ladder in this province and throughout Canada than ever before. That, in itself, should give them a more articulate voice in the provincial community.

It is also providing them with a larger number of energetic and intelligent people of their own origins skilled in directing their affairs in a complex society. They should be the ones who provide the transition from the white man's paternalism so offensive to many Indians to understanding native administrators capable of running their own show.

★ ★ ★

Honorary degrees conferred on George Clutesi and Dan George will not remove all the prejudice held by some citizens against Indians. Prejudice is a personal thing, largely emotional, depending on the likes and dislikes of the individual.

But acceptance of Clutesi and George into the company of scholars and men of distinction reflects one more blow against discrimination, which is so frequently the manifestation of unwholesome prejudice.

The universities have put a light in the window, a beacon which may be followed by Indians with the required capacities and the will to walk the long trail toward it.

A ceremonial ritual? Perhaps, but none the less importantly symbolic.

INCORPORATIONS UP OVER LAST YEAR

Incorporations of B.C. companies has been rising steadily for the past five months, despite a minor pause in January.

Figures supplied by the registrar of companies shows a cumulative total of 3,030 new registrations compared with 2,726 in the period a year ago.

As an indicator of economic activity, the totals bear out forecasts for a business recovery this year.

March, with 700 new listings, holds the five-month record for this year, but May was better than average with 636 compared with 520 last year. April had 579 new companies versus 616 in April, 1970.

Extra-provincial registrations at 57 last month were eight better than April and held the same margin over May, 1970, while March had 39 versus 32 the previous year.

There were fewer societies listed in May, 32 compared with 44 a year earlier, 53 in April and 56 in March. Partnership and proprietorship formation numbered 166 last month, 144 a year ago and 182 in April, down noticeably from 227 in March.

Canada, British Reserves Up

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's foreign exchange reserves rose $24.8 million during May to reach $4,878.7 million at the end of the month, the finance department reported today.

The month-end total included $3,206.6 million in U.S. dollars held by the Bank of Canada, the receiver-general and the finance department's exchange fund account.

The holdings also included $791.6 million in gold, and $18 million in convertible currencies other than U.S. dollars.

In addition to the gold and foreign currencies, the total included Canada's reserve position in the International Monetary Fund, $509.7 million, and $352.7 million in IMF special drawing rights. These are amounts that can be drawn from the IMF if needed to meet a balance-of-payments crisis.

Since last June 1, the Canadian dollar has been allowed to float or trade freely in international exchange markets with the government here no longer trying to keep it near its old IMF pegged exchange rate of 92.5 cents in U.S. funds to the Canadian dollar.

The reserves have since been used only to moderate sharp day-to-day fluctuations in the trading value of the dollar.

LONDON — Britain's gold and convertible currency reserves rose $103.2 million in May to reach $3.5232 billion the treasury announced today.

This followed a similar $103.2 million jump in April.

The may figures marked the eighth consecutive month in which the British reserves have risen. A year ago reserves stood at $2.7672 billion.

The treasury announcement, however, had no immediate effect on the London stock market were trading remained quiet.

Court Okays Armour Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court approved 4 to 3 Tuesday Greyhound's takeover of Armour and Co., the second largest meatpacker in the United States.

The court concluded that ownership of a majority of Armour's stock by Greyhound Corp. does not violate a 1920 order breaking up the old "beef trust."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, delivering the opinion, said that decree prohibited Armour from entering the food business but does not prohibit the takeover by Armour of a company that is in the food business. Greyhound has food interests.

The decision went against the justice department, which had urged the court to rule that Greyhound must surrender its ownership of Armour.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Kelly D.

Kelly, Douglas and Co. Ltd. reports net earnings of $180,000 in the first quarter of 1971, a drop of 44 per cent from $321,000 in the corresponding period of 1970.

Sales increased to $51.1 million from $49.5 million in the same period, a 3.5 per cent increase.

President Victor F. MacLean said lower profit is a direct reflection of the lack of buoyancy in the B.C. economy and the retail food industry is suffering from a "pork and bean" type of consumer purchasing, compounded by high unemployment.

Costs and expenses in the period rose from $19 million to $22.6 million, including nearly seven times the previous level of U.S. income tax or $444,000.

Sony

Net profit of Sony Corp. rose to $9.4 million in the six months ended April 20 from $7.5 million a year earlier.

The April total, a gain of 13.5 per cent from the preceding six months, was for the Japanese parent company only. Sony expects to release consolidated results, compiled every three months, for its second quarter in mid-June.

Jockey

Jockey Club Ltd. profits still face a squeeze, reports chairman E. P. Taylor, commenting on previously published 1970 figures.

Consideration is being given to formation of a non-profit racing association, depending on tax rulings awaited.

Net earnings were $1.88 million (26.2 cents a share) vs. $2 million (33 cents) in 1969, despite higher gross revenue at $30.44 million ($29 million). Operations cost $24.2 million ($22.27 million).

Capital costs were $5.98 million last year vs. $1.8 million in 1969, but no outlays are planned this year.

B of M

Bank of Montreal reports profits of $21 million or 62 cents a share for the six months ended April 30, down from $25 million (73 cents) a year earlier.

Lower interest rates were cited as the chief reason for the decline in total revenues to $338.3 million from $353.2 million.

Assets increased by 10.6 per cent to $9.1 billion, deposits by 11.1 per cent to $8.45 billion and loans by 5.5 per cent to $5.1 billion.

AT & T

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. set a $4 dividend rate Tuesday on its $27.5 million-share offering of convertible preferred stock — a rate equal to 8 per cent of the subscription price.

For the first time in its history, the company set the conversion rate on the preferred stock at 1.05 share of common for each share of preferred, reflecting a conversion price set at $47.50.

The subscritpion price will be $50 per share and is designed to raise an aggregate $1.37 billion. Rights and prospectus go out this week.

Massey

Massey-Ferguson Ltd. reports a second-quarter profit of $300,000 or two cents a share for the three months ended April 30. Massey-Ferguson reports financial results in U.S. dollars.

The company had a profit of $3.6 million or 20 cents a share during the same quarter in the previous fiscal year. However, the company had losses during the last two quarters of the 1969-70 fiscal year and ended up with a net loss of $19.7 million.

Massey had a $500,000 profit for the first quarter of the 1970-71 fiscal year.

Total

Revenue and earnings both climbed in the quarter ended March, despite price wars in the heavily-invested Detroit area, reports Total Petroleum (North America) Ltd., formerly French Petroleum.

The company had net profit of $907,000 vs. $307,000 a year ago on sales of $23.5 million, up from $19.46 million. Profit is equal to 10 cents a share against one cent in the 1970 period.

200 COMPANIES AT B.C. TRADE FAIR

VANCOUVER (CP) — The ImpoExpo '71 trade fair opens at the Pacific National Exhibition fair grounds today, with some 18 countries and more than 200 companies represented.

The fair was set up by the British Columbia government with a grant of $200,000 as a centennial project. The last trade fair sponsored by the government was in 1967.

About 70 per cent of the exhibitors are from outside Canada. Fair manager Ken Brown said Tuesday they would have liked a better balance, with more representation by Canadian firms, especially the forest industry of B.C.

BORN MAY 31, 1859

Big Ben 112 Years Old

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Come now! Sit back in your armchairs and we'll take a quick flight to London. On arrival we'll stand for a while in the shadow of the Houses of Parliament on the edge of the Thames.

We'll look up at the Great Clock in the centre tower and wait to hear the chiming of the huge bell known the world around as Big Ben.

Forbes

Many who read this column have done this in person on more than one occasion. Others have heard the "bong" of Big Ben on their radios and television.

That's why it seemed timely (no pun intended) to tell you that on Monday the Great Clock and Big Ben celebrated a 112th birthday.

I discovered this through an article written by Robert Nelson and published a week or so ago in the Christian Science Monitor.

It was on May 31, 1859, that the Great Clock began its work and that its hour chime was named Big Ben after Sir Benjamin Hall, first commissioner of works.

In the more than a century since the clock has rarely stopped except for major overhaul every 20 years.

"It occasionally hesitates or palpitates," Nelson wrote. "The heat went off once in the clock room and a frenzied middle-of-the-night call from the BBC reported the clock running six seconds fast.

●

"Another time, a sudden heavy snowfall slowed the 14-foot minute hand and the nine-foot hour hands."

But no bomb ever stopped the Great Clock, the article boasts. Indeed, Westminster's famed clock during wartime became a symbol of steadiness and courage, ticking and chiming through bombings that destroyed much around Westminster but never Big Ben.

●

London sets its collective watches to the sound of Big Ben, Greenwich listens to the Great Clock. "And so does the BBC through special belfry microphones," Nelson wrote. "It broadcasts the sounds around the globe throughout the day, like some universal confirmation that all's well with time."

Mechanism that compels these great moments was the brilliant conception of a man who was a clockmaker by hobby, a barrister by vocation, Edmund Beckett Denison, QC, first Baron Grimthorpe.

Architect for the Houses of Parliament included a clock tower in his design. The astronomer-royal decreed that the clock had to be correct to one second per day. Clockmakers said it couldn't be done.

Undaunted by the specifications, Denison produced a design that the architect began work on in 1852. And on May 31, 1859, Big Ben boomed out for the first time.

●

Now back to Victoria by our armchair route and to the McPherson Playhouse where the curtain goes up tonight on a British Columbia Centennial Drama Festival.

Sponsored by the B.C. Drama Association, this four-night festival will feature one and three-act plays by various groups on a non-competitive basis.

Miss Christine MacNab, chairman of arrangements, explains that a committee of adjudicators selected the plays from drama festivals staged in six zones of the province during March and April.

"The groups selected are not necessarily those that are winners in the various zones," Miss MacNab says. "This is a centennial showcase of plays. There is no competition, no awards, but there will be both public and private adjudications."

Tonight the "Grandmother," an original melodrama by local playwright Joan Mason Hurley, will be presented by Victoria Theatre Guild.

On the same program will be two plays, one by Campbell River Players and the other by the Yellow Point Drama Group.

●

Thursday evening the New Caledonia Players of Prince George will be seen in a three-act plays and on Friday four short plays by groups from Powell River, Duncan, Prince Rupert and Vancouver will be presented.

Here's a splendid opportunity to get away from your television sets and enjoy live theatre. Do make a point of getting out of those armchairs for one evening at least. The Centennial Drama Festival is worth supporting!

Sentence Labelled Travesty

MIAMI (AP) — A 21-year-old former Green Beret who said he squandered his $2,400 Vietnam savings for heroin has been sentenced to two years in prison for the $22 robbery of a curbside market.

"This is an absolute tragedy," Criminal Court Judge Ellen Morphinios said Tuesday in sentencing John Gerald Jennings of Hialeah.

She recommended that Jennings, who served two years in Vietnam, be sent to prison hospital until cured, but denied a plea by Assistant Public Defender Thomas Morgan that Jennings be sent to a live-in rehabilitation centre.

"We're participating in a travesty of justice," Morgan said.

"Combat soldiers who became addicted in Southeast Asia are just being turned loose in the community. There are no facilities at the Veterans Administration Hospital—not even a methadone clinic," Morgan said.

Contract Let Quietly

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a $13.5-million contract to expand the still-unfinished Terminal 2 at Toronto International Airport was quietly awarded Tuesday, strengthening rumors that construction of a second major airport for Toronto has been shelved.

However, it quoted an unnamed transport department official in an Ottawa report as saying the expansion was planned at least since the fall of 1969, when the government also decided on a second airport, and the lack of publicity Tuesday may have been an attempt to avoid that kind of conclusion being drawn.

The newspaper says the expansion project will employ hundreds of construction workers at least until the end of next year and eventually triple the number of aircraft gates at the new terminal.

It says the contract was awarded to Eastern Construction Ltd. of Toronto and calls for a 22-foot-wide tunnel, 600 feet long, connecting Terminals 1 and 2 and featuring moving sidewalks to carry passengers between the two.

Dam Builder Leaves

$15,000 FINE SET FOR ANACORTES SPILL

OLYMPIA (AP) — The ecology department of Washington state has levied a $15,000 fine against the Puget Sound Tug and Barge Co. for the 230,000-gallon Anacortes oil spill that swept through Puget Sound in late April.

A department spokesman said the penalty was the first of three assessments that may be made against the firm under state law.

Labor-Production Balance Said Crucial

OTTAWA (CP) — The balance between labor-cost increases and improved productivity is the crucial relationship in achieving a healthy economy, Raymond J. Saulnier told the Senate national finance committee today.

"You can be sure that if these are in balance, all other relationships will be tolerably favorable, if not near-perfect," the Columbia University economics chairman said.

"And you can be sure that if there is imbalance between money-wage increases and productivity improvement other relationships will be askew, and the economy's performance will suffer."

U.S. labor costs were rising about seven per cent a year and productivity by only about half that. Chances of correcting this imbalance appeared slim.

"That being the case, one cannot help but have reservations concerning the economy's performance in the period ahead." Growth would probably remain "below potential."

Dr. Saulnier suggested the U.S. government should moderate the present rate of monetary expansion, which has been outstanding recently, as evidenced by a budget deficit of $19,000 million in the first eight months of the latest fiscal year compared with $7,000 million a year earlier.

URGES TAX CHANGES

As the economy recovered, there should be tax adjustments aimed at promoting capital spending, not the purchase of more consumer goods.

Dr. Saulnier suggested the U.S. government stay away from direct wage and price controls. The idea that these could overcome an inflation "that does not yield readily to traditional monetary and fiscal restraints is, I feel sure, an illusion."

"Worse than that, it could have seriously harmful results if it encouraged a false sense . . . success in the fight against inflation and became a screen behind which to continue monetary and fiscal policies that would push costs and prices still higher.

He suggested instead a system of monitoring federal programs to ensure they are administered in a way that would slow cost and price inflation rather than fuel it.

"So far this has been done only sporadically."

A text of his remarks was released in advance of delivery.

TWO-BITS A GLASS?

New Disaster Looms For Draught Drinkers

By WALTER McKINNON

Writing this hurts almost as much as doing the obituary for a near and dear friend. And the pain is even worse because it follows by only a day that devastating increase in government booze prices.

Draught beer, nectar of the gods and recommended fuel for journalists the world over, may soon be a quarter a glass.

Hotelmen in Vancouver Tuesday raised the cry for 25-cent draught. And needless to say, innkeepers on this side of the water think it's a fine idea.

Twenty-five cent draught, when the price of scotch has just come down? And some tapmen don't even top off the glass?

●

Obviously, the time has come for pubcrawlers to organize. Present them with a united front and fight this galloping inflation where it will do the most good . . . in the pubs of British Columbia!

L. W. Manuel, managing director of the British Columbia Hotels Association, said Tuesday that "it seems reasonable that an increase should be there to offset" rising labor costs and the new hike in the price of a keg.

The 25-gallon keg of draught which used to cost $36 now costs $38.70. Any tapman worth his beer can get about 500 glasses out of that keg . . . $100 worth of beer on the table.

At a quarter a glass, it would put $125 in the till.

Your correspondent this morning placed a telephone call to Liquor Control Board chairman William Bruce, attempting to get to the root of the problem. His only comment was "No comment."

He did say, however, that no formal application for the increase has yet been made. And he wouldn't speculate.

"I don't deal in hypothetical cases at all."

●

Manuel was a little more talkative. He explained that the application is not yet in the works, . . . but admitted it is likely to be soon.

The last time a disaster of this magnitude hit the pubcrawlers of the province was in 1967. At that time, the size of the glass was reduced from 12 ounces to 11 and the price was held at 20 cents.

That was the same year bottled beer was bumped up a nickel a case, from $2.52 to $2.57. It's now $2.84.

By the way — those 11-ounce glasses to which reference was made a paragraph back . . . you only get eight or nine ounces of beer. The exact measurement depends on the tapman. A discriminating draught man can pick up an extra ounce or so in each glass if he takes the time to shop around.

And now, parting shot . . . remember, draught men, that extra nickel, when and if it comes, is the one they chopped off the $11 scotch.

Municipal Heads Lavish Applause On Fiscal Report

A report on the "disastrous" financial deal given B.C. cities and towns by the province got a full round of applause today from municipal leaders in Greater Victoria.

The report released Tuesday by the Union of B.C. Municipalities traced a steady decrease in the amount of help local governments have been getting from the province for more than a decade.

Principal recommendations included a complete takeover of all social welfare costs by the province and increased help in covering education expenses.

BACKED BY FACTS

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford termed the report "a really good one, backed by facts and figures."

She also criticized Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell who has already questioned the validity of the report's conclusions.

Campbell also said that no matter what the report says, B.C. municipalities are better treated than any other in Canada.

"As usual, Dan Campbell steps aside and then comes back with a sharp attack," Mrs. Elford said.

"To say that the province does more than other provinces is no excuse. Perhaps the other provinces should hang their heads in shame."

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock agreed. Asked about Campbell's comment that B.C. towns are the best treated in Canada Haddock replied:

"Then there's probably something wrong with Canada."

Mrs. Elford said the report underlined "the nub of the point municipalities have been making that although the provincial local government grants have gone up in actual dollars, percentage-wise, they have decreased."

She pointed out that in the period from 1961 to 1968 the municipalities share of the social assistance bill had risen from 19.7 per cent to 31.4 per cent.

WELFARE COSTS

Haddock recalled that Victoria council had recently submitted a resolution to the next UBCM convention calling for all welfare costs to be removed from the shoulders of the municipalities.

There's "no question in my mind," said Haddock, that cities cannot afford to keep paying welfare bills, especially sharp rises like this year, coming like "a bolt out of the blue."

Haddock said he is especially concerned for the high percentage of people in this community on fixed incomes because of retirement.

Haddock said he had not had time to study the report but from early reports "I certainly agree in principle."

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich is out of town and unavailable for comment, but acting mayor Ald. Leslie Passmore said the recommendations of the report are "something that almost every municipality" has been working for.

'LONG PAST DUE'

A reduction of municipal responsibility in paying for education and welfare is "long past due," Passmore said.

He said these costs should not be assumed by the property taxpayer because there is "no connection" between the welfare and education services and property.

Mayor Arthur Young of Esquimalt disagreed only with the emphasis of the report's recommendations.

He disagreed that the province should assume all the costs of welfare.

The total education cost should be paid by the province, Young said.

"It is unfair that the property owner should be stuck with education costs. This is strictly a provincial responsibility."

MOM AT CAMP

Freedom: A Phone For Room Service

Sheer, rotten cowardice caused me to decline an invitation to speak tonight to the Victoria Women's Caucus, the local women's liberation group begun at the university and now spreading its iron wings, but I wish I could change my mind.

Since I gave my fearful "no thanks," my wife and I have spent a weekend at one of the Island's best known resorts and, baby, if there was ever a case for women to violently cast off the bonds of their traditional role it's to be found in that kind of holiday retreat.

The season has barely begun, but already you see the familiar phenomenon of Dad and Mom and the little ones by the seashore, all having the time of their lives —except Mom, that is. Mom may appear, in fact, only on the day of departure when she is helped to the waiting car, sobbing with gratitude at the prospect of a year's convalescence back home.

No other family rite is so calculatingly, cunningly devised to take advantage of the modern form of white slavery called home-making. When the home becomes a damp, cramped cottage, a hundred or more miles from the nearest labor-saving device, when the single modern appliance is a shower that emits a choice of ice-water or live steam, something must give. What gives is Mom. And gives and gives and gives.

Why do women do it? Why, in that stage of planning those precious three weeks of freedom, when Dad ingratiatingly proposes yet another grand family vacation at Camp Bide-a-Wee, don't women shoot Dad between his little stoat eyes with a Webley 30-30 or run away with the mail man or take a slow freighter to Pago-Pago or do something, anything, that will spare them the predictable agonies that lie ahead?

Consider, simply as a clinical case, the sacrificial sex object I will call Mrs. Thing who, with husband and three small children, occupied the cabin next to ours in this brief weekend respite. For her it was the start of a 21-day stretch with no time off for good behavior, commutation of sentence or, short of total collapse, reprieve. Hatchet-murderers are given better deals.

My guess is that, in those two days alone, Mrs. Thing prepared and served no less than 98 meals, a feat of short-order cookmanship seldom equalled outside of a logging camp. The piteous cry of "Mom, I'm hungry," might be heard at regular intervals throughout the two days. Mr. Thing, being an ardent sportsman, was victualled on a schedule determined entirely by the tides on his fishing day and teeing-off time on his golfing day.

In those brief periods when Mrs. Thing was not bent over a hot stove or a sink full of dirty laundry her time was spent entirely as a life-guard valiantly combatting the death-wish and suicidal tendencies characteristic of all small children at any resort.

If the Thing children weren't drifting out to sea on a home-made raft they were pursuing each other with the proprietor's double-bladed axe. When they weren't shredding their little bare feet on the razor edges of the nearest oyster bed they were hanging by their heels from the upper branches of the highest maple. The gods that protect drunks and small children were working over-time and so was Mother standing there at the door, wringing her dish-pan hands and hollering. Why she did not remain inside with a quart of gin and allow them to self-destruct, one after the other, only a woman can know.

But let us draw the curtain mercifully on these all-too-familiar scenes and pause to speculate on this heaviest cross borne by the domesticated, house-broken, un-liberated woman, the reason why the Victoria Women's Caucus is growing, as the saying goes, by leaps and bounds.

It's no good rationalizing that it is simply ignorance or unawareness on the part of the husband. No male chauvinistic pig can be married long enough to have three children without knowing, in his blackest heart of hearts, what a woman really wants—and, God knows, deserves—in that precious three weeks.

★ ★ ★

First, she wants a total, therapeutic separation from the children. Let them be farmed out to some camp or put in a creche or in prison or anywhere, but cut them loose from those apron strings one way or the other for the sake of Mama's sanity and as a reward for Mama's enduring them 49 weeks of the year.

Second, she wants a room without even a remote reminder of a kitchen, a room perferably within strolling distance of a small, charming restaurant that specializes in candle-lit dinners, maybe even with a make-believe Gypsy violinist. Whatever else it has, the room must have a telephone with a direct dial to that one beautiful miracle that every home-maker dreams of: Room Service, glorious Room Service.

That way, however briefly, lies the one promise of liberation that makes sense to the Mrs. Things of the world. All that remains unanswered is why they don't insist on it when all they have to lose are their chains.

Recycling Study Seeks Attitudes

Wanted: 89 people with a car, bike or sound legs, an interest in the environment and a few hours to spare this Saturday.

Call 382-3971 and ask for Paul Baker. Or call the Environment 100 office at 477-8415.

That's the small army Paul Baker needs to distribute 2,000 questionnaires which will measure attitudes and effects of recycling, re-using of materials usually thought of as garbage.

The Uvic sociology student is one of the organizers of the project, which is being sponsored by the federal government's Opportunities for Youth program.

The questionnaire will sample what the public is now doing with various forms of refuse and what it thinks about the comparitive seriousness of various social issues.

Another questionnaire at the end of the summer will provide a matching study.

The 2,000 forms for distribution to householders in Greater Victoria will go out on a random interval basis. That means volunteers will be delivering them to one house in each 25 and that's what takes the time. Each volunteer will be asked to deliver only 20. And the following Saturday he will be asked to pick them up.

Baker says the problem is many young people who normally volunteer are currently occupied with exams. For the study to achieve its aims, the first questionnaire needs to be delivered immediately.

City Police Union Rejects Mediation by Commission

The Victoria Policemen's Union is prepared to accept binding arbitration of its pay dispute — providing it is not by the B.C. Mediation Commission, union members decided Tuesday.

"We only ask that he have equal say in appointing the arbitrator or the arbitrators," the union said in a statement after the meeting.

"The members of the union are convinced that the commission is incapable of dealing with the many complex reasons behind the union's request for parity with their counterparts in Vancouver."

The union said that before March 1, 1969, the Victoria first class constable was paid $24 a month less than the same man in Vancouver.

GAP WIDENED

This gap was widened by a mediation commission binding decision to $48 a month, later narrowed to $34 a month by the city "in order that the morale of the force would not be entirely destroyed."

The Vancouver police were recently awarded a 16.4 per cent pay increase in a one-year contract by an arbitrator outside the mediation commission.

The Victoria union said police here have to meet the same requirements as those in Vancover and "in every other respect" have the same duties and responsibilities.

"He is therefore entitled to the same rate of pay. The recent offer by the Victoria board of police commissioners of 7½ per cent is totally unacceptable.

"Such an increase would result in a differential that would increase to $72 a month as of Jan. 1, 1971, that would widen further to $104 per month on July 1, 1971. This differential cannot be justified."

Building Activity Tops 1970 Totals

Construction activity in Victoria during May was well over last year's figure and building in the first five months of 1971 was the highest in the last six years.

Building permits issued in May have a dollar value of $2,148,125. In May, 1970, the figure was $1,460,907.

The five-month total this year came to $15,107,174 a full recovery from the low 1970 figure of $10,478,376, and better than the high 1968 mark of $14,813, 042.

In Saanich, activity last month remained almost unchanged from a year ago, and the five-month total was down from 1970.

★ ★ ★

Permits worth $1,087,687 were issued in May compared with $1,053,193 in May of last year.

For the first five months, permits worth $5.5 million have been issued, compared with $6.6 million in the same period of 1970.

House construction in Saanich was up, however, with permits issued for 137 dwellings worth $3.4 million this year against 99 dwellings worth $2.3 million last year.

Five permits were issued in Victoria last month for $1,137,000 worth of apartment buildings.

CAR RALLY DEADLINE EXTENDED

Numerous inquries has forced the extention of the deadline for entries in the B.C. Centennial '71 car rally to June 15, the general chairman of the provincial centennial committee Lawrie Wallace said today.

Wallace said over 700 entries have been received for the 4,800-mile rally which begins in Ottawa June 20 and ends in Victoria July 1.

Pedicabs Approved For City

Tourists in Victoria will be able to ride richshaw fashion to Beacon Hill Park and back this summer.

Council's traffic committee approved an application Tuesday from William Brown, 107 Wellington, to operate two "pedicabs" on a route from the Inner Harbor CPR docks through James Bay to Beacon Hill Park and return.

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell told the committee the pedicabs might cause some traffic confusion in the causeway area, but confusion is at such a level already, it probably won't be noticed.

Brown's application argued that if successful, the pedicab operation would employ students and avoid adding to pollution.

The pedicabs are designed to pull two passengers and are fitted with three-speed bicycle gears.

PRIOR TO NEW POLICY

Nitinat Road Approved by Forest Service

A controversial road constructed on the north side of Nitinat Lake on the west coast of Vancouver Island was approved by the Vancouver district B.C. Forest Service office in 1970, a government official said today.

Construction of the road — a stretch of about four miles — near the edge of the lake by B.C. Forest Products has been criticized by conservationists because it despoils the waterfront and its esthetic amenities.

The road issue erupted when John Bruce, chief forester of planning, last week said he never received the road layout plan and didn't know why it had not been sent to him.

NEW POLICY

(Under a new government policy all logging roads are now sent to the chief planner for study with a view to seeing that they don't alienate lake and river frontage.)

But a government spokesman explained today that Bruce did not receive the plan because the road was approved before the new policy was instituted to protect streams and rivers.

"That is the road plan was approved before Bruce was involved in the multiple land-use policy," he said.

"But since the beginning of the year in particular, revisions have been made to incorporate new recreational and multiple land use policies," he added. "Road construction is now under continual inspection by forest rangers."

He said all debris resulting from the road construction at Nitinat Lake is being removed and cleaned up.

At the end of the four-mile stretch, the road will swing back away from the lake and will remain away from it, he said.

He said the road was built along the edge of the lake because it was not feasible to build it up the slope.

John Willows, an executive member of the Sierra Club of B.C., disagrees.

"There are no obstacles there which could not have been overcome," he said.

IT'S BERRY TIME

1,000 Pickers Needed Soon in Saanich

About 1,000 berry pickers will be needed this month to harvest the Saanich strawberry crop.

Canada Manpower officials said today registration of pickers is under way at the Farm Labor office, 614 Humboldt, the old Belmont Building.

Picking is expected to be in full gear by mid-June, but it's no bumper crop, according to Tom Michell, vice-president of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

He said the cool spring and winter reduced this year's crop by about 50 tons.

"On some pastures the crop is good and on others it isn't," he said. "We expect to harvest about 300 tons."

Michell said most of the berries will be shipped to Vancouver for processing into frozen pack. The wine industry also will take some.

MICHELL

Fresh Saanich berries should be available in most stores by Saturday.

Prices growers will receive for their berries has not been determined.

Michell said strawberry growing on the Saanich Peninsula is declining rapidly.

"Land values are so high that more and more farms are being sold for subdivisions," he said. "Apart from that we have to compete with Mexican berries which somehow seem to get into the province in roundabout ways."

He noted that in 1926 the average crop was about 2,000 tons. Now it was about 350 tons.

Minimum picking wage has been set at 90 cents a crate for strawberries and 65 cents for jam strawberries. A good picker can earn about $10 a day.

Eagleson Has Evidence If Raid War Threatens

VANCOUVER (CP) — If National Football League club owners are threatening a raiding war over the fact that Canadian Football League members have been signing up Americans, Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson is ready with an armload of files.

The lawyer, who represents many CFL players in negotiations with club owners, said that if "the NFL ever goes to war about tampering, I've got enough evidence in my files to choke a horse."

He was commenting in an interview on tampering charges by Philadelphia Eagles' coach Jerry Williams over the signing of quarterback Greg Barton by Toronto Argonauts.

"Jerry should know better than to get too upset about Barton. How about all the players the NFL has taken from Canada?" asked Eagleson.

"You can't tell me that NFL teams didn't talk to Bo Scott of Ottawa Roughriders, for example, before he went to Cleveland. And I can tell you a few stories too about how they tried to get George Reid away from Saskatchewan.

"How can they talk about tampering when the owners don't even trust themselves?"

He said it was obvious that Pittsburgh representatives had talked to Jim Evenson, an Eagleson client who signed again with British Columbia Lions of the CFL Monday, when he was still bound by his original contract with the Lions.

The Barton controversy blew up when Williams accused the Argonauts of talking to him before his contract to Philadelphia expired.

Barton, a taxi squad reserve on Detroit Lions for two years before he was traded to Philadelphia in January, had announced in March he was thinking of going to Toronto.

His NFL contract didn't expire until May 1, when the Argonauts formally announced his signing.

LIONS COMPLETE DEAL AS RIDERS SIGN NIXON

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders today announced the final stage in a Canadian Football League deal that last year sent Vic Washington to British Columbia Lions.

Ironically, the Riders announced signing wide receiver Rhome Nixon, 27, the day after San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League announced signing Washington, who played out his CFL option last season.

A Continental League all-star in 1968 and 1969, Nixon played only sporadically with the Lions last season because of an arm injury.

Flyers Pick Fred Shero

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fred Shero, a veteran minor league hockey coach, is the new coach of Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League.

A source close to the Flyers said Tuesday night that Shero will be formally appointed coach at a noon press conference today.

Shero, 46, will succeed Vic Stasiuk, 42, who was fired by Flyer's general manager Keith Allen last Thursday.

Bellies in Romp; Irish Host Adanacs

BILL WALKER

Diary in the day of, a sneak peek at the mail bag, or time is relentless, isn't it?

Yes, members of the NHL star each received $2,000 for a first-team selection, and $1,000 for a second-team pick. Which can become a tidy sum indeed, when added up to the other seasonal bonuses, such as in the case of the subject, one Robert Orr.

Including the $4,000 he received as his share of Boston's first-place finish, and the loser's share in the quarter-final round of the playoffs, Orr collected $10,000 in award money. In five years he has received a total of $43,500 in individual and team bonus money.

And yes, the horse-racing betting parlors are legal in New York, and causing nothing but trouble in Ontario. People are inching toward windows in sterile gloom, making their picks, and then leaving or sitting back awaiting the result. In some places they give a re-creation of the race. But is this the same as the real thing? You can bet your life it isn't. But it's the convenience that is hurting the race tracks, or as the man said: "Oh, I'm going to the track later, I'm making this bet for the boys at the office."

Now that success and money have come in New York, where the parlors run their own book, there is a move afoot to include other professional sports. This is wrong, and should be opposed, even though as the reader suggests "won't it bring everything out in the open?" Guess it will, but with it will come temptation, more temptation than is apparent now. But more on that another day.

●

With Red China involved with the outside empires in a sporting sense, comes the query: "Who were some of the famous ones of this race?" Thats a toughie, but for the moment there's Chi Cheng, the world-class female sprinter, maybe the best of all. From the immediate past there is C. K. Yang, a decathlon star. Then there was Normie Kwong, an all-star football player; Larry Kwong, a professional hockey player, and a golfer called Hsieh Yung-Ho, whatever became of him? In addition there are claims of world record performances from within China. The real answer can only come when Peking decides to send its champions to international competitions.

However, the Chinese may have an approach that is puzzling by Western standards. There was an item a while ago describing a hockey game in which players displayed a rare mental outlook. It went like this:

"Kirin Province's ice hockey team was leading Heilungkiang, 3-0, when both its goalies were injured and forced to leave the game. With seven minutes left to play, and Kirin apparently about to lose its lead, the spare goalie for Heilungkiang picked up a Kirin jersey and skated onto the ice. He displayed the same stubbornness and courage as in playing for his own team, and the score remained unchanged."

Participation, not winning, is the thing in China. Mao had decreed it.

Meanwhile, Memorial Arena vice poobah John Bate dropped by. He suggested that it's not certain yet, but it's likely that Vancouver Canucks may play an exhibition game here this fall. And he also suggested that it's likely, but not certain, that Los Angeles Kings will again do their training here, although the Kings haven't come right out and said so lately. What was that again, John?

●

And "is there much hockey in Australia?" a young caller, intent on making a visit there, requested.

By Canadian standards, no; by Australian standards, yes, is the logical explanation. But last November it was reported that six new arenas were under construction in Adelaide, Melbourne and Brisbane. This, plus the creation of an extensive minor league program, has indicated much more promise for the future. Rugby, tennis, swimming, track and surfing are the prime Aussie sports, so naturally, it is Canadians who make up the nucleus of the club hockey teams down under. Australia is in the "B" pool of world competition? But then so is Canada, isn't it?

Sorry for the delay, but regarding basketball and the heyday of the Ribbons and Dominoes, it was in 1938 that Moose Rogin from Windsor played for Victoria. It was about then, too, that Albert Red Martin was with the House of David basketball team, and that Bill Dale ran third in the 880-yard event of the British Empire Games at the Sydney Cricket Grounds.

Then a note was dropped on the desk. It was CP's "remember when" feature, and it said: "Lester Patrick, the fabled Silver Fox of hockey, died in a Victoria hospital 11 years ago. He was 76."

It was dated June 1.

What history that item engulfed.

Second Place At Stake Here Tonight

Defending-champion New Westminster Salmonbellies gained a little breathing space atop the Western Lacrosse Association standings Tuesday night with a 12-5 romp over host Vancouver Burrards.

Victory brought a four-point bulge over runners-up Victoria Shamrocks and Coquitlam Adanacs, who meet tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Arena in an attempt to settle their deadlock.

Burrards, who are in the cellar with only two wins in nine starts, were blanked in the opening period and only had two goals in the second.

THREE QUICK GOALS

Salmonbellies opened with a seven-goal splurge in the first frame, including three within 25 seconds from Steve d'Easum, Ed Goss and Dave Tory.

Wayne Goss, Walt Weaver, Al Lewthwaite and Dave Matheson each scored twice for New Westminster, Larry Henry notched a single.

WILSON SCORES

An unusually-large crowd of 1,700 turned out, mainly to watch the league debut of defenceman Dunc Wilson, better known as goalie for Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

Wilson managed to score once, fighting off two defenders and faking New Westminster goalie Les Norman, who played a superb game with 46 saves.

Other single goals for Burrards came from Alan Tasker, Spencer Rea, Brent Ojanen and Brian Davidson.

DICK SELMA DISABLED

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Dick Selma, Philadelphia Phillies' reflief pitcher in the National Baseball League, has been placed on the 21-day disabled list because of a strained muscle in his right forearm.

Seaboards Surge Closer to Leader

Two-hit pitching by Glen Bullen helped defeat Strathcona Hotel 4-1 Tuesday and moved Seaboard Construction to within striking distance of first place in the Victoria Major Men's Softball League.

The victory evened Seaboard's record at 4-4, a half game behind Bate Construction and half a game ahead of Strathcona.

The only hits off Bullen were a solo home run by Glen Kilduff in the fifth inning and a single by Geoff Hett in the sixth.

Seaboard's runs came in pairs in the first two innings. Brian Grexton and Bob Lowe hit run scoring singles in the first, while in the second, Wayne Forland singled in Peter Isaacson and scored on a triple by Gary McInnis.

Wadkins Hot Despite Cold

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP) — There is talk about a final between Lanny Wadkins of the United States and defending champion Michael Bonallack of England in the British amateur golf championship which will be decided over 36 holes Saturday.

Wadkins, U.S. amateur king from Richmond, Va., won 6-5 over another American Tuesday even though he had a bad cold.

Bonallack, 35, winner of this title five times, coasted into the third round with two rather mediocre performances. He survived a 19th hole playoff and then scored a 3 and 1 victory in his second round.

"I am just getting my game back," said Bonnallack, captain of the British Walker Cup team that won over the U.S. at St. Andrews last week.

Wadkins was one of the hottest golfers on the course Tuesday, finishing three under par for the 13 holes he needed to eliminate Bob Timbrook, who later commented: "That Wadkins has everything going for him."

Herb Fritz of Vancouver, the lone Canadian here, gained easy access to the second round over CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (Reuter) — The challenge of Herb Fritz of Vancouver in the British amateur golf championship here ended in the second round today.

Fritz came up against Irish International Joe Carr, 49, three-time winner of the event, and was beaten 5 and 3.

Carnousties 6,282-yard, par-72 layout when his scheduled first-round opponent, American Ernie Kerber, scratched from the tournament Tuesday.

Completion of the second round plus the third round today will reduce the field of 256 amateur golfers.

The original U.S. challenge of 65 men, including the 10 Walker Cup stars, has now been cut by two-thirds.

Belmont Fate Won't Stop Canonero Sale

NEW YORK (AP)—Canonero II will be sold after the Belmont Stakes, no matter how he fares in his bid for thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown, Pedro Baptista confirmed today.

"We are listening to the various offers as to money and conditions," said Baptista, who owns the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner but races him in the name of his son-in-law, Edgar Caibett.

"A decision will not be announced until after the Belmont Stakes Saturday. But win or lose, Canonero will be sold after the Belmont. This is provided the price and conditions are those we seek."

★ ★ ★

Baptista, a Venezuelan industrialist, said eight different groups, five from the United States and one each from Venezuela, Japan and England, had offered to buy the Kentucky-bred sensation.

"I hope to retain shares in the colt, whom I believe has great potential at stud," Baptista said. "Even if he is not sold in Venezuela, he will still be available to the best mares in my country."

HORSE'S NAME VETOED, PAPA ACCEPTS JOCKEY

PALMIRA, Venezuela (UPI) — Farmer Celestino de la Cruz Paredes tried to register his newborn son with the name Canonero II in honor of the Venezuelan horse that won both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Authorities refused.

Local authorities said they felt Paredes was carrying his admiration for horses too far and convinced him to name his son Gustova — in honor of hockey Gustavo Avila, who rode Canonero II in both races.

Mill Reef Wins Derby

EPSOM, England (Reuter) — Mill Reef the American - bred favorite owned by Paul Mellon, won the English Derby here today.

The English colt Linden Tree was second and the French colt Irish Ball finished third in a field of 21 runners over the 1½-mile distance.

Geoff Lewis rode Mill Reef.

Mill Reef took the lead on the home stretch and drew away by two lengths to win the first-place purse of £61,625 ($147,900).

CROSS-CANADA CARAVAN

Mini-Basketball Show Goes on Wheels

TOURNAMENT IN VANCOUVER

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Basketball Association is about to put mini-basketball on the national map.

Harry Franklin, CABA executive director, has announced a cross-Canada caravan for basketball players 12-years-old and under that will include a series of exhibition matches and two major tournaments.

The caravan will start June 24 with a Newfoundland team leaving to join a Nova Scotia and a New Brunswick team on their way to exhibition games in either Quebec City or Trois-Rivieres.

From there the teams will head for Ottawa and Almonte, Ont., where an eight-team tournament will be held including teams from the Ottawa-Gatineau area, Montreal, central Ontario. There also will be local teams from the tournament sites.

Almonte was chosen since it is the birthplace of Dr. James Naismith who, in December, 1891, created the game of basketball while at the YMCA college in Springfield, Mass., later to become Springfield College.

The Almonte-Ottawa tournament will be held over the July 1 holiday with the Montreal and eastern Ontario teams continuing west to Winnipeg for games July 3-4.

At this point the caravan starts growing like a snowball with the three teams — Winnipeg, Montreal and eastern Ontario — playing in Saskatoon July 5-6; four teams playing in Edmonton July 7-8; five teams moving to Calgary for games July 10-11; then six teams to Salmon Arm, B.C., for games July 12 and on to Vancouver where an eight-team tournament is scheduled July 15-16 and 17.

For this initial cross-country series, the federal fitness council has been approached to pick up the bill but Franklin is looking hard for a private sponsor to help make the affair an annual event.

Buc Flag Flies 'Mark of Zero'

Pirate Pitchers Record Three Straight Shutouts

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh's swashbuckling pitchers have been leaving their mark on National League hitters . . . the Mark of Zero.

"It's quite a feat," boasted Pittsburgh interim manager Bill Virdon, referring to three straight shutouts and 30 consecutive scoreless innings by the Pirates' new-found strong-arm staff.

It is quite a feat—for Pittsburgh. Before Dock Ellis silenced St. Louis Cardinals 9-0 on three hits Tuesday night, the last time the Pirates put three shutouts together was in 1958 with Ron Kline, Vernon Law and Bob Friend.

Before Ellis, Bob Moose and Steve Blass spun consecutive shutouts over Chicago Cubs.

Houston Astros nipped Atlanta Braves 7-6, Montreal Expos downed Los Angeles Dodgers 5-, Francisco Giants 5-4 in the 2 and New York Mets beat San league's other games Tuesday.

ENDS CARDS STREAK

Ellis didn't overpower the hot Cardinals as he ended their seven-game winning streak.

"You don't have to strike out anybody to win in this game," said Ellis, who struck out four as he won his seventh game in 10 decisions. "I'm relying more on the slider and starting to use a sinker even more."

The sinker and the curve were low Tuesday night and the Cardinals kept battering the ball into the ground.

Actually, it was all over in the first inning when Pittsburgh shelled the Cardinals' Chris Zachary from the hill with five runs.

Cesar Cedeno and Jesus Alou each got four hits and knocked in three runs apiece to pace Houston over struggling Atlanta, which lost its 11th in 13 games.

GETS THREE HITS

Cedeno increased his average 20 points to .216 with the three-hit night. It was his second hot game in a row. He was 3-for-4 against Cincinnati Reds Monday.

A throwing error by third baseman Bobby Valentine permitted Montreal to score two unearned runs in a three-run second inning and the Expos made them stand up for their victory over Los Angeles that snapped a six-game spin.

Dodgers' Willie Davis continued his hot streak, batting safely in his 24th straight game with a fifth-inning single.

Ed Kranepool highlighted a three-run second inning with a run-scoring double and Cleon Jones capped a two-run fifth with an RBI double in the New York success over the Giants.

Maddox Makes Presence Felt

By The Associated Press

Elliot Maddox delivered a pinch-hit single in the sixth inning, then crashed a three-run homer in the bottom of the seventh that provided Washington Senators with a 6-5 victory over California Angels Tuesday night in an American League game delayed 32 minutes by a power failure.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics' Vida Blue won his 11th game, beating New York Yankees 5-2, Kansas City Royals downed Boston Red Sox 4-2, Minnesota Twins trimmed Detroit Tigers 3-1 and Milwaukee Brewers defeated Cleveland Indians 5-3, Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox had the day off.

Maddox, one of the bodies involved in the Denny McLain trade last winter, was on the bench strictly on merit. He had just a dozen hits all year before Tuesday night. The homer was his first of the year, increased his RBI total to eight and lifted his batting average to .177.

The Senators were leading 3-2 when half of the lights went out in Washington's Robert F. Kennedy Stadium while California was batting in the top of the seventh.

17 IN A ROW

Blue retired 17 consecutive New York batters and mowed down the Yankees to run his season's record to 11-2. After the Yanks nicked him for a run in the first, he didn't allow another base runner until the seventh.

In between, Reggie Jackson ripped a two-run homer. Blue struck out six, increasing his total to 108 for 112 1-3 innings.

Kansas City tagged Boston with its third straight defeat and cut the Red Sox' first place edge in the American League East to one game over idle Baltimore.

Amos Otis ripped his third homer in two days and Mike Hedlund limited the Sox to seven hits.

WALKS HURT

Bases-loaded walks to Harmon Killebrew and Leo Cardenas in the eighth inning forced home the tie-breaking runs as Minnesota topped Detroit.

Johnny Briggs drove in three runs—two of them on a sixth-inning homer that tied the score—to lead Milwaukee past Cleveland.

Jolly's Two-Hitter Paces Farmer Win

Pete Jolly hurled a two-hitter Tuesday to pace Farmer Construction to a 6-0 victory over Al's Home Service and sole possession of first place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League at Royal Athletic Park.

The pitching ace had a no-hitter going until Ralph Anderson connected for a one-out single in the sixth inning. Russ Holmes led off the seventh inning with a single for the other hit.

Teamsters Thumped By Bakers

Rick Sylvester proved to be the big gun as Victoria McDonald's Bread thumped Esquimalt Teamsters 20-5 in a South Vancouver Island Intermediate Lacrosse League game Tuesday at Memorial Arena.

Sylvester scored six Victoria goals and assisted on two others while three-goal productions were added by Roger Hill, Don Ferguson and Danny Green.

Keith Treichel and Doug Casperson each scored twice for Esquimalt.

Larry Walsh recorded 31 stops in the Victoria net while his counterpart, Jim Fisher, parried 33 shots.

It'll Be Busy As Clubs Try To Find Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — While president Clarence Campbell admits there is plenty of important business to be conducted throughout next week's National Hockey League annual meeting here, he says it's likely one of the busiest sessions of the Monday-to-Thursday affair will be on the final day.

That's the day of the amateur draft when the 14 NHL clubs draw from this year's pool of 6,869 eligible amateurs in an effort to find potential super-stars that never come their way through the normal channels of the league's intra-league craft.

This year, each club may protect 18 players, plus two goaltenders, when the teams take part in the internal exercise next Tuesday for the new $40,000 asking price—up $10,000 from previous years.

And with the 18-2 limit in effect, and exemptions granted to each club to protect first-year professionals, Campbell feels the trend of future drafts will turn to the amateur aspect.

"You'll find the amateur draft getting bigger all the time," Campbell said Tuesday. "This year could be the biggest in history, and I feel it will continue to dominate for the next few years."

The professional clubs pay $3,000 for each youngster picked — players who attain their 20th birthdays in 1971—and contribute another $3,000 when the player signs a professional contract. An additional $4,000 is paid if the selectee plays 25 or more regular season or playoff games in the NHL next season.

Previous Deals Help Strong Clubs

The possible $10,000 fee is paid by the NHL to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Last year saw the 14 clubs pick 115 players—a record—with 59 turning pro and 11 of them drawing the maximum $10,000 stipend for the CAHA.

The order of selection among the NHL clubs in the amateur draft is conducted in the inverse over-all order of points earned in the 1970-71 schedule, rather than final standings in each division.

However, previous deals by some of the weaker clubs whereby they relinquished their amateur picks for immediate help still leave the stronger organizations in the driver's seat.

Montreal Canadiens for example, own the first choice of California Golden Seals and the seventh first-round pick by Minnesota North Stars as well as their regular 11th-place choice. Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Philadelphia Flyers each have two picks in the first round.

In addition to the all-important intra-league and amateur drafts, two others are scheduled.

The inter-league draft takes place Monday, when the NHL teams draw on the American and Western Hockey League teams for talent at the price of $30,000 for each player drafted.

Wednesday features a reverse draft when the AHL and WHL may pick up players from the major league at a cost of $15,000 in the first phase and $7,500 in the second.

Appeals Against Fines Hot Issue

While Campbell will be preoccupied much of the time with the various player drafts, there appears to be plenty of other business to be taken care of during the meetings.

Probably one of the most contentious issues the governors must deal with will be appeals by Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins against disciplinary fines levied by Campbell against each club.

Both clubs were hit by fines after their players left the benches in two separate incidents to take part in general on-ice melees. The Leafs are appealing a $5,000 assessment, while the Bruins object to the $1,000 fine assessed by Campbell.

In a similar vein, the rules committee will be asked to consider a proposal that will put further teeth into existing regulations aimed tt halting such behavior.

It is proposed to retain the rule that a bench minor penalty be assessed against the team that first clears its bench to engage in an on-ice fight. But in addition, the league president hopes to add sterner measures.

"It will be proposed that the first identifiable player who leaves the bench to engage in such a brawl will be given a game-misconduct penalty," Campbell said. "Further, any additional players who leave the bench and incur a minor or a major penalty as a result, would also be subject to a game-misconduct penalty."

A game misconduct penalty carries an automatic $100 fine, with the league president empowered to take further disciplinary action.

Fun-Loving Ghosts Boast Solid Record

A special blend of professionalism and humorous antics will be on display Friday night at Royal Athletic Park when the touring Iowa Ghosts men's softball team returns to Victoria.

Bell's Men's Wear of the Stuffy McGinnis Major League, scheduled to provide the opposition, will find themselves up against some fun-loving visitors with quite a reputation.

Ghosts have lost only 141 and tied 16 games out of 1,549 starts during their 14 years of touring.

TACKLE CHAMPIONS

The record also shows that the Ghosts have tackled 302 title-holding softball squads and only five times have come out on the short end of the score.

Aside from actual competition the team has also conducted 950 clinics and played 317 benefit games during their visits to 50 states and seven provinces as well as two overseas tours.

But while the Ghosts usually play enough straight ball to defeat their opponents, fans are entertained with unorthodox ball handling, contortions and wisecracks.

Advance tickets for the 8:30 p.m. performance are now on sale at the Memorial Arena box office.

EXPOS CHANGE HURLERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of the National Baseball League announced that pitcher Jim Britton has been activated from the disabled list and pitcher Ernie McAnally has been sent down to Winnipeg Whips of the International League.

POISED FOR ACTION behind wheel of hemi-powered Dodge Dart is California driver Bob Lambeck, who is scheduled to race machine in meet Sunday at Van-Isle Dragways.

American Dragsters At Van-Isle Sunday

Two drivers from "south of the border" will be on hand Sunday to demonstrate their professional skills and hot machines during another drag-racing meet at Van-Isle Dragways.

Bob Lambeck, who is racing out of Hillsboro, Ore., but comes from California, will be pitted against Bill Ireland of Portland, Ore., in the pro-stock class at the Cobble Hill strip.

Lambeck, current northwest division points leader in the National Hot Rod Association, will be making a premiere appearance at Van-Isle while Ireland is returning for the second consecutive year.

While Lambeck campaigns in a 426 hemi-powered Dodge Dart, Ireland fits behind the wheel of a 427 cubic-inch Ford Maverick. And despite the fact that Lambeck has turned the quarter-mile in 9.95 seconds at 132 miles-per-hour, Ireland is still rated a threat with his best of 10.50 at 129 mph.

A full slate of competition for Island dragsters in various classes is also scheduled, starting with time trials at 9 a.m. Eliminations get under way at 1:30 p.m.

Three Marks Fall In Junior Heats

Two of three records set Tuesday during heats for the city junior high school track and field championships at Centennial Stadium were for the same event.

Barry Scroggs of Reynolds established a junior boys' record of 4:20.1 for the 1500 metres while David Cox of Central covered the same distance in 4:39.6 to set a new mark in the midget category.

Brent Taylor of Oak Bay set the other record in the junior boys' triple jump with a fine effort of 41 feet, three inches.

Oak Bay led in qualifiers after 18 events Tuesday with 21, Lansdowne followed with 20 and defending-champion Central had 19.

Heats continue today at 3:30 p.m. and the meet concludes with finals on Thursday, starting at 11 a.m.

Provost Planning Return to Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Provost, who retired from hockey last year after 15 seasons with the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, said Tuesday he would like to play in the NHL next season.

The 37-year-old right-winger said that he is "still in good shape" and he "really missed the game this year."

Provost's desire to play means that he could be claimed from Canadiens roster in the intra-league draft at the NHL meetings here next week.

Ike Lone Victorian On All-Star Squad

VANCOUVER—Ike MacKay was the only player from league runner-up Victoria United selected to the 1970-71 all-star team announced Tuesday by officials of the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Frank Grealy of United was named manager of the all-star team.

MacKay, who led the league with 17 regular-season goals, was picked for the inside-right position while his regular forward slot was filled by George Zambrano of league-champion Columbia.

Selectors failed to select Victoria fullback Ray Telford, who played for Canada in its 3-0 victory over Bermuda on Sunday, for the first team but included him in the second all-star squad.

GRECO OMITTED

Another surprising omission from either all-star side was Columbus goalie Peter Greco, who starred in Canada's shutout over Bermuda.

The first goalkeeping berth went to Mike Gilmore of Vancouver Firefighters, who led the league with 10 shutouts, while the runner-up was Greg Weber of Croatia.

IKE MacKAY

Other all-stars were centre-half Gren Tynett of Eintracht, left-half Ken Legge of North Shore Labatts and inside-left Bill Young of Paul's Canadians.

Others picked were Sam Lenarduzzi and Bruce Wilson of Columbus, Buzz Parsons of Eintracht, Len Brown of Croatia and Gary Thompson of UBC Thunderbirds.

Joseph Csabai of Eintracht was named the all-star coach while Bob Hazeldine of North Shore was runner-up. Peter Mainardi of Columbus was named manager of the second-string squad.

Ali Meets Ellis

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali, former world heavyweight champion, will meet Jimmy Ellis, former World Boxing Association champion, in a scheduled 12-round bout at the Houston Astrodome July 26, it was announced today.

Top Rank Inc., handling the closed circuit telecast, and Astrodome Championship Inc., made the announcement.

Nelson's No-Hit Gem Boosts Langford Lead

Pitcher Mel Nelson took Tuesday's big game in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League and turned it into a no-hitter as first-place Langford Drywall edged Colwood Inn, 1-0, at Heywood Avenue Park.

The victofy gave Langford a little breathing space over Colwood and Bell's Men's Wear, who are tied for second four points behind the leader.

Nelson walked Jack Rowe and Ray Mellings to start the game and appeared in trouble when they were sacrificed to second and third with one out, but he managed to pitch himself out of the jam.

Langford's run came in the fourth inning when catcher Barry Moen doubled, moved to third on a fielder's choice and scored on an error.

Cable Crew Continues Batting Spree

Cablevision Juniors continued their batting spree Tuesday night as they pounded Esquimalt Junior Combos 21-13 to bring the 82 the number of runs scored by the cable crew in three games against Senior Women's Softball League rivals.

Willy de Groot and Penny May of Esquimalt each hit two-run homers for the losers while pitcher Audra Sinclair blasted a two-run shot for Cablevision.

Tillicum Athletic Club bombarded Westendale Constructionettes, 19-6, and Moose Lodge Loyals defeated CFB Roadrunners, 18-5, in other games. Arlene Oldfield and Mary Ward of the Loyals accounted for the only other home runs in the night's action.

ED McQUARTERS
. . . some sight in eye

ACCURATE DIAGNOSIS DELAYED

REGINA (CP) — All-star defensive tackle Ed McQuarters of the Western Football Conference Saskatchewan Roughriders remains under observation in hospital but doctors still are uncertain as to the extent of the eye injury which put him there.

Ken Preston, Rider general manager, says the bandage has been removed from McQuarters' left eye a number of times and there is some sight in it. But an accurate diagnosis won't be possible until the danger of infection has passed.

Doctors earlier expressed concern that McQuarters may lose sight in the eye, injured when a nail he was hammering flew up and struck him in the eye just over a week ago."

Bread Squad Trips Boxers

Victoria McDonald's Bread came from behind to down Saanich London Boxing Club 18-7 in a B.C. Junior "B" Lacrosse League game Tuesday night before 510 fans at Pearkes Arena.

The Bakers, down 3-2 after the first period, led by the four-goal performance of Glen Neuman and three-goal efforts of Jerry Kustaksi and Tom Lavasseur.

Bob Cool led Saanich with three goals and Kevin Alexander added two.

Dennis McLean made 39 stops in the Saanich goal while John Hamilton of Victoria blocked 36 shots.

Indian Housing 'Too Socialistic?'

By JOHN DODD

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The director of a government program that has taken Eskimos and Indians out of tents and tarpaper shacks and put them in oil-heated prefabricated homes is starting to wonder whether the project has become "too socialistic."

In just six years, most Eskimos and treaty Indians in the Northwest Territories have moved into government-built homes at rents as low as $2 a month, including fuel, electricity and other services.

But Roy McClure, administrator of the Northern Rental Housing Program, feels the government may have substituted one set of problems for another.

"The program was designed so the head of the family could get out and do his hunting or his job and not have to worry whether his family was warm and sheltered," McClure said.

"Formerly, it took about two-thirds of a person's time just to exist."

Now many native people may spend two-thirds of their time just existing.

IGLOOS DISAPPEAR

The uncertainty of survival in their former nomadic life has been cast aside for modern permanence and security. But the repercussions are appearing.

The tent, snow house and igloo have virtually disappeared. In their place are subsidized bungalows, designed in southern Canada and resembling the look-alike suburban kind.

The dog team has given way to power toboggans, traplines are seldom taken seriously and annual caribou hunts are often of secondary importance compared with being at home for the monthly welfare cheque.

"I think it's getting to be time for a change now, at least in housing policy," McClure said. "We're getting into a socialistic state sort of thing."

As more jobs are found for the native people in the settlements, the government should gradually move away from the current system of near-total subsidization of homes for Eskimos and treaty Indians.

There could be two substitutes: a move towards the low-income, public housing programs of southern Canada and subsidization of the cost of fuel oil, electricity, water and sewer services — which all cost more in the North.

MIGHT BE CHEAPER

"I think subsidization of services might be cheaper in the long run," McClure said.

"As it stands now, it's pretty difficult to get into home ownership in the Territories when it costs you as much as $70 or $80 a month for fuel oil alone."

The rental homes now being built across the N.W.T. by the territorial government — the federal government still controls housing policy — cost about $14,000 each. A total of 173 were built in 1970 — a big job in a vast area where transportation is a major problem and the construction season is only six weeks long in some places.

Most of the houses contain 768 square feet and have three bedrooms, a furnace, a 250-gallon water tank and indoor bathroom.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT

Planning Area No. 2
(Electoral Areas of Langford, Colwood, Metchosin and View Royal)

ZONING
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem themselves affected by the following proposed by-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard on the matters contained therein at a Public Hearing to be held in the Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School Lunch Room, 3067 Jacklin Road, Langford, Monday, JUNE 14, 1971, at 8:00 p.m.

1. ZONING AMENDMENT BY-LAW, NO. 2, 1971 (Amending Former B.C. Regulation No. 20/67), Langford, Colwood and Metchosin.

A. By deleting from the Rural Zone and adding to the Residential III Zone Lot 1, Section 1, Range 3 West, Plan 15514, Except the Easterly 125 Feet thereof, Highland District, for the purpose of adding to existing mobile home park.

B. By deleting from the Residential I Zone and adding to the General Commercial Zone Lots 2 and 3, Block 1, Amended Map 1739, Section 72, Esquimalt District, for the purpose of office buildings.

C. (1) By inserting in Section 6.02 before the words "except where a side yard abuts a highway . . ." the words "No side yard shall be less than 10 feet measured from the side lot line to the farthest projection of the building," for the purpose of clarifying the side yard definition and setback requirements.

(2) By deleting in its entirety Section 10.02(1) and substituting a new Section 10.02(1) as follows: "The sum of the widths of two side yards for a one family or a two family dwelling shall be not less than 15 feet, and no side yard shall be less than 5 feet, measured from the side lot line to the farthest projection of a building except where the side of a lot abuts a highway, provisions of the Highway Act shall apply," to clarify the side yard definition and setback requirements.

D. By deleting the words "one and two family dwellings" and substituting the words "a one family dwelling or a two family dwelling" in Sections 6.01(m), 7.01(g), 8.01(f), 9.01(g), 10.01(a) and 11.01(d), for the purpose of clarifying reference to residence on a parcel of land in the Rural, Limited Agriculture, Residential, Recreation and Institution and Motel Zones.

E. (1) By inserting in Section 3.02 after the definition community buildings the new definition "'community care facility' has the meaning assigned to it in the Community Care Facilities Act," to provide for a definition of a community care facility.

(2) By deleting in its entirety within Section 3.02 the definition of "rest home," to clarify definition section.

(3) By deleting the words "rest home" and substituting the words "community care facility" in Sections 6.01(q), 7.01(j), 8.01(i), 9.01(k), 10.01(c), 10.11(c), 11.01(g), to provide for community care facility as a permitted use.

F. (1) By adding after Section 6.03 the following sections:
6.04 There shall be not more than one residential building on a parcel.
6.05 Notwithstanding Section 6.04 one additional one family dwelling or one additional two family dwelling for the sole and exclusive purpose of housing employees may be erected on a bonafide farm unit where such farm is 5 acres or more.
Purpose: To permit only one residential building and a residence for employees in Rural Zones.

(2) By adding after Section 7.03 the following sections:
7.04 There shall be not more than one residential building on a parcel.
7.05 Notwithstanding Section 7.04 one additional one family dwelling or one additional two family dwelling for the sole and exclusive purpose of housing employees may be erected on a bonafide farm unit where such farm is 5 acres or more.
Purpose: To permit only one residential building and a residence for employees in a Limited Agriculture Zone.

(3) By adding after Section 9.03 the following section:
9.03 There shall be not more than one one-family dwelling or one two-family dwelling on a parcel.
Purpose: To provide for one residential building in the Recreation and Institution Zone.

G. By deleting the word "principal" in Section 8.03 and 10.03, to clarify the regulations.

H. By adding after Section 4.12 the following section:
4.13 When a zone abuts a highway, right-of-way or creek, the boundary of such a zone shall be deemed to follow the centre line of the said highway, right-of-way or creek, to provide for zones on highways, rights-of-way or creeks.

A copy of the proposed amending By-law may be inspected at the office of the Capital Regional District, Room 210 Burnes House, Bastion Square, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on any weekday except Saturday or Statutory Holidays.

Turkish Extremists Told To Quit or Face Action

ISTANBUL (Reuter)—Justice Minister Ismail Arar urged Turkish extremists to surrender and warned them Tuesday night that another incident like the seizure of Sibel Erkan would bring the strongest possible government pressure against them.

Arar issued his warning only hour after troops and police rescued Miss Erkan, 14, from the apartment where she had been held hostage for 50 hours by two armed men.

As he spoke, the girl, daughter of army Maj. Dincer Erkan, was reunited with her parents and rested in hospital recovering from the strain of her ordeal.

She was unhurt as troops and police suddenly moved in Tuesday morning to take her two captors. One of them died of bullet wounds in an ambulance taking him to hospital, the other was seriously wounded and reported in critical condition.

The feeling of relief that Sibel was safe was noticeable and in marked contrast to the ugly lynching threats from many in the crowds which for two days and nights kept vigil around the building with hundreds of police and a brigade of troops.

TWO ESCAPE

The two men, Mahir Cayan and Huseyin Cevahir, broke into the apartment Sunday morning after an exchange of shots with watchmen who had challenged their identity. Two of their colleagues, a man and a woman, escaped.

At first Cayan and Cevahir also held Mrs. Sevim Erkan and Sibel's 10-year-old brother, Taner, hostage. They released them late Sunday morning but kept Sibel, offering her freedom in exchange for safe conduct out of the country. The authorities refused to bargain.

Cayan and Cevahir were both believed to be connected with the kidnapping and murder May 23 of the Israeli Consul-General in Istanbul, Ephraim Elrom.

When troops and police finally made their move, it was swift. The two men were quickly overpowered, both bleeding from numerous bullet wounds. One was brought down on a stretcher, the other marched downstairs.

The crowds began to rush the barricades and police lines, several hitting Cayan as he was taken to a waiting ambulance. Troops, their rifles pointing toward the crowd, saved him from being beaten to death.

There was much confusion, and there were initial erroneous reports on who was killed and how.

Cevahir died from gunshot wounds and not at the hands of the angry crowd, as at first reported. Martial law authorities first said Cayan—his name was given as Canay in the initial police report—was shot by a sharpshooter and died later.

But Cayan was the wounded terrorist police rescued from the mob.

Legion Sees Member Drop

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Membership in the Royal Canadian Legion will drop by about 60,000 to 240,000 in the next decade, Dominion President J. Redmond Roche of Montreal said Tuesday.

He told the biennial Ontario convention of the Legion most First World War veterans, whose average age is over 75, have ceased to be active in the organization.

Second World War veterans whose average age is 55 will also cease to be active in 10 or 15 years.

Veterans of the two wars, he said, make up the bulk of Legion membership.

"Our members are growing older and there are not enough young ones coming in to replace them."

Opposition Boycotts House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The opposition may not be back in the Newfoundland legislature this session—three are suspended and the others are boycotting the house.

Opposition benches were empty again Tuesday as the legislature considered labor-legislation.

Two Progressive Conservatives and one independent Liberal are serving a three-day suspension for calling the Speaker partial. Other opposition members walked out and may not be back since the session is likely to end today or Thursday.

Expelled for three days were John C. Crosbie (Ind.-L.—St. John's West), William Marshall (PC—St. John's East) and H. R. V. (Val) Earle (PC—Fortune) after they accused the Speaker of favoring the government.

In other legislatures Tuesday, Prime Minister Trudeau was criticized in Toronto for "giving respectability" to communism on his recent Russian trip, and in Winnipeg the prospect of a renewal of a debate on public auto insurance was raised.

In Quebec, the national assembly's committee on press freedom adjourned after a brief meeting attended by only seven of 15 members. The committee will interview witnesses and interested organizations later.

In St. John's, the expulsions followed a punch at Mr. Marshall last Thursday by Premier Joseph Smallwood's son, William, after Mr. Marshall mentioned the premier's wife while reading an article on slum landlords.

In discussing the scuffle on a radio program Friday the premier said he couldn't condemn his son for defending his mother as he did and "I hope he always will."

On Monday Mr. Crosbie said in the house the premier's statements were an incitement for the use of violence in the legislature and asked the Speaker to rule them as a breach of privilege.

After the Speaker ruled against this, Mr. Crosbie said the decision was a "sham and a bluff."

The government majority then passed a motion that Mr. Crosbie be expelled for three days. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Earle were expelled on motions by the premier after both declared the Speaker was not acting impartially.

PROPOSE AMENDMENTS

In Winnipeg the prospect of a renewal of last year's drawn-out debate on Manitoba's public auto insurance plan was raised with introduction of amendments to the act, including the setting up of an appeal board.

Opposition Leader Sidney Spivak said in an interview the Conservatives will take advantage of debate on the bill to seek information on assistance to agents displaced by the plan and a comparison of public insurance rates with private rates.

The plan goes into effect Nov. 1.

At Toronto, John Yaremko, provincial secretary and minister of citizenship, told the house it was "a great tragedy" that Mr. Trudeau had made certain comments that "will equate Canadian democracy" with the system of government in Russia and its satellite countries.

"I strongly condemn Mr. Trudeau's action," he said.

His statements were finally ruled out of order by Speaker Fred Cass after opposition members jumped to their feet in protest.

Mr. Yaremko said he spoke as a private citizen and not as an Ontario cabinet minister.

Crash No. 138

BONN (Reuter) — A West German air force Starfighter crashed into the sea off northeast Holland but the pilot used his ejector seat and was later picked up unhurt, a defence ministry spokesman said. It was the 138th Star fighter to crash since the American-designed plane joined the West German armed forces more than 10 years ago.

SOFT MUSIC HELPS MINERS

CWM, Wales (UPI) — Officials at the Marine Colliery, coal mine outside CWM, said production was definitely up since the mine's radio station began piping in soft music and other entertainment to the 586 miners as they work in the pit.

"The music really helps put the men in a happy frame of mind," pit manager Harold Edwards said.

Sales Tax Up

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP — New Yorkers have begun paying another penny on the dollar on a wide range of purchases as the state sales tax went up to four from three per cent. Many localities impose their own sales taxes of up to three per cent. These levels will remain the same, but the increased state tax means that many consumers will be paying as much as seven per cent on purchases.

Foreign Students May Face Special University Fees

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Science Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Future university enrolment may be limited by imposition of special fees on foreign students and applicants from outside a university's home province.

Dr. P. R. L. Michaud, research director of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, said Tuesday some provinces are seriously considering such a step.

He predicted during a manpower discussion at the Chemical Institute of Canada's annual convention that "provincialization" of the universities will grow now that provincial governments are paying 80 per cent of university operating costs. Only a few years ago they paid half that proportion.

Dr. Michaud said the tendency of the provinces to look more closely at the performance of their universities complicates the co-ordination of higher education in Canada.

There would be a tendency for universities to think in terms of the provincial manpower needs.

Referring to present and future requirements for highly qualified manpower, Dr. Michaud predicted a continuing strong demand until toward the end of the present decade when a levelling off should occur.

The job market, he said, is "sluggish" rather than reflecting a surplus. But surpluses of highly-qualified individuals would occur if current rates of graduation remain unchanged.

Dr. P. D. McTaggart-Cowan, executive director of the Science Council of Canada, suggested that part of the problem of jobs is that graduates expect bigger salaries than they are likely to get.

In addition, professionals had been saying for years the quality of high school teaching needed up-grading but tended to "look down our long noses" at the PhD who went into secondary-school teaching.

Dr. T. R. Gibian, vice-president of W. R. Grace and Co., a large multi-national chemical manufacturing firm, suggested that scientists in industry must concentrate on research into selling products, reducing costs, finding new uses for products and improving products rather than developing new technology that leads to new products.

Dr. J. F. C. Dixon, chairman of the education committee of the Canadian Chemical Producers' Association, said industry had failed to give enough information on future personnel needs to the universities.

Cowichan Ratepayers to Vote On $1.6M Hospital Expansion

DUNCAN — Authority to spend $1,600,000 on hospital projects will be sought in a referendum June 26 by the Cowichan Valley Regional Hospital District.

Most of the money would be used to build a single-storey 100-bed extended care hospital at the old King's Daughters' Hospital site at Duncan.

A total of $300,000 in renovations would be done at Chemainus General Hospital.

The provincial government contributes half of the total outlay.

TAX INCREASE

Ken Noton, Cowichan Hospital administrator, said the projects would increase taxes half a mill — about $4 a year to the average homeowner.

The 148-bed Cowichan Hospital is taxed to capacity and already accomodates about 30 extended care patients. The extended care wing of the hospital accommodates 17 but the rest are scattered throughout the acute care section.

NOTON
... half-mill increase

Noton said extended care patients are "people who are chronically disabled requiring assistance and skilled nursing care, but who do not require the special services of the acute hospitals which are now overloaded."

PUBLICITY

Duncan businessman Keith Miller will be co-chairman of the publicity campaign for the referendum, board members were told. Directors were asked to talk it up about the extended care hospital but if there were any facts they were unsure of, to have the person referred to Miller.

Jack Dobson, chairman of the regional hospital advisory board, said their aim is to be honest with the taxpayers and be open to any questions they may want answered.

A vote on Sunday sports and entertainment will be held in unorganized areas within the regional district on the same day as the extended care referendum.

G. E. Bonner Students Top Meet

DUNCAN — G. E. Bonner Junior Secondary students won five of the seven major awards at a district school track meet Tuesday.

Physical education teachers Beverley Bruce and David Rose said it is the first time the Cobble Hill school, has won without using the handicap system.

Bonner only has 300 students while the two other schools, Mount Prevost and Quamichan, each have about 600.

Bonner winners were: David Garnett, 15, 1500 meter; David Owen, 14, midget boys aggregate; Yeta Dillalla, 14, midget girls aggregate; Kevin Laton, 15, junior boys aggregate; and Linda Gibbs, junior girls aggregate.

Other winners were Lynn Beecroft of Quamichan, girls 800 meter; and Quamichan relay team.

'Hog and Horn' To Highlight Celebrations

Chemainus and Lake Cowichan will hold their centennial celebrations this weekend.

Highlights of Cowichan Lake's events will be a "Hog and Horn" entertainment in the setting of an old English pub; breakfast on the town; and crowning of the Lady of the Lake.

Celebrations here will start Friday at 6 p.m. with a banquet for pioneers followed by the "Hog and Horn" at Cowichan Lake's Centennial Hall. All 436 tickets for these were sold out within two days.

★

SATURDAY: Breakfast on the Town, sponsored by the village and Chamber of Commerce, between 8 and 9:30 a.m.; parade starting at Greensdale Road, south on Shore Road to the Centennial Park at 11 a.m. followed by official ceremonies and further entertainment; at 2 there will be a demonstration by Island Sky Divers from Nanaimo (Kathy Fitzpatrick, 19, of Lake Cowichan will also jump); all afternoon starting at 1 p.m. will be logger sports; at 4:30 Lady of the Lake will be selected from eight contestants; at 9 p.m. the local Kinsmen are sponsoring the Longhorn Stom, a soring the Longhorn Stomp, a Centennial Hall.

★

SUNDAY: A family sports picnic and barbecue as well as a golf tournament at March Meadow Golf and Country Club at Honeymoon Bay.

Chemainus' celebrations will begin Saturday at 10 a.m. with the arrival of the S.S. Beaver with two officers and eight men in Centennial costume aboard. The arrival will be heralded by the MacMillan and Bloedel sawmill whistle and escorted by the Chemainus Power Squadron.

At 10:30 there will be a parade followed by the dedication of a locomotive donated by the local mill and mounted as part of North Cowichan's centennial project.

At noon there will be a barbecue and at 9 that evening a dance at the Chemainus Legion Hall.

Sunday's celebrations will include the Chemainus Western Horsemen Club show at Fuller Lake Arena all day; at 2 an air-sea rescue demonstration and at 4 and 7 p.m. a concert by the HMCS Naden band at the Chemainus Water Wheel.

Impaired Driver Nets $500 Fine

DUNCAN — A 42-year-old Duncan man was fined $500 and his licence was suspended for five months in court here Monday after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told that Joginer Singh Manhas was charged after he hit a girl on a bicycle on the Trans-Canada Highway north of the Silver Bridge at Duncan Sunday morning.

The girl, 14-year-old Evelyn Ann Chambers of Duncan,

TAKEN FROM PHILIPPINE SHIP

Diseased Mongrels Destroyed

CROFTON — Fifteen young mongrel dogs suffering from distemper were destroyed Monday after being taken from the Philippine freighter President Macpagal.

Duncan SPCA inspector Dan Hughes, who had been informed by a private citizen who had been on board, said he does not think there was "intentional cruelty involved but great ignorance."

Hughes said he had contacted the Chemainus RCMP and Canadian customs officers who helped him convince the captain the dogs should be destroyed. All the dogs were in pain, suffering from severe cases of distemper, according to a veterinarian who boarded the freighter.

Hughes said about 12 of the dogs were found in small dirty crates. Left on ship were 27 other dogs and about 49 fighting cocks.

Hughes said without the captain's consent they had no authority to take the dogs. All the dogs had been purchased by crew members at Longview, Wash, to take back to the Philippines.

RCMP Sgt. Karl von Brevern said the people at Longview should have never allowed the dogs aboard the ship without proper health certificates.

"We are not happy to see these dogs come here in this condition," he said.

BOMB SCARE CLEARS PROVINCIAL OFFICES

DUNCAN—Twenty employees were cleared out of the Provincial Building and Law Courts here Tuesday afternoon while police searched for a bomb.

Police were alerted by radio station CKAY which had received a call from a person who said a bomb was set to go off in 27 minutes.

The employees were kept out of the buildings until after 1 p.m.

The caller, RCMP said, sounded like a male between the ages of 18 and 30.

Legion Told to Broaden Base

NANAIMO — The Royal Canadian Legion must begin to look beyond the armed forces for membership if it is to survive, according to national vice-president Robert Smellie.

"We cannot let the legion die but, at the same time, we cannot expect to replenish our ranks by the process of another world war," he said Tuesday in an address to the 30th convention of the organization's Pacific Command here.

He suggested the legion look toward young people as prospective members, "making certain they are aware of the aims and objectives of the legion movement."

The 450 delegates elected Harry Broadhurst of Kimberly as president. He told the convention he is dedicated to improving the welfare of veterans and that his most important job will be to push for implemetation of legislation improving the lot of veterans, including better pensions and allowances for veterans and their families.

In other business, the convention criticized what it saw as a tendency by the federal government to cut back services for Canadian Forces cadets.

Money saved by closing cadet camps, such as the one near Vernon, or curtailing other cadet services, was money saved for "lavish expenditures in the interest of social dropouts, American draft dodgers and deserters, Maoists, and in effect the dregs of society."

STRAWBERRY GLAZED CHEESECAKE

(Serves 10)

Always welcome. For Summer eating top with fresh raspberry or blueberry glaze.

CRUST — 1¾ cups fine graham wafer crumbs (about 20 crackers), ¼ cup finely chopped walnuts, ¼ tsp. cinnamon, ⅓ cup butter, melted.

FILLING—3 well beaten eggs; two 8-oz. packages cream cheese, softened; 1 cup berry sugar; ¼ tsp. salt; 2 tsps. vanilla; ½ tsp. almond extract; 3 cups dairy sour cream.

GLAZE — 1 pint fresh strawberries; 1 cup water; 1½ tbsp. cornstarch; ⅓ cup berry sugar; red food colouring.

Thoroughly mix ingredients for crust. Press on bottom and sides of 9-inch spring form pan. Sides should be about 1¾ in. high. Combine eggs, cream cheese, sugar, salt, vanilla and almond extract, beat until smooth. Blend in sour cream. Pour into crumb crust. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, about 35 minutes or until just set. Cool. Chill thoroughly, about 4 to 5 hours. (Filling will be soft).

GLAZE — Crush 1 cup strawberries, add water and cook 2 minutes, sieve. Mix cornstarch with sugar and stir into hot berry mixture. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until the mixture is thick and clear. (Add a few drops of food colouring if desired). Cool to room temperature. Place remaining strawberries on the top of chilled cheesecake; pour glaze over. Chill about 2 hours.

India Emissary Blames Refugees

The arrival in India of more than 2.5 million refugees seeking protection from "atrocities" of the Pakistani army is endangering the success of Prime Minister Indira Ghandi's plan for economic development.

Amarbandhu Raychaudhuri, first secretary for information and culture with the High Commission of India in Ottawa, was in Victoria Tuesday. He is seeking help from the Canadian people for his government.

He calls the influx of so many refugees a disaster for the Indian economy.

Raychaudhuri pointed out that Mrs. Ghandi won an overwhelming majority in the election last March on the development, which promised basis of her plan for economic the poor and unemployed a better deal.

"The massive exodus of refugees from East Bengal can mean that the prime minister will be unable to keep her election promises," he said.

Raychaudhuri said Mrs. Ghandi spoke to the Indian parliament May 24 on the tragedy of Pakistan.

She said that for 25 years India had never interefered in the internal affairs of Pakistan even though they had not exercised similar restraint, her emissary said. But what has actually happened?

"What was claimed to be the internal problem of Pakistan has also become the internal problem of India. . . .

"For us it is an intolerable situation. The fact that we are compelled to give refuge and succour to these unfortunate millions cannot be used as an excuse to push more and more people across our border."

Raychaudhuri is touring Western Canada to acquaint the Canadian people with the magnitude of the problem facing his government.

He said that within the next few weeks the number of refugees in India is expected to exceed five million.

The estimated cost to India for shelter and relief for the three million refugees already in the country is estimated at $197,460 million for the first six months.

Raychaudhuri is asking Canadians and East Indian Associations for support for Mrs. Ghandi's appeal to the world community for funds and UN help to settle the issues in Pakistan.

He said several countries, including Canada, have pledged their help, but that the most important thing will be to bring about a political solution in Pakistan through the force of world opinion so that the refugees may return to their homes.

EXOTIC DANCER and a show of India fashions will be part of the entertainment at the East Indian banquet to be held Saturday by the Victoria Cultural Association of India and Canada, St. Andrew's Hall, 1012 Pandora Avenue. P. K. Samal, joint secretary of the ministry of foreign trade, comptroller of imports and exports, and K. V. N. Menon, trade commissioner of India, will be special guests. Fashions will be from the Carnaby Street Boutique. Left to right are: model Beverly Grooms, dancer Nina Bains and model Rashna Charania.

St. John Shows How To Survive Summer

Nobody goes to a cottage to sit around being alarmed at things that might go wrong. But summer and summer activities do sometimes involve people in situations where there is no medical help immediately available, and someone should know something useful to do fast.

St. John Ambulance has tips available, and courses to back them up in many cases.

The two-hour course here, called the Save-a-Life Program, is available from St. John Ambulance, 941 Pandora Avenue.

The program is not taught at the centre. James A. Tyre, secretary-treasurer for St. John Ambulance here, gives the course in schools and to other interested groups.

Anyone interested may join a group already in progress or form one of their own.

The free two-hour class in artificial respiration to teach techniques to use if someone has stopped breathing be eause of immersion in water, choking, shock, exposure or smoke inhalation.

They recommend starting this immediately without looking for help, without moving the victim unless it's necessary to protect him from more harm. Then, they add:

* * *

Put him on his back, put padding under his shoulders if there is a towel or coat available. Be sure his access to air is not obstructed. Pinch his nostrils and put your own mouth on his to form a tight seal. Blow into his mouth so his chest rises. Turn your head and watch his chest fall.

Take another breath and repeat every three to five seconds for an adult, a little more frequently for a child.

If the victim is a small child or an infant, only small puffs of air should be sent into his mouth to avoid damage to his lungs.

Casual meals and hot weather can combine with poor refrigeration and food handling to create food poisoning.

It usually shows in a few hours in nausea, abdominal pains or diarrhea. If the food was not clean, symptoms may start with a chill and develop into a fever.

The victim should be given simple hot liquds such as tea. If the suspected source of food poisoning came from a store or restaurant, it should be reported to health officials who can take action.

If abdominal pains are severe, they might indicate some other medical problem that should be referred to a doctor.

You should be careful with water, also. If you are not positive it is safe for drinking, boil it. Ice cubs should be made from boiled water.

Someone who has drunk contaminated water feels desperately ill suddenly, has a high fever and cannot keep solid foods down. He should be put to bed, given clear fluids and examined by a doctor as soon as possible.

* * *

Tanning should start gently —with a 20-minute session, gradually increased. Late afternoon and early morning sun is kindest because ultra violet rays are filtered through a greater depth of atmosphere.

Cold cream, olive oil, petroleum jelly or cool wet compresses ease the pain of sunburn. If it is severe, see your doctor.

Someone who has sunstroke may suddenly develop headache, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, cramps. He may collapse. His face is pale and sweaty and his pulse weak.

Get him into a cool place. If he is conscious, give him cool salted water to drink — half a teaspoon of salt to a pint of water. If he is cold, keep him comfortably warm and watch him for heat stroke.

Heat stroke is a dangerous condition that may come suddenly or develop from sunstroke. The body temperature may rise rapidly and it is imperative to lower it. Put the victim in the coolest place possible remove his clothes, sprinkle him with cool water or wrap him in a wet sheet and fan him.

When his temperature drops, put him in a dry sheet and continue to fan. When he recovers, treat him as you would a sunstroke victim and keep him under observation.

An insect sting can be serious. If a child has an unsuspected allergy, the first warning may be a swelling and discoloration of a bite.

When an allergy is known or suspected, or for any stings or bites in the mouth, it is advisable to see a doctor.

If a stinger is visible, it can be removed by indenting the surrounding skin and scraping across it with a sterile instrument.

For an irritating insect sting, apply a paste of baking soda and a clean, dry dressing.

The Ex-Service Women's Branch No. 182, Royal Canadian Legion, will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Britannia Auditorium, 1616 Blanshard Street.

The Victoria Rebekah Past Nobel Grands' Club will hold a Centennial rose tea and bake sale Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Douglas Street.

More Families Using Clinics For Planning

Family planning clinics in B.C. have had a gradual increase in clientele during the last two years, says Family Planning Association president Mrs. Mary Bishop.

In 1969, clinics had 2,006 patient visits, in 1970 more than 4,000. This year's total is expected to exceed 5,000, Mrs. Biship told the Victoria chapter of the FPA.

She said the association is considering establishment of a central purchasing agency that would distribute contraceptives at lower cost than present retail outlets.

The association supports a recommendation by the Royal Commission on the Status of Women that abortion be made available to any woman pregnant for 12 weeks or less.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Fearful Wife

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I get along fine, but I have a problem I can't talk to anyone about because this is a small town and if this ever gets out it might hurt him in a business way.

I've heard about some people having far-out hangups on sex, but listen to this: My husband gets excited if he can pretend that some part of his body is missing. One time he wants me to pretend that one of his legs is missing. Another time he pretends that one of his fingers is missing. Lately he asks me to pretend that one of his eyes is gone! He feels no guilt or shame when he asks me to go along with this pretending game.

I don't know why he should get turned on by pretending that a part of his body is missing, but he does. I find this weird and sometimes frightening. I never have refused to play his game for fead his mind will snap and he will harm me. Do you think he's dangerous? Ask one of your doctor friends and let me know.—Worried

DEAR WORRIED: Fetishes (and this is one) are usually harmless if both parties derive a mutual enjoyment from them. But if your husband's "something missing" game is causing you fear and anxiety, discuss it with a doctor and take his advice.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have two sons. One is 2 years old and the other is nearly a year old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, children and responsibilities!

My mother has offered to stay with the boys for the one weekend we will be gone. My husband thinks we should take the boys to show them off. He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if I leave them home. What do you think?—Needs A Rest

DEAR NEEDS: I think it will be unfair to you if he insists on taking them. And he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minuites, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. I should think a wife would be tickled pink to be able to go through her husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners or putting the washables into the machine.

Most women have to wait until their husbands are asleep before they can get into their pockets.—E. C. Stillwater, Ok.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Space-Saving Ideas For a Young Bedroom

By PAULINE GRAVES

If lack of space is one of your decorating problems, consider the solutions available to you.

Double-duty furniture saves floor space, because one piece functions as two. Also, a room looks larger with a minimum of furniture. On the question of scale, most agree that small scaled furniture shows off a small room to best advantage. And glass and mirrors offer another alternative because they render walls practically non-existent.

Shown here is a young girl's room that exemplifies mot of these solutions, the room designed by Darrell Howe. First, the headboard doubles as a bookcase, putting to use space above the bed that normally would be wasted.

Beside the bed and stretching under the window, an eighteen inch deep ledge functions both as desk and as bedside table; another doubling up process. And these two manoeuvres reduce the number of furniture pieces in the room by two.

Regarding scale, the room qualifies with a narrow bed consisting of mattress and box springs only, and with the ledge, painted the color of the wall, instead of a heavy desk. The lack of legs on the ledge makes for a light look, too.

Mirrors, in case you hadn't noticed, line the backs of the shelves, giving depth to this corner of the room, another space illusion that always works. The one bright busy pattern is the fabric used on the spread and portions of one wall, enough to spark up the room without crowding.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Uniform Traffic Laws Urged

By SUSAN BECKER

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada needs uniform traffic regulations, delegates to the annual meeting of the National Council of Women of Canada has agreed.

They decided to urge the federal government to discuss a uniform system, incorporating international travel signs, with the provinces which would then pass legislation needed to enforce it.

The Toronto council, which proposed the resolution, said strong efforts are needed to cut highway accidents. It was confusing for a motor vehicle operator to have to obey laws varying in different regions.

The subject was razed dramatically at the council's meeting when a delegate dumped copies of provincial traffic codes on the floor to protest the lack of a uniform code.

The council is a federation of local and provincial councils and other organizations representing about 750,000 women.

The more than 80 delegates at the meeting also want the federal and provincial governments to make available more community-approved and supervised youth hostels from May to October.

However, they rejected a proposal by the White Rock, B.C., council, which would have asked the government to replace socal assistance by employment camps where young persons would work for food, lodging and clothing if needed.

Some delegates said the proposal did not give enough details about the type of work and supervision such camps might have. Others said many communites are facing a substantal influx of young travellers and action is needed immediately to establish a firm policy on transient youtht.

The counel wants the government to put some restrictions on the sale abroad of Canadian historical objects that cannot be replaced.

The Moncton, N.B., council, which proposed a rpsolution to this effect, said that in the past some Canadian cultural treasurers have left he country.

National council members also expressed concern about the need for increased showing of Canadian documentaries in movie theatres. Canadians were not getting full benefit of fine films produced through the Canadian Film Development Corp. and the National Film Board.

Mrs. Mary Craig Schuller-McGeachy, of New York, president of the International Council of Women, told delegates that councils of women are an essential element of efforts to develop countries since they are concerned with the quality of life.

Metric System Backed by NCW

HALIFAX (CP) — The National Council of Women of Canada has expressed its support for eventual conversion to the metric system.

More than 80 delegates to the council's annual meeting voted to commend the government for promoting discussion about conversion from the present inch-pound system to the decimal system of weights and measures used extensively in scientifc research and in many other countries.

The council is a federation of local and provincial councils and other interested societies.

Mrs. John Hnatyshyn of Saskatoon was re-elected president of the council. She is the first council president from Saskatchewan.

She and Mrs. M. C. Schuller-McGeachy of New York City, president of the International Council of Women, accompanied a delegation fron the Nova Scotia Council of Women to present a brief to Premier Gerald Regan.

The provincial delegation told the premier they support family-planning programs, consumer education in schools and the appointment of more women to government boards and commissions.

The premier, in turn, delighted them with word that Sandra E. Oxner, 29-year-old city solicitor for Halifax, has been appointed the first woman judge in the provincial magistrate's court. Miss Oxner has served as chairman of the laws committee of the provincial council of women for three years.

Volunteers Try Three-Day Week

EDMONTON (CP) — Nine civic employees are working three-day weeks in an experiment that could spread to other employees if it is successful, city commissioner Dr. Peter Bargen said Tuesday.

The nine, in the training and testing division of the personnel department, have been working about 11 hours a day since May 10 with four days off each week.

Dr. Bargen said in an interview that the program will be assessed in September and it is still "too early to tell how it's working out."

Those involved in the experiment are not members of a civic union and therefore free to volunteer, he said.

"The program enables us to try out the idea and also permits us to put on evening classes for our people who might want upgrading or retraining."

Adopting a longer work day with a shorter work week throughout the administration would require changes in labor legislation and union contracts, he said.

"We know what statutory roadblocks are in our way and we are not prepared to meet them yet.

"We're interested in the human reaction to 11 hours of working a day. We want to know the effects on family life and recreation and a number of other things."

The nine employees start work at 8 a.m. and continue to 9 p.m. with two breaks for lunch and supper as well as coffee breaks.

Pregnant Women 'Kicked Out'—MP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grace MacInnis has blasted the Vancouver Board of Trade for its stand against the inclusion of pregnancy benefits in the new unemployment insurance legislation.

"There's no use saying women have an equal chance, if they are kicked out when they get pregnant," Canada's only women MP told the board's weekly luncheon.

"And you must remember that getting pregnant is not entirely the women's fault."

The board recently sent a telegram to Ottawa saying pregnancy and sickness benefits "have no place in the program of unemployment insurance."

Mrs. MacInnis, New Democratic Party member for Vancouver-Kingsway, said:

"I know you're not the only sinners. There are others who still think a woman's place is in the home."

Straight A Blind Girl Wins a Key

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Leslie Hutchings, who will graduate with a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Utah Saturday, wrote her senior honors thesis on a classic French love story involving a blind girl.

The subject appealed to the 21-year-old green-eyed blonde because she, too, is blind.

Leslie, who gradually lost her sight in elementary school because of deterioration of the retina, has devoted more than 40 hours a week to her French honors studies during the last four years.

Doing her homework from tapes, records and braille, she has acquired mostly As.

Academic excellence is nothing new for the co-ed from Bountiful, Utah. She graduated with straight As from high school, ranking seventh in a class of 400.

Leslie hopes to teach French and has applied for a job in several of Utah's smaller school districts.

HOUSEWIVES PEEL

Stripper Opens School

By WILLEM VUUR

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Mrs. Geeske Kop, better known as Cocco Maruu, "vedette internationale du striptease," teaches housewives the art of keeping their husbands home at night.

More specifically, she teaches the striptease in belief a lot of marriages go down the drain through a lack of fantasy and that her art will "put some of the adventure back into the marriage."

The theory did not work too well in her own case. Cocco is divorced from a Yugoslav musician and explains, "Stage people should never marry each other — it simply doesn't work."

Cocco, 31, has been playing her art all over the world, from Tokyo to Damascus, for the past 10 years.

"Over the years I've been struck by the number of men who have said they wouldn't need to come to strip clubs if their wives knew how to put on a show at home," she said.

She decided to go into the business but refrained from advertising "because it could have given the impression something shady was involved. But she did discuss her plans wth a friend on a radio program.

"Hundreds of letters started coming from all over the country," Cocco told UPI.

"But I decided to start with a group of Amsterdam applicants to see how it would go.

"I teach them for one hour a week and I charge five guilders ($1.40) per hour. It doesn't give me much of a profit but I'm flattered that these housewives can learn something from me."

The room where the lessons are held is so small that the six women in each lesson group have to leave most of their clothes in the corridor. Inside, where a red light burns dimly, the housewives — aged between 24 and 47 — practice to music from a record player.

Cocco says she avoided getting a bigger and better-lit studio "because you've got to have a bit of atmosphere. I don't think the ladies could be tempted to strip anywhere more modern."

The 12 pupils include the wives of an office clerk, an insurance salesman, a schoolteacher, a shopkeeper and similar white-collar workers.

"I had my first lesson today," Mrs. S. told UPI. "I'll definitely come again because it's great fun. I used to think I was rather lithe because I've done a lot of gymnastics and other sports. But now I know I never walked properly to start with.

"I'm confident my husband will applaud my efforts," she said.

Mrs. Linda R. said "the only problem is I should not have told my friends. They gossip about me for doing this, but I'm not going to let it stop me."

Cocco plans to issue each of her pupils eventually with a diploma certifying that she knows how to strip.

$47,400 in Buried Gold Paper Found

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Police reported the discovery of $47,400 in gold certificates. They had been buried possibly for 35 years. The owner is unknown and police were checking the serial numbers to see if the certificates were stolen. All gold certificates, widely used as cash in the United States earlier in the century, were recalled in the mid-1930s when the U.S. went off the gold standard.

INSATIABLE CRAVING FOR FOODS

'Pica' Abounds, Says Scientist

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is more pica around than medical science now suspects, argues Dr. William H. Crosby, a Boston blood specialist. Two women of his professional acquaintance demonstrated this. One nibbled 10 bunches of celery every day. The other chrewed 12 packs of gum a week.

What's the connection? Pica is a craving for strange or unnatural foods. The classical examples are people who eat clay or starch. A tragic example is ghetto children who eat flaking lead-based paint.

In recent years doctors have become aware of insatiable ice-eaters.

Crosby wants doctors to accept that pica includes voracious appetites for quite ordinary foods. People are inclined, out of shame, to hide such appetites.

That's important, because it is now established, in Crosby's view, that pica is almost always caused by iron deficiency anemia which is readily curable.

Why iron deficiency has this particular result remains mysterious, he said in Archives of Internal Medicine, a journal of the American Medical Association. The perverted appetites are "not compensatory since the materials eaten are not rich in iron."

Nor are they psychological "because the craving disappears when the iron deficiency is treated."

And how can they be "cultural," he asked, when year-old babies have a milk pica and in consequence iron deficiency because they refuse all food except milk?

Yet baby doctors may call such babies "milkoholics," not recognizing pica, he said.

Iron deficiency is most common in children and women, but more men would turn out to have it if doctors asked the right questions to expose pica or if the man "ashamed of his absurd craving" didn't evade the casual medical question.

He urged doctors to search for pica and to be highly suspicious of any hint of it. Upon hearing a child returning home from a hospital stay promise herself a 50-cent bag of potato chips, Crosby ordered an immediate blood test. Her potato chip passion was cut short by correcting her iron deficiency.

Everyone knows about the cravings for strange foods some pregnant women have, he said, but if all pregnant women were guarded against iron deficiency, no more husbands would be sent out at 2 a.m. to find pickles or strawberries.

Crosby wrote for a medical audience aware that correcting iron deficiency is not a hit-or-miss affair. There are perils in self-treatment, in the absence of precise blood analysis.

Iron intake must not exceed the capacity of blood serum to "bind" it.

If the intake is too large, the taker is poisoned.

Saving a dress for another season by adding a little length can not only save money but add zip to the dress as well. It is important to remember that the hem must have the correct weight to hang correctly. You simply can't let the entire hem down without adding a hem finish or a trim to achieve this.

There are three types of hem facings available, the bias hem facing of cotton to be used for cotton fabrics, cotton blends, and heavier type fabrics. Acetate hem facing is ideal for wools and wool blends plus synthetics, and silks. Lace hem facings are especially ideal for knot fabrics because of their stretch qualities.

Be sure to remove old seam binding and stay stitch or overcast near the edge to avoid raveling. Launder or have the garment dry cleaned to remove crease line. If crease can't be removed, add some decorative trim as a disguise.

There are many attractive solutions to the additional length. We shall discuss a few; let your imagination run wild. You may add as much as a 6-inch piece of compatible fabric to your garment by cutting above the hem and adding a compatible fabric and using decorative trims to each side of the joining. The same trim should be repeated again at the waist, neckline or sleeves for continuity.
or sleeves for continuity.
your garment with the same trim you intend using for the hem, it must be flexible in order to lay smoothly around the curved edge.

If you have printed cottons or solid linens, cottons try the very heavy Venice lace and let it extend beyond the finished hem of the dress. This type of dress was made famous by one of our designers and is a very feminine trim.

If you have the figure for it, slit your dress to the waist at the side seam, and add contrasting shorts for a more sporty look. It's fun to work with trims. It's also fun to have a truly original dress.

Tito Shopping for Arms

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia is organizing a people's army and shopping for sophisticated Western weapons as insurance against pressure from the Soviet Union.

President Tito and other Yugoslav officials will not say publicly that they fear an invasion by the Russians, who oppose this country's independent economic and international policies.

But there was little doubt of the intention of Tito's organization of a partisan-style territorial army after the Soviet bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Now envoys are going abroad to look at Western military hardware to diversify the arsenal for Yugoslavia's 250,000 man armed forces.

Nixon Urges Soviets to Slow Arms Shipments to Mid-East

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon urged the Russians Tuesday night to show military restraint in the Middle East, warning that large-scale deliveries of weapons to Egypt would open a new arms race and sharply increase the danger of war.

Nixon addressed his appeal to the Soviet leaders when he discussed the new 15-year treaty between Cairo and Moscow at a televised news conference.

He said the treaty, signed in Cairo last Thursday by Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, would not discourage U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East, and he acknowledged that he did not know whether it would be followed by new Russian arms aid for the Egyptians.

His warning about a possible new arms race indicated he was prepared to step up American military aid to Israel to prevent the military balance from swinging to the Arabs.

In other areas during the 30-minute session, the president said:

—The administration soon will announce a four-front "national offensive" against drug abuse and narcotics addiction.

—Easing curbs on trade with China will be announced June 10 and a policy regarding a seat in the United Nations for the Peking government will be formulated in about six weeks.

—No foreign travels are planned in the near future but the president will pack his bags if it becomes necessary to promote an East-West troop cut in Europe or an American-Soviet accord on arms limitations.

The president said the United States will consider negotiating with Soviet Union on mutual troop reductions in Europe after Washington has consulted with Atlantic Alliance leaders.

—Any agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting offensive weapons might be handled first as an understanding, rather than as a treaty requiring Senate consideration.

But any agreement curtailing anti-ballistic missiles—defensive weapons—would be a much simpler matter and might be subject to a treaty, Nixon said.

On the home front, Nixon said any new efforts by anti-war demonstrators to disrupt the government should be met by the same police tactics used here last month.

The thousands of protesters who took part in the May 3-6 "Mayday" protests were "vandals and hoodlums and lawbreakers" whose rights nonetheless were protected, Nixon said.

Paper Urges Canada To Refuse Passports

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuter) — Tanzania's government-owned newspaper The Standard suggested today that Canada should refuse passports to Canadians planning to settle in Rhodesia.

It was commenting in an editorial on advertisements which it said had been placed in Canadian newspapers by the Rhodesian regime, wooing Canadians there.

The paper remarked on Tanzania's friendly relations with Canada and recalled how President Julius Nyerere last year singled out Canada as one of the developed Western countries which aids Africa economically without any interest in extending power politics to the continent.

But friendship between governments could not prevent a Canadian from emigrating to Rhodesia.

"If the emigration means immigration into another country in which it will contribute to the oppression and misery of human beings, then the government of the source country has the responsibility to curb its citizens," The Standard said.

It suggested the banning of the advertisements in question, public disapproval of emigration with a view to settling in Rhodesia, and "refusing or withdrawing passports from people with such aims."

The Standard said the immigration of skilled people to Rhodesia was an economic factor which fell under the category of United Nations voluntary sanctions against the regime.

"Nothing binds Canada to apply sanctions which are voluntary," the editorial concluded.

"Nothing that is except humanity, from which springs the meaning of our friendship."

Can't Give Money Away

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Two college co-eds, one dressed as a hippie and the other fashionably attired, have learned it is difficult to give away money.

As part of a sociology class experiment at Transylvania University, Nancy Parker, 19, and Missy Gorman, 20, spent 45 minutes on a busy downtown street Sunday trying to pass out quarters.

Miss Parker, dressed in an army fatigue jacket and wearing wire rim glasses, an Indian headband and moccasins, was able to give away only 25 cents. Mrs. Gorman, dressed in a pants suit, found three takers.

EAST PAKISTAN—WHAT HAPPENS NOW?

Scar of Deep Suspicion to Remain for Years

By RALPH JOSEPH

TEHRAN (CP) — Where do the Pakistanis go from here?

This is the big question in this neighboring Iranian capital as observers consider these factors: The civil war in East Pakistan is virtually over, its economy is in ruins with famine lurking on the horizon, its prime minister-elect is in jail, the majority party banned and the scar of deep suspicion divides the two parts of Pakistan more thoroughly than the 1,000-mile physical distance between them.

From the looks of things some sort of mantle of office is about to fall on Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto, leader of the Pakistan People's Party, who performed the magic of keeping a minor political controversy alive even while the civil war was raging and strict martial law had stunned all other politicians into silence.

Bhutto has suggested — not directly, but by a series of clever nuances — that power should be transferred to a civilian government before July 1, when the country's next budget becomes due.

He has even indicated a willingness to share power with President Yahya Khan, who heads the present military government.

LACKS UNDERSTANDING

Bhutto has the feel of the West Pakistani mass mind, but so thoroughly lacks an understanding of Bengali feeling and thinking that he was unable to sink roots for his party in East Pakistan and did not put up even a single candidate there for last December's elections.

The last time he visited East Pakistan he had to have a private guard of Pakistan People's Party volunteers carrying sub-machine-guns. As of now, he does not appear keen to revisit the place.

If power is transferred to him in the western provinces, the colonial character of the eastern wing is going to be more emphasized than it has ever been before.

Even if Bengalis are taken back into their civilian posts, as many probably will be, the West Pakistanis are going to be wary of putting guns into Bengali hands again.

The revolt of the East Bengal Regiment, which appears to have sparked off the civil war this spring, will always be brought up as an argument against this.

The regiment, which was formed long before the crisis developed to answer the criticism that Bengalis were not properly represented in the army, mutinied around the time the West Pakistan federal troops were landing in Chittagong.

They murdered all their West Pakistani officers, and the details of the story gradually trickling out are gory.

Other incidents may have closed the doors permanently to Bengalis in other parts of the armed forces.

As another story is told in Iran, after the East Bengal Regiment's mutiny a group of 120 commandos from West Pakistan were dropped in the Chittagong area.

One of them, who happened to be a Bengali, defected to the secessionists and informed them about the positions of the others.

The secessionists moved in, captured all 119 of the commandos and butchered them. There were no prisoners.

With small chance of the regiment being revived, and with the border police known as the East Pakistan Rifles having lost the confidence of the government, West Pakistan is going to have excuse enough to keep the federal army stationed in the eastern province more or less permanently — much like an army of occupation.

As a result of their brutal action when they began hitting back, the West Pakistanis now are about the only armed men left in the province. Civilians, including key executives, do not feel it safe to return to their old posts.

LIFE ON SAVINGS

Indeed, a large number of East Pakistan families are still lingering in and around Karachi, trying to make up their minds to return to the east.

They fled from the province before the fighting began, and have been living since then on whatever savings they were able to bring with them.

The colossal economic crisis the country is currently encountering may have to be lived through for several years. Pakistanis have a way of roughing it, and after all did survive when the country started from scratch in 1947.

But how long it will take to overcome the colossal crisis of confidence and understanding between the two wings — or whether the crisis will be overcome at all — is still anyone's guess.

Ralph Joseph, a long-time resident of West Pakistan, now is reporting from Iran.

Journalism Standards Under Study

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Managing Editors' Conference has set up a committee to determine how it can best operate on a year-round basis to improve standards of journalism in Canada.

The decision to establish the committee, with W. T. Galt of Vancouver Sun as chairman, was reached here Saturday at the closing session of CMEC's annual conference.

The committee was asked to report back to the conference's executive committee before the fall meetings of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association in Victoria in September. One suggestion was that CMEC might offer to collaborate with CDNPA in efforts to improve professional quality.

The Canadian Press, in a story Saturday, erroneously reported that the committee was established to get in touch with organizers of the recent Media 71 conference in Ottawa to plan a second such conference.

In fact, the editors asked that CMEC directors — not the committee — get in touch with Media 71 organizers and express approval of interest in improving journalism standards.

Rail Routes Abandoned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has approved discontinuance of three rail passenger service routes and has ordered continuance of four others in Ontario and Alberta.

The decisions announced Tuesday followed evidence presented at public hearings last winter in Edmonton, Lethbridge, Windsor, London, Peterborough and Toronto.

Ordered discontinued are CNR service between Camrose and Calgary, the CP Rail Calgary-Lethbridge-Medicine Hat route and the CP Rail Toronto-Windsor run.

The commission ordered continued and increased runs on the CP Rail self-propelled dayliner service between Calgary and Edmonton.

Others ordered continued were CNR Edmonton-Camrose-Drumheller, CP Rail Toronto-Peterborough-Havelock and the CNR Toronto-Markham.

Protesting MP Can't Afford to Refuse Pay Raise

NOWLAN
. . . needs the money

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the first MPs to take the pledge of abstention from proposed parliamentary pay boosts went off the wagon Tuesday, sayng he can't afford the gesture.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) reversed his tracks as the Commons took another step towards increasing numbers' salaries to $18,000 from $12,000 and non-accountable expense accounts to $8,000 from $6,000.

The bill, which would give Senators equivalent pay increases and raise their expense allowances to $4,000 from $3,000, was passed at report stage in preparation for debate scheduled for today on third and final reading.

Members from all parties later criticized the quality of postal service being offered in relation to a proposed price increase on stamps for first-class mail, but government members prevented passage of an amendment that would have killed the bill containing the increases.

HE REPENTS

Mr. Nowlan said he repented having said he would give up the salary increase.

"I went too far, and I admit it."

He had always been in favor of parliamentary pay increases, he said, so the fact that it appeared he was now doing a flip-flop on his previous stand against the timing and the method of the bill was in reality no different from his earlier flip-flop.

In leaving the clan of a dozen MPs who said they would not take benefit from the bill during this session of Parliament, Mr. Nowlan made it clear he now considers them in error.

"Some members say they will be Pied Pipers in their ridings, dispensing dollars for charitable projects.

"Let them go to it. I cannot and will not be a part of such hypocrisy.

"There are monetary difficulties in being a Santa Claus to so many deserving Canadians."

An amendment proposed by Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) that would have prevented the pay increases from going into effect until the next election was defeated 153 to 22.

The increases would be retroactive until last Oct. 8 under the bill.

BACK AMENDMENT

Voting for the amendment were 10 New Democrats, two Conservatives and 10 Social Crediters. Opposed were four NDP, most Conservatives and all Liberals present.

In debate on a bill that would increase the cost of a stamp now selling for six cents to seven cents July 1 and eight cents on Jan. 1, members used a series of anecdotes to make the point that current service doesn't justify the increase.

Robert Kaplan (L—Don Valley) said the community of Thorncliffe Park in his Toronto-area riding was served until last year by a postal substation that was too small.

So the station, which had served 12,000 people, was taken out of service and eventually replaced with two stamp machines.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said a post office inspector had been sent around to the post office in New Liskeard, a town in his riding.

In this post office there was a hole in the floor, into which a woman had recently fallen.

CONDEMN SERVICE

The inspector hadn't done anything about the hole. But he said a bilingual sign had to be erected over the door to show where the postmaster could be found.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) and Gerard Laprise (Social Credit-Abitibi) also condemned the level of service.

Mr. Lambert said many post office personnel appeared to think that the public was there for their own gratification, and that inflexible post office regulations should serve the staff rather than the people.

The House also passed an amendment to the Prime Minister's Residence Act, changing the title to the Official Residences Act because it also provides housing for the Official Opposition leader and the Commons Speaker.

Parliamentary Committee Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Following are highlights of Tuesday's parliamentary committee meetings:

COMMONS

Justice—The proposed young offenders bill should be scrapped and a new start made to eliminate the tendency to treat young people as criminals instead of trying to rehabilitate them, the Toronto board of education said. Later eight Montreal teen-agers said minimum standards should be established for juvenile rehabilitation centres and their employees to protect those sent to the centres.

Agriculture—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture and five major prairie farm organizations blitzed the committee with their concerted criticism of a bill to stabilize prairie farm incomes, leaning most heavily on their contention that the bill would only perpetuate already-small incomes for the farmers it was intended to help while limiting federal help in times of need they can expect.

Transport—R. R. Macgillivray, department director of marine operations, replied to charges by Thomas M. Bell (PC — Saint John - Lancaster) that the proposed pilotage act would not decentralize government control of marine pilots as intended. Mr. Macgillivary said regional authorities at Halifax, Montreal, Cornwall, Ont., and Vancouver would indeed be fully responsible for administering and maintaining service in their areas as well as setting pilotage charges and licensing fees.

External affairs—The New Democratic Party and three outside groups called on Canada to reinforce its condemnation of apartheid in South Africa with rigorous trade and economic sanctions and, should more British arms sales to South Africa take place, even with withdrawal from the Commonwealth.

Finance—Russel Bell, Canadian Labor Congress research director, in his own behalf called suggested wage and price controls impractical and preposterously discriminatory while at the same time advocating expansionary economic policies in which cost-of-living adjustments would be used to protect those most hurt by inflation.

Legal affairs—RCMP Commissioner W. L. Higgitt and Solicitor-General Jean - Pierre Goyer argued in the face of recurring questions that the RCMP is fully trained and amply discreet to handle the delicate task of investigating applicants for pardons without upsetting the social situation of the applicant. Mr. Goyer also suggested an enlarged force capable of and trained to cope with threats to national security.

JOINT

Constitutional — Douglas Verney, York University political science professor, said separation of Quebec from Canada need not be a disaster, but rather could lead to formation of a distinct English-Canadian identity. Earlier, the Quebec wing of the federal Liberal party said any new constitutional initiatives should be tried on new social and economic issues which have no built-in rights or precedents.

PIG GETS REVENGE

SINGAPORE (UPI) — A pig got revenge of sorts at a Singapore slaughter house. Hospital attendants listed See San, 32, as "temporarily unfit to work or talk" after the carcass of a pig he had slaughtered fell from a meat hook and knocked him unconscious. They said See stretched out on the slaughter house floor for a snooze just beneath a row of hanging pigs after he had finished work for the day.

DOG—OR IS IT A FOX? DENIED HAWAII ENTRY

HONOLULU (UPI) — After a year in quarantine while officials tried to decide whether he is a fox or a dog, Friskey is being sent back to the mainland.

The state department of agriculture would not allow Friskey into Hawaii because a chromosome count officially labelled him a fox. Foxes are normally prohibited in Hawaii since they are considered dangerous to poultry.

Friskey's owner, Dr. Halina Barteau, said the animal is half-dog since its father was a dog and its mother a fox. She is sending the animal back to California because the state will dispose of it if she doesn't.

Mrs. Barteau claims Friskey would not be harmful to poultry because it grew up with chickens and did not harm them and now eats only hamburger meat.

Cuba Ballet Cancelled

TORONTO (CP) — Maple Leaf Gardens has cancelled the three National Ballet of Cuba performances scheduled for June 11 to 13.

Stan Obodiac, press representative for the Gardens, blamed the cancellation Tuesday on "unforeseen circumstances."

The company will still play Ottawa's National Arts Centre, June 7 to 9, Montreal's Place des Arts, June 16 to 23 and Quebec's Grand Theatre, June 25 to 27.

'There's No Business Like Shaw Business'

LONDON (AP) — Suddenly, there's no business like Shaw business in Britain.

When John Bull's Other Island was presented at the Mermaid Theatre, it was the seventh play by George Bernard Shaw to be produced in London in the last year.

The boom, which comes 20 years after Shaw's death, isn't only in London.

BBC television has carried four Shavian plays while BBC radio has presented one and plans another.

The Chichester Festival, held 60 miles south of London, is presenting Caesar, and Cleopatra this summer, after last year's acclaimed Arms and the Man.

And all over the country repertory companies are averaging a Shaw play every week.

John Bull's Other Island is a biting satire on Anglo-Irish relationships and, although it was written in 1904, it is highly relevant to present times.

Players include Christopher Benjamin, who starred in the Mermaid presentation of the juicy Huntly Harding comedy, The Licentious Fly, Edward Petherbridge, Patrick McAlliney and Anna Cropper.

Alan Strachan, a 23-year-old Scot, is the director.

BUSINESS GOOD

The Cambridge Theatre reports brisk box-office business for Captain Brassbound's Conversion, a 70-year-old Shaw play that decidedly is now one of his greatest works.

Ingrid Bergman, lovely and regal at 54, plays Lady Cicely Waynflete an aristocratic Englishwoman who becomes embroiled with pirates and sheikhs in Morocco.

Despite her Swedish-American accent, which is hardly in keeping with the role, playgoers seem delighted with her performance, her first in London since Turgenev's A Month in the Country in 1965.

Two more Shaw plays, Back to Methuselah and Mrs. Warren's Profession, have, meanwhile, been added to the repertoire of the National Theatre at the Old Vic.

And the Royal Shakespeare Theatre company has included Major Barbara in its repertoire.

PROGRAM CANCELLED

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Laurent Belanger of Court of Queens Bench issued a court order Tuesday forcing the CBC to cancel a schedule 90-minute radio program titled The Trials of Vallieres and Gagnon.

Belanger, currently presiding over the current seditious conspiracy trial of former lecturer Charles Gagnon and Jacques Larue-Langlois, a former CBC producer, issued the order just hours before the program was to be aired.

The judge said in rendering his order that there was "no need to stress the possibilities of a mistrial created by such a program."

Pierre Vallieres also faces a charge of seditious conspiracy but he is not scheduled to appear until the fall assizes in September. He is the author of the book White Niggers of America.

Belanger said he learned of the program from the newspapers. The program was to have been broadcast at 8 p.m. Tuesday over the national radio network.

His order bars the CBC from broadcasting the program on radio or television anywhere in Canada until final judgment is rendered on the seditious conspiracy indictment.

Veteran of Blacklist, Willie Director Busy

By A. H. WEILER

NEW YORK (NYT)—Director Abraham Polonsky, who finally broke through Hollywood's blacklist two years ago with the highly regarded Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here, is making up for lost time in a big way.

His latest feature, Romance of a Horse Thief, will soon be released by Allied Artists. It stars Yul Brynner, Eli Wallach, Jane Birkin and Lainie Kazan. And new he is busy planning three more projects, the first of which will be Mario and the Magician, based on Thomas Mann's 1930 novella about a magician who exerts an evil influence on the inhabitants of an Italian village and is finally killed by one of his debased victims.

"It's actually Mann's depiction of the humanistic and demonic relationships between men," Polonsky points out. "And the story is just as pertinent today as it was at the time Mann was warning us about Mussolini. I've almost finished the script and I expect to begin directing next October in Italy for producer David Haft."

TWO MORE FILMS

Haft will also produce Polonsky's two other new films: The Ramayana and Childhood's End. The first, to be adapted from Aubrey Menen's 1954 novelized version of a 3,000-year-old Indian poem, will be co-authored by Polonsky and Menen. The second will be an adaptation of Arthur Clarke's 1953 novel about super-brainy outer spacemen who decide to straighten out the mess man has made on earth.

AMITY CONCERT

Nothing Short of Brilliant

By AUDREY JOHNSON

To the average concert-goer the thought of a whole program devoted to folk songs might present an impression of sameness.

Stop to think about it though, and one realizes that it is not the category that matters. The sources, the arranger-composers and the performers are the vital factors.

It is they who will embellish and enhance the basic material.

Amity Singers, conducted by George Corwin, demonstrated this Monday in their classical folk song concert, presented at McPherson Playhouse as the sixth annual scholarship event.

To begin with, musical director Corwin had selected folk-based lieder of Johannes Brahms, Bartok's brilliant manipulation of four Slovak folk songs and arresting versions of Newfoundland outport songs by the internationally-noted Canadian composer, Harry Somers.

SPIRITUALS

Also his own and William Dawson' arrangements of Negro spirituals and the delectable Liebeslieder Walzer of Brahms.

It was a program immensely varied in emotional range, rich in gems of musical writing and imagination.

The 22 mixed voices that comprise the Amity Singers provide the director with an exceptional instrument, sensitive and flexible, having a body of tone that is pure, clear, well-supported, finely-textured and blended, and exceptional in balance.

CHALLENGED

Technical proficiency in matters of rhythmic control, attack, cut-off and intricacies of phrasing was severely challenged throughout the evening.

Take the Somers arrangement, She's Like the Swallow for example. Success depends on its being performed by an accomplished choir.

Rhythmictlly, tonally and dynamically it challenges the singers. But this is a highly-accomplished, superbly-directed ensemble and the effect achieved was nothing short of brilliant.

Corwin conducts with fine authority and discipline underlying a sound musicianship that is expressed with extraordinary sensitivity, definitive taste and intuition.

The Liebeslieder Walzer — 10 of the total 18 were sung — are among the most exquisitely fashioned song miniatures in choral literature.

The full savor of their delicacy, grace, romantic spirit and lucid harmonic structure was realized in the Amity performance.

Brahms wrote the suite for female voices with piano duet accompaniment, and the importance of the latter cannot be over-stated.

James Furmston, who also admirably accompanied the ensemble in the Bartok and Somers group, teamed with George Lovick for the Liebeslieder and in terms of style, feeling and dynamic balance, the duo provided an ideal partnership.

Organ Recital Tonight

Victoria-born organist, Geoffrey Thornburn, is the recitalist tonight at the church of St. John the Divine. He will be assisted in this third event in the Wednesday evening series by another Victorian, baritone Ronald Webb.

Both musicians have been associated in the past with Christ Church Cathedral. Thornburn was assistant organist and studied with Richard Proudman.

Webb was for many years a member of the choir, first as a boy chorister and then as a choirman. At present he is a member of St. Michael and All Angels Church, Royal Oak and sings principal roles with Victoria Operatic Society.

THORNBURN
. . . organist

A graduate of the University of Victoria and Associate of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, Thornburn undertook graduate studies at Kingston, Ont. and while there was a choirman and assistant organist at St. George's Cathedral.

Later, in Ottawa, he was organist and choirmaster at Bells Corners United Church. At present he fills these positions at St. Michael's and All Angels.

Tonight he will play works by Dunstable, Buxtehude, Bach Howells, Greene, Peeters and others.

Vocal solos on the program will be from the music of Warlock, Harris and Peeters.

The recital begins at 7:30.

KNOTTINGLEY, England—The laurel of fame is to be plucked from the belly of Knottingley's most famous son—he is no longer the fattest man in England. A crash diet has sent Yorkshireman Arthur Armitage's weight plummeting to a rotund 303 pounds. So his name will be erased from the annual Guinness Book of Records as Britain's prize jumbo. At his peak, Arthur scaled a mighty 560 pounds, a proud monument to fish and chips and beer consumed in herculean consignments. He shed the excess over 13 months by eating only one 600-calorie snack a day. The new titleholder is London bartender George MacAree, 47, who weighs 513½ pounds.

MARTINSVILLE, Ind.—Eight years ago Genevieve Stafford of Martinsville suffered a whiplash injury in a traffic crash, leaving her with constant headaches and blurred vision. She spent thousands of dollars on treatment, but it didn't do much good. Two weeks ago Mrs. Stafford was involved in another traffic mishap. She hasn't had a headache since, and her vision cleared up. "It was just a small jolt, but it snapped my head back," she said.

NEW YORK—Beattle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, flew here Tuesday in a bid to gain custody of Yoko's seven-year-old daughter, Kyoko. "It's a mother's right to see her child," said Lennon. Yoko and her former husband, American Anthony Cox, were divorced in the Virgin Islands, but no custody order was made for the child, who has been living in Spain with her father. Cox is believed to be staying with relatives here.

TORONTO—Better late than never. That's the philosophy of Prof. Ben Shek, who will supervise a new course called Understanding Quebec at the University of Toronto next fall. "The course we're offering next year is one I proposed quite a while ago," Prof. Shek said. "Frankly it's the sort of thing we should have been offering for some time considering the importance of what's happening in Quebec." The course will cover five main areas—history of Quebec, sociology, French-Canadian literature, music and fine arts.

SUNNYSIDE, Wash.—Thirty elementary school pupils were treated and released from a hospital here Tuesday after accidentally being sprayed with the weed control chemical Thiamet. Officials at Mary E. Fox elementary school said about 70 youngsters were doused with the chemical while watching an aircraft spray a sugar beet field next to the school. About five hours after the incident some of the children became ill and were taken to a hospital here. Thirty of them were given antidote shots and released.

LOS ANGELES—One million persons—one of every seven residents in Los Angeles county—will be on county welfare rolls by June 10, the board of supervisors was told Tuesday. Auditor-Controller Mark Bloodgood presented the figures to the board at a session where the supervisors voiced general frustration with the economic and tax situation in the county.

Airlines Slash Europe Youth Fare

WASHINGTON (WP) — The major international airlines probably will introduce extremely inexpensive "youth fares" from the United States to Europe in order to regain traffic lost to low-cost charter airlines.

Late last week Sabena, the Belgian national airline, broke the ice on the new fares by offering a $200 round trip youth fare between New York and Brussels. Pan American World Airways, the only U.S. carrier that flies to Belgium, followed suit with a comparable fare Tuesday.

MATCH FARES

Other airlines will have to match the low fares or face diversion of student traffic to Belgium, industry sources said Tuesday.

Air France said it would file equally low youth rates from the United States to Paris unless Sabena and Pan Am withdraw their new fares. Spokesmen for Trans World Airlines and British Overseas Airways Corp. also said they are considering "competitive" moves.

The new fares to Brussels represent substantial discounts from the regular rates paid by most travellers. The normal round trip economy price between New York and Brussels, for example, is $596 during the summer. Another popular fare — a 17- to 29-day excursion rate, valid for trips of that duration only — cost $413 during the summer months.

The Pan-Am and Sabena fares carry one restriction not characteristic of regular tickets: reservations can be made only 72 hours in advance of departure time. Otherwise, the youth fares apply to anyone 12 to 22 years old.

A-Plant Shelved

CANBERRA (Reuter) — The Australian government had decided to shelve plans for the country's first nuclear power station, authoritative sources said here.

★ ★ ★

SINGALONG JUBILEE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Guests include singers Shirley Eikhard and Tom Kelly. Songs offered are Harpi and Rain, La La La, Don't Try to Please, Ruby Mountain, Banks of the Ohio and Fastest Growin' Heartache in the West.

★ ★ ★

MEN FROM SHILO. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun). Lisa Gerritsen steals this show as an engaging and perky youngster in search of her mother who abandoned the child and her ailing father. Lisa is in the title role of "Hannah," and enlists Trampas in her search for mother (Susan Oliver). They learn that the girl's mother is suspected of assisting in holding up a bank.

★ ★ ★

ROOM 222. 8 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun). Students Charlie Morana and Abbie Domier (Brad Davis and Kathy Lloyd) have been secretly married for four months, then teacher Pete Dixon and counselor Liz McIntyre learn of it. They insist the parnets be informed, and there follows a heated, and emotional confrontation between all of those involved. Young love wins out.

★ ★ ★

ON TRIAL (SPECIAL). 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. This is a re-enactment of the now-famous Chicago Seven conspiracy trial. The dialogue was boiled down from the 23,000-page trial transcript. Morris Carnovsky plays Judge Julius Hoffman.

★ ★ ★

THE SMITH FAMILY. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. Hippies settle into a commune in the neighborhood, and this upsets everybody except the Smith kids. Cindy and Bob extend a friendly hand to the new neighbors, and also become irritated with the rest of the people on the block because they're hostile. Chad is caught in the middle.

DES O'CONNOR SHOW. 9 p.m., Channel 5. (Season premiere). Des O'Connor, British music hall favorite singer-comic, did fairly well with a variety show last summer, and begins a return summer engagement tonight. His regulars are Connie Stevens, and O'Connor's longtime partner in comedy, J. D. Douglas. To give the first two shows a powerful sendoff, Jack Benny will be special guest tonight and next week as well. The show follows the usual format of variety with O'Connor singing alone and with Connie ("Just to Know You") and getting involved in sketches with Benny, and Douglas.

★ ★ ★

MEDICAL CENTRE. 9 p.m., Channel 12. (Rerun). Sharon Farrell adds to her stature with a good performance as guest star. She plays Dr. Gannon's teaching assistant who decides on sterilization because of pregnancy problems. A series of miscarriages, however, are thought to be caused by emotional disturbances and Dr. Gannon investigates his assistant's background.

★ ★ ★

LOVE ON A ROOFTOP. 9 p.m., Channel 4. Any man is entitled to a bed, even Dave (Pete Duel). Sleeping in a pup tent on the roof gives Dave a pain in the neck, literally. So he demands that Julie (Judy Carne) buy a bed that very day. She purchases a big brass bed in a junk shop. Then the fun really begins as they cope with the problem of getting the bed home.

★ ★ ★

FOUR-IN-ONE. 10 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun). San Francisco International Airport segment. Little did airport manager Jim Conrad (Lloyd Bridges) know that when a plane made an emergency landing with a troubled engine that he would be a hostage of two underworld characters seeking to flee the country. Scott Brady is the pilot of the troubled plane, and Henry Silva and Robert Viharo are the hoods who force Conrad to fly them out in another plane, launching a tense air chase.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

One of the commonest causes of discomfrot in this world is severe low backache, and often unusually severe low backache is due to what is called a slipped, or ruptured, disc. Between each vertebra (spinal bone) there is a sort of rubbery cushion, or gasket, as a mechanic would call it, which takes up some of the strains between each two vertebra.

I recently saw an excellent description of what probably was a slipped disc; the person wrote, "I was bending over, doing some housework, and all of a sudden I got a severe pain in my lower back; I could hardly straighten up, the pain shot down my left leg clear to the left foot, and I went to bed for a couple of days. The pain got better, but it returned when I became active."

Many a time, orthopedists and neurologists and spinal surgeons are puzzled over what is causing a severe low backache. A typical story is that of a woman who came to me to say, "I bent over to pick up a pin off the floor, and I was seized with such terrible pain I couldn't get up; my husband had to drag me into bed, and I have been in great pain ever since."

What probably happened in these cases was that when the woman bent over, pressure on some vertebras caused a "disc" to slip out and press on nerves, or it caused a disc to rupture and scatter refuse that pressed on nerves.

Such a woman may say, "I have pain going down the back of one thigh into the side of my foot." She obviously has a sciatica, which means an inflammation of a sciatic nerve — a nerve that arises from roots that come out of the damaged area of the spine.

Many Counted Themselves Out of the Census Survey

By JOHN JENSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paranoia seems to be stalking the country over the latest census survey, and although government advertisements implored citizens to "Count Yourself In" Tuesday, many planned to count themselves out.

The monstrous task of collecting 500 million facts about 21 million Canadians fell to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which decided to pull all stops and gather the information via a long and short questionnaire, the long, more detailed one going to every third household.

The questions selected naturally deal with education, employment, income, language and housing, but a growing number of citizens feel the DBS committed a monumental goof in its questionnaire organization and selection of questions.

Women's liberation movements object strongly to males automatically being designated heads of households. Others think their religion is their own business and many want to keep their incomes confidential, although the income tax department already knows this.

One irate citizen in Newfoundland questioned by The Canadian Press in a Cross-Canada survey simply said: "It's a lot of crap, anyway."

Although answers will be handled solely by the DBS and federal civil servants sworn to secrecy, many people feel the questions are too personal and honest answers could be harmful to them if they fell into the wrong hands.

A Toronto landlady said she is convinced some busybody in the federal government is going to start gossiping about her private affairs.

"Why should I have to tell ever Tom, Dick and Harry my personal business?" she asked.

Other questions deal with household appliances, hot and cold running water, the availability of flush toilets in homes, birthplace of parents and religious affiliation.

Mobeen Hussain, a Toronto insurance agent, said he isn't answering the question about religion because "we don't even disucss it at home."

He said he is a Muslim and his wife Catholic, and the whole matter is just "too personal."

Every household in Canada must take part in the census, and the DBA makes no bones about it. It has the Statistics Act to back it up, which makes it a felony to refuse to comply or to turn in false information. Penalty is fines up to $500 and, or, three months in jail.

Since the penalty clauses were introduced 53 years ago, records show no instance of anyone being sent to jail for refusing to answer questions, although there have been fines.

Things may change this time. Some citizens simply wrote "none of your business" across the census form and mailed it in.

An Ottawa woman said the census questionnaire gave her the creepy feeling that "Big Brother was watching."

A columnist for the Winnipeg Tribune reports receiving many calls and letters from residents in small communities, complaining about having to tell personal information to census takers who might be their next-door neighbor.

Terry Roberts writes that "these readers aren't complaining about filling in the forms, but that in a small community a local checker will be armed with far too much personal knowledge of his neighbors.

"And in small communities particularly, these readers say, tongues have a habit of wagging."

One Winnipeg resident complained that there was no provision for "Canadian" in the ethnic portion of the questionnaire. "There really is a Canadian, you know," he added.

In Vancouver, complaints ranged from objections that there was no Canadian ethnic category to the man being listed as head of the house.

Cablevision Application To Be Heard

Victoria Cablevision Ltd. is one of several Canadian cable television systems whose applications to change ownership structure will be heard at a Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearing in Ottawa June 28.

Les Curran, general manager and VCL president, today welcomed the move which is designed to lessen the ownership in cable television companies by Columbia Broadcasting Sytem Inc. of the United States to conform with broadcasting regulations which require 80 per cent Canadian ownership.

He said that although his company already conforms to regulations with CBS shares limited to 20 per cent, VCL is hoping "to go public" in co-operation with three other companies.

SHARES ISSUED

Curran explained that together with Vancouver Cablevision, National Cablevision, which operates out of Coquitlam, and York Cablevision in Toronto, his company would transfer its issued shares to the holding company of Classic Developments.

If the CRTC approves the application, CBS would retain 20 per cent ownership of the companies, the present shareholders, 25 per cent, and 55 per cent of the shares would be offered to underwriters for public subscription.

Curran said he was unable to say who Classic Developments were — "it's just a holding company."

National Cablevision Ltd. is a Canadian company in which CBS has a major investment and is figured in most of the other applications to be heard June 28.

On the mainland National Cablevision will be incorporated under the name of Coquitlam Cablevision Ltd., represented by Barrie R. Adams.

BROADCASTING

On surrender of its current broadcasting licence by NC, CCL would serve Coquitlam, Maple Ridge and Mission.

Canadian Wirevision Ltd., another Vancouver cable company, is applying to transfer some 700 preferred shares from present shareholders to Classic Developments. Vancouver Cablevision's transfer will involve some 2,500 shares.

Theological Crusader Dies at 78 Years

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, 78, famed Protestant theologian and crusader for social change who was considered one of the greatest Christian thinkers the United States has produced, died Tuesday night at his summer home after a long illness.

Dr. Niebuhr taught that religious faith is "basically a trust that life, however difficult and strange, has ultimate meaning."

He intertwined his theology with a hard realism and a belief that Christian morality should be manifest in social and political action.

Dr. Niebuhr participated in the conference that led to founding of the World Council of Churches, was among the founders of Americans for Democratic Action, the ultra-liberal wing of the Democratic party, and influenced a whole succession of church leaders by his labors for social betterment.

WAS SOCIALIST

He was an adviser to numerous national and international political figures, and was active in politics first as a member of the Socialist party and later as vice-chairman of the Liberal party in New York.

"The whole art of politics consists in directing rationally the irrationalities of men," he said.

A Lutheran in background, Dr. Niebuhr retired from Union Theological Seminary in 1960 after 32 years on the faculty, but continued his writings that included more than 20 books.

In discussing subjects that ranged from race relations to trade unionism to foreign affairs, he did not attempt to offer neat solutions but stressed "Christian realism."

He defined the concept as a recognition that in the complexities of modern life, clear-cut "right" decisions become ever more difficult, and sometimes impossible, requiring instead that approximate, rather than absolute, answers be obtained by public questions.

Five Charged In Car Part Theft Case

Five youths have been charged in connection with a theft of car parts last December taken from the British Car Centre storage parking lot in the 900 block Balmoral.

David Pyle, 18, of 2702 Forbes, pleaded guilty Tuesday to theft over $50.

A city policeman said car parts and accessories worth a total of $616 were taken from the parking lot in December.

The officer said Pyle was employed by a downtown Victoria car firm at the time and entered the lot via a combination lock and then used a master key to open the trunks of several cars.

Other charged are: Leonard Stanley Parkin, 18, of 1551 Oakland, theft over $50; Lakhvir Dhillon, 18, of 2702 Forbes, theft over $50; Peter Marticotte, 18, of 655 Hoy Lake Road, possession of stolen property and a juvenile, theft over $50.

Romanian Pushes Role As Mediator

By NORMAN WEBSTER
Special to The Times

PEKING — Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu Tuesday cast himself in the role of conciliator between the world's two alienated Communist giants, China and the Soviet Union.

Speaking at a state banquet here, he stressed the need for unity in the socialist camp and said Romania is making "every effort to overcome the difficulties existing at present in the relations between the socialist countries and between the Communist parties."

Ceausescu named no names, but the allusion was clear. The Chinese did not applaud.

They did applaud other sections of his speech, however, and in the afternoon an estimated 300,000 Chinese turned out for the grandest welcome given a foreigner in Peking for at least five years.

Ceausescu is the first head of a Warsaw Pact state to visit China since Nikita Khrushchev came — and left in bad odor — in 1959. The Sino-Soviet split subsequently widened dramatically.

Romania is allied with the Russians in the Warsaw Pact, but has earned Chinese respect for its stubborn struggle to maintain all possible independence of Moscow. Part of this struggle has been the fostering of closer relations with China in the teeth of Soviet displeasure.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Tuesday night praised Romania's independent position. "The Romanian people are a people who have backbone," Chou said.

They had, he declared, "opposed big power chauvinism ... withstood foreign pressure, foiled imperialist control, interference and threats of aggression and courageously defended their national independence and state sovereignty."

Not mentioned by either man, but an important consideration is Romania's middleman role between China and the world's other superpower the United States.

Bonnie Revisited Next on Agenda

OTTAWA (CP) — A sequel known as Bonaventure revisited will play before the Commons public accounts committee next Tuesday.

The committee has called two cabinet ministers as witnesses to explain what has been done to rectify the procedures which resulted in the refit cost of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure soaring to $17,108,090 from the original estimate of $8 million. The ship was later sold for scrap for less than $1 million.

The ministers are Supply Minister James Richardson and Revenue Minister Herb Gray.

Last year the committee ordered Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Lauzon, Que., which carried out the refit, to pay back to the receiver-general of Canada $4,173 it received for moving 52 chairs from ship to dock and back again.

The committee said in its report to the Commons that estimating procedures of the defence production department were slipshod and irresponsible. Department officials had given the committee "false" or "grossly misleading" testimony.

The committee said it had examined the "mere tip of the iceberg" of poor administration.

It rebuked, among others, Gordon Hunter, then deputy defence production minister and now master of the Mint, and Elgin Armstrong, deputy defence minister.

Sausage Fine

A taste for Hungarian sausage cost Gertrude Langer of Victoria $800 in Sidney police court Monday.

Judge D. G. Ashby found Mrs. Langer guilty of theft of sausage worth $1.98 from Sidney Safeway April 23.

The judge imposed the $800 fine after hearing that Mrs. Langer had three previous convictions on similar charges.

Guilt Denied

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Juan Corona pleaded not guilty today to charges that he murdered 10 of 23 transients and migrant farm workers found hacked to death and buried in orchard graves near here.

Museum Recreates Life 100 Years Ago

The simplicity of life in North Saanich 100 years ago is recreated in the museum which opened in Sidney on May 30.

Situated in the brick building once used as a customs house beside Beacon Avenue wharf, the museum includes a tiny Victorian living room and the exterior of a pioneer log cabin.

Focus of the main showroom is the mahogany wicket which served North Saanich post office in 1879. The port office was operated at that time by Henry Brackman of Brakman Ker Grist Mill nearby and the museum was opened on Sunday by Robert H. B. Ker, a descendent of the mill's co-owner, David Russell Ker.

Nucleus of the museum collection has been donated by May John, of North Saanich who, is a member of the Sidney and North Saanich historical society and how has been instrumental in persuading Sidney council to provide museum quarters.

FIRST VISITORS

Mayor Stan Dear of Sidney and Mayor Jim Cumming, North Saanich were among special guests at the opening. Historical society president Granee Bosher received the first visitors to the museum and presented Mrs. Robert Ker with a bouquet.

A generous donation from the Ker family will enable a breezeway to be built connecting the two museum buildings. Vintage carriages, an Indian dugout canoe and pioneer farm machinery will be exhibited in the breezeway to be known as "Ker's Close."

Visitors filing past the displays were intrigued with a cash-book listing the simple purchases at North Saanich store and goods bartared for pheasant, venison and duck.

A separate cash-book was kept for Indian customers with references to "Kanaka Joe" and "One-eyed Jack's Klootch!"

HUGE BOWL

Evidence of Oriental workers in early peninsula history is shown in a huge wooden bowl used for growing bean sprouts. There are many Indian artifacts such as whalebone combs, metal arrowheads, hollowed stone paint pots.

In the Victoria living room is a Franklin stove, wicker doll buggy and a wooden chest carved by John Weiler, one of Victoria's early furniture markers.

The crude implements with which Peninsula land was broken hang on the log cabin wall and there is a maritime display which includes a coastal chart dated 1798.

Next year, the museum display will focus on early years in Sidney whose history as a community began with the arrival of the Victoria and Sidney railway in 1896. In this way, explains May John, the collection will never become dull and static, themes will change from year to year.

Generations Have Favored Carnations

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hardy carnations and border pinks are members of the dianthus genus, grown by generations of gardeners for delicious fragrance in varying degrees. In more leisurely days, the plants were propagated by pipings and layering. Every variation that turned up among seedlings would be named.

Thus, hundres of named varieties were bought, sold and exchanged. Entire flower shows were devoted to carnations and border pinks. One can imagine an overpowering fragrance in a show tent under July sunshine.

Hilda

The modern gardener will try his luck sowing a few packets of seeds, or perhaps even buy a plant or two that he sees, but far from specializing in carnations or in pinks, he rather expects his plants to flower every year with only general care.

All members of the dianthus genus like a sunny, well drained location, thriving marvellously on rock walls, in sandy edgings enriched with well-rotted compost and leafmould, and in fact any garden spot which is not made acid with peatmoss, nor is at any time water soaked.

June and July will see the main display of bloom from established plants; first year seedlings will flower a little in late August and September.

Grown from seed are strains of carnations such as Enfant de Nice; Marguerite; and Chabaud. All are fragrant in varying degrees and the gardener is able to choose those he likes, discarding the others.

A more recent addition to hardy carnations is called Dwarf Fragrance. Stems only 15 inches tall make this good for balcony tubs and pots. Blooms are double, fragrant and clear colors.

A strain of Border Pink called Inchmery will be remembered as being strongly perfumed. Grown in masses in many of our older gardens, it was a lovely soft pink, propagated easily from cuttings in August, yet I have not seen it for five years or more.

Rivalling all others for fragrance, though more citrus-like than clove, is the easily raised Dianthus laciniatus "Loveliness."

Flowering with abandon the first June from coldframe seed sowing in February, "Loveliness" enchants by its free perfume. Flowers are single, an inch wide, deeply fringed (laciniated), in shades of mauve and a pure white.

Carnations and pinks have a better chance to overwinter if every flower stem is cut down to the basal tuft of leaves during early September, regardless of whether flowering or not.

This prevents straggling growth, conserves the energy of the plants, thus encouraging more and better flowers the following year. A light dusting of lime in spring; with a little wood ash (bonfire or incinerator) is a well accepted tonic in May.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

As a principle of defensive play, when it is quite obvious that dummy is going to ruff one of declarer's losers, the defenders will make haste to prevent it from happening. This they will attempt to accomplish by leading trumps, thus reducing dummy's ruffing power.

But there are exceptions to this principle, just as there are to virtually every bridge principle. In today's deal, for example, the East defender realized that he couldn't stop dummy from ruffing a loser. He perceived also that if he forced dummy to trump immediately, he might break declarer's line of communication. And he did break the line. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ◇
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ◇.

After East had won the first two tricks with his queen and ace of diamonds, he had a serious problem as to what to lead to trick three. On the face of it, a club lead seemed to be indicated. But East concluded that South, for his leap to four spades, probably had the A-K of clubs (it was evident that South had nothing in hearts and diamonds). So East "gave up" on the club suit as a hope.

East knew that South still had the diamond jack; had West possessed the doubleton J-x, he would have led the jack; and if he had held either the J-x- or the J-x-x-x, he would have led his lowest, not the nine-spot. And it was readily apparent that South could not be prevented from ruffing out his diamond jack.

It was also apparent to East that dummy's heart suit would be established as soon as East's ace was driven out. Declarer would then be able to use dummy's fourth trump as an entry for the cashing of the heart suit. The establishment of the heart suit couldn't be prevented — but dummy's fourth trump could be eliminated as a future entry.

Thus, at trick three, East laid down his diamond king, forcing dummy to trump. Dummy now had three trumps remainig.

Declarer then cashed the ace and king of trumps, hoping for a 2-2 division. When West failed to follow suit to the second trump lead, declarer played the trump queen, gathering in East's last piece. He next led a heart, hoping the defenders would win the trick. But East declined the offering; and eventually declarer lost a club trick.

Had East led a club at trick three (instead of a diamond), declarer would have fulfilled his contract by drawing trumps, and then driving out East's heart ace. Dummy would then be entered by ruffing the diamond jack. Declarer would now discard his losing club on a top heart.

CAT SAVES MISTRESS

LEIGHT, England (UPI) — Prudence the cat saved her mistress, 70-year-old widow Mrs. Eliza Mooney, from being gassed to death.

A sneak thief loosed the gas through the house where Mrs. Mooney lives alone when he cut off the gas meter cash box after ransacking the downstairs living room and stealing $14.40.

As gas filled the house, Prudence dashed upstairs and pawed her sleeping mistress awake.

STABLE MARRIAGE

SAUGUS, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Threet and Dorothy Esser rode off into the sunset together after the preacher married them while sitting astride their horses at a local stable.

Threet, 51, and Miss Esser, 46, who fell in love while riding horses, leaned over in their saddles and kissed one another as the preacher pronounced them married.

About 100 guests, some of them on horseback, remained silent when the clergyman asked if anyone objected to the marriage.

A horse tethered nearby neighed loudly but was ignored.

Discipline Urged

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Police Commission says in a written decision two police constables, G. J. Herr and M. F. Beal, used "unnecessary force" in detaining Erich Unruh, 27, on the street in February and should be disciplines. Unruh said that when he refused to produce identification and pushed aside a flashlight held by one of the constables, he was grabbed in a chokehold from behind, punched in the back and allowed to fall to the ground after he began choking. It was not decided how the two would be disciplined.

Hussein Orders Guerrilla Sweep

Royalists Corner Insurgent Forces

Times News Services

AMMAN — King Hussein charged today that Palestinian Arab guerrilla leaders are plotting to set up a breakaway Palestinian state in Jordan and vowed to launch a "final crackdown" against them.

The guerrillas immediately reported that all their bases were surrounded by two army divisions and were being "constantly shelled." Government forces seem to have been given a free hand for an all-out assault.

Hussein, in his most unrestrained attack on guerrilla leaders in eight months, accused them of "plotting to grab power at any cost" and of "selling out to the enemy."

He ordered Premier Wasfi to take "bold, decisive and tough action against the handful of professional criminals and conspirators who use the commando movement to disguise their treasonable plots."

"I want no hesitation, tolerance or compromise in handling them," said the king in a letter to Tell, broadcast by Amman radio.

SWEEPING PURGE

Tell, whom the guerrillas consider their most implacable foe, promised a "quick and sweeping purge" of the guerrilla movement.

Hussein's action apparently heralded stronger army action against 3,000 guerrillas stationed in hilly terrain near the town of Jerash, 25 miles north of Amman. They represent the only sizable guerrilla presence left in Jordan after last September's civil war and April's guerrilla pullout from Amman.

Meanwhile the Jordanian troubles spilled over into Egypt where President Anwar Sadat postponed accepting the credentials of the new Jordanian ambassador because of the fighting between the Jordanian army and guerrillas.

'Limited Strike' Begins

VANCOUVER (CP)— About 130 electrical workers did not report for work today at British Columbia Hydro's Vancouver - area head quarters in surburban Burnaby in what an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had said would be a limited strike.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said he understood the men, who were to have reported for work at 8 a.m., were attending a meeting. They were expected to report to their jobs following the meeting.

Line crews covering the Greater Vancouver area, Burnaby and Richmond operate from the Burnaby headquarters.

Doug Cronk, secretary of the union's Vancouver local, said Tuesday electrical workers would strike to back contract demands, but their action would not affect the entire hydro system.

The 2,200 electrical workers employed by the Crown corporation can legally strike at any time. Contract talks, in progress since December when the union was asking a 29½-per-cent pay increase over two years, broke off Friday night.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has said a strike by all 2,200 workers would probably shut down the hydro system in a matter of hours.

He said in the event of rotating strikes, Hydro would try to man the affected areas with supervisory personnel where this could be done safely. A spokesman said there was no need to call on supervisory personnel in today's work stoppage.

Negotiators have said the union has reduced its original demand for an increase of 29½ per cent. Basic pay for electrical workers now is $5.39 an hour.

The latest Hydro offer was seven per cent a year in a contract of any length. Dr. Shrum said he could not offer electrical workers any more than the 21¾ per cent over three years that Hydro office workers received last month.

FINANCIAL DOOM SEEN FOR CITIES

Financial disaster is overtaking B.C. cities, predicts a report commissioned by the Union of B.C. Municipalities to set the stage for its annual harangue with the government over fiscal policies. See background story by Clement Chapple on Page 3.

On Page 2 NDP leader Dave Barrett says that the report's forecast of doom documents what his party has known for years, and on Page 11 there is local reaction to the indictment.

Campbell Flays Report On Municipal Costs

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today lashed back at criticism of his handling of provincial funds to municipalities.

Mr. Campbell departed from introductory remarks to a municipal officers conference to shout: "I will not stand still when irresponsible statements are made about the financial state of the municipalities of this province."

His voice rising in anger, Mr. Campbell said:

"It does little service to this province to suggest as the Union of B.C. Municipalities does, that the municipalities of this province are financially sick."

The municipalities, in a 103-page report released Tuesday, said communities face "disastrous developments" unless the provincial government assumes total welfare costs and a greater share of education costs.

Mr. Campbell denounced the UBCM report as "irresponsible, juvenile and completely false."

In Vancouver, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer had called for Mr. Campbell's resignation because of a pledge the minister made in the legislature that if anyone could prove that B.C. treated its municipalities poorly, he would resign.

Mr. Campbell replied today by repeating that pledge.

"The finance formula in the province is not sacred, but it's the best in the nation. If that is not a fact, I will resign."

Later in his speech, he added: "Fear not that I will resign, for the financial affairs of the province are in good hands."

Mr. Campbell and deputy municipal affairs minister Jim Baird were to attend the municipal officers conference until Friday.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILDREN SWALLOW LSD

EDMONTON (CP) — Two four-year-old children were recovering today from the effects of the hallucinogenic drug LSD, taken from a vial they found while playing today.

Gordon Robert Letvinchuk and Donni Robertson found the vial in front of their home.

Police said that Gordon has swallowed about three tablets and Donni one. Donni's stomach was pumped at hospital and she was later released. Gordon was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

War Crime Charges Face U.S. General

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Army announced today that charges have been preferred against Brig.-Gen. John W. Donaldson, accusing him of murder and assault involving eight Vietnamese civilians.

Donaldson, until recently a top planner for the joint chiefs of staff, is the highest ranking officer to be accused of killing civilians in the Vietnam war.

The 47-year-old West Point graduate also is the first general to be charged with an alleged war crime since the Philippine insurrection 70 years ago.

A U.S. Army spokesman said Donaldson is accused of killing six civilians and assaulting two.

The army also announced murder charges have been preferred against Lt.-Col. William J. McCloskey, who served under Donaldson in Vietnam. No details in McCloskey's case were disclosed. An army spokesman said the two cases involved separate incidents.

The army said charges against McCloskey, 39, involve "two alleged victims." It said the incident occurred in March, 1969.

McCloskey served at the time as the 11th Brigade's operations officer. As a much-decorated veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, he was wounded nine times.

McCloskey now is assigned to the combat developments command, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The incidents on which the charges against Donaldson are based took place the army said, between November, 1968, and January, 1969, in Quang Ngai province, where the My Lai Massacre occurred the previous March.

COMMANDED BRIGADE

Donaldson, then a colonel, commanded the 11th Infantry Brigade, which included Lieut. William Calley's platoon at the time of the My Lai massacre. However, Donaldson did not take over the brigade until October, 1968, more than six months after My Lai. Calley has been sentenced to a life term for murdering civilians at My Lai.

No details of the Donaldson case were provided, but sources said an investigation was started after statements were made by a helicopter pilot attached to the 11th Brigade during the period.

Lt.-Gen. Claire Hutchin, commanding general of the 1st Army with headquarters at Fort Meade, has not yet announced what course he will follow. Army officials said Hutchin could dismiss the charges or order a grand jury-type proceeding to carry the case further.

Army records show the last general accused of war crimes was Brig.-Gen. Jacob H. Smith, a brigade commander in the Philippines in 1901.

'FIRE CAUSED BY CIGARETTE'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Norwegian team investigating a disastrous May 2 fire on the cruise ship Meteor, said Tuesday it had found no evidence of any criminal acts surrounding the fire which killed 32 crew members.

And the second engineer told a coroner's jury here that a smouldering cigarette may have been the cause of the fire.

John Clark said the cigarette must have fallen off a table and set fire to a piece of paper or clothing.

"The woodwork aboard the Meteor is varnished and if heated up it will form gases that will lie along the ceiling. If a flame hits it (the gas), it will ignite, not only there, but anywhere there is gas."

This would account for the incredible speed with which the fire spread to the crew's quarters on the ship's lower decks, he said.

18 Prisoners Charged In Kingston Rioting

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Eighteen prisoners have been charged as a result of the four-day rebellion at Kingston penitentiary last April that left two convicts dead and the institution wrecked. Ten other prisoners were injured.

Thirteen have been charged with non-capital murder in the two deaths, city police announced Tuesday night. One of the 13 and five others are charged with kidnapping six guards at the start of the April 14 uprising.

Inspector Wilfrid Kealey said in an interview that the charges were laid Monday. No reason was given for the delayed announcement.

Those charged will appear in provincial court here Friday.

Appearing Thursday in court at Napanee, Ont., will be 11 guards from Millhaven penitentiary where about 300 of the Kingston prisoners were moved after their rampage caused damage to the old building estimated at between $300,000 and $1 million.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

The guards face charges of assaulting prisoners involved in the unrest.

When the prisoners ended their protest and released the guards, officials found the body of Brian Ensor, 26, of Hamilton, in the rubble.

Bertrand H. Robert of Chatham, Ont., died later of massive head injuries suffered during the final hours of the disturbance.

Insp. Kealey said Tuesday that more than 500 prisoners involved in the riot were interviewed.

In a Toronto interview, Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said the investigations resulting in Monday's charges had been conducted mainly by Kingston police with some assistance from provincial police.

Last Thursday, Mr. Lawrence said that the 22 counts of assault laid against the Millhaven guards involved

GUARD PUNCHED

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police here are investigating a disturbance Monday night at nearby Collins Bay penitentiary by prisoners involved in the April Kingston riot.

A police spokesman said five prisoners held in isolation cells since their transfer from Kingston penitentiary after the 92-hour riot allegedly assaulted two guards.

A spokesman for Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer in Ottawa said today the five wrecked fixtures in their cells and one guard was punched in the face when he attempted to quiet them.

THE FIELDS AND HILLS OF CHINA

A Land of Lichee and Lotus

Articles describing the China visit of former Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning will be published as they are received. This is his second account.

By CHESTER RONNING
Special to The Times

DELTA-TUNG KUAN HSIEN, China — My daughter Sylvia Cassady of Camrose, Alberta, and I arrived in Tung Kuan Hsien last night from Canton to see its casava processing factory and one of the ingenious ways of harnessing tide water for hydro electric plants for power and light for one of the many villages of the Tao Chiao commune.

Yesterday afternoon, accompanied by three friends from CTV, we left Canton by car to pass through one of the most productive rice-producing areas of Asia.

In the city and the outskirts we saw hundreds of Phoenix trees in full dress of flaming red-orange blossoms.

People who say Canton is just another dull, drab city do not see the wooded hills, the attractive public parks and many glazed-tile buildings with great banyan trees, rock gardens and flowers of every color.

When one gets out into the open countryside it becomes abundantly evident that it is from these rice paddies, extending to the horizon or to the distant wooded ranges of hills and low mountains, that millions of people in Canton and Hong Kong are supplied with rice, vegetables and fruit.

★ ★ ★

Driving along the highway in a Russian version of the Cadillac we could see fields of dark green peppers, cucumbers climbing on tripods of bamboo, egg plants and cabbages. The road is lined with shade trees to shield wayfarers from the blazing sun. There are also rows of "horse tail" pines, of bananas producing delicious sweet fruit in great abundance. Orchard after orchard of lichee trees are now heavily laden with this year's first ripe crop of exotic lichees. Most impressive of all is the luxuriant, heavy crops of rice covering thousands upon thousands of acres of rich, delta soil.

Big Ben 1/2 Years Old

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Come now! Sit back in your armchairs and we'll take a quick flight to London. On arrival we'll stand for a while in the shadow of the Houses of Parliament on the edge of the Thames.

We'll look up at the Great Clock in the centre tower and wait to hear the chiming of the huge bell known the world around as Big Ben.

Forbes

Many who read this column have done this in person on more than one occasion. Others have heard the "bong" of Big Ben on their radios and television.

That's why it seemed timely (no pun intended) to tell you that on Monday the Great Clock and Big Ben celebrated a 112th birthday.

I discovered this through an article written by Robert Nelson and published a week or so ago in the Christian Science Monitor.

It was on May 31, 1859, that the Great Clock began its work and that its hour chime was named Big Ben after Sir Benjamin Hall, first commissioner of works.

In the more than a century since the clock has rarely stopped except for major overhaul every 20 years.

"It occasionally hesitates or palpitates," Nelson wrote. "The heat went off once in the clock room and a frenzied middle-of-the-night call from the BBC reported the clock running six seconds fast.

●

"Another time, a sudden heavy snowfall slowed the 14-foot minute hand and the nine-foot hour hands."

But no bomb ever stopped the Great Clock, the article boasts. Indeed, Westminster's famed clock during wartime became a symbol of steadiness and courage, ticking and chiming through bombings that destroyed much around Westminster but never Big Ben.

●

London sets its collective watches to the sound of Big Ben. Greenwich listens to the Great Clock. "And so does the BBC through special belfry microphones," Nelson wrote. "It broadcasts the sounds around the globe throughout the day, like some universal confirmation that all's well with time."

Mechanism that compels these great moments was the brilliant conception of a man who was a clockmaker by hobby, a barrister by vocation, Edmund Beckett Denison, QC, first Baron Grimthorpe.

Architect for the Houses of Parliament included a clock tower in his design. The astronomer-royal decreed that the clock had to be correct to one second per day. Clockmakers said it couldn't be done.

Undaunted by the specifications, Denison produced a design that the architect began work on in 1852. And on May 31, 1859, Big Ben boomed out for the first time.

●

Now back to Victoria by our armchair route and to the McPherson Playhouse where the curtain goes up tonight on a British Columbia Centennial Drama Festival.

Sponsored by the B.C. Drama Association, this four-night festival will feature one and three-act plays by various groups on a non-competitive basis.

Miss Christine MacNab, chairman of arrangements, explains that a committee of adjudicators selected the plays from drama festivals staged in six zones of the province during March and April.

"The groups selected are not necessarily those that are winners in the various zones," Miss MacNab says. "This is a centennial showcase of plays. There is no competition, no awards, but there will be both public and private adjudications."

Tonight the "Grandmother," an original melodrama by local playwright Joan Mason Hurley, will be presented by Victoria Theatre Guild.

On the same program will be two plays, one by Campbell River Players and the other by the Yellow Point Drama Group.

●

Thursday evening the New Caledonia Players of Prince George will be seen in a three-act plays and on Friday four short plays by groups from Powell River, Duncan, Prince Rupert and Vancouver will be presented.

Here's a splendid opportunity to get away from your television sets and enjoy live theatre. Do make a point of getting out of those armchairs for one evening at least. The Centennial Drama Festival is worth supporting!

Sentence Labelled Travesty

MIAMI (AP) — A 21-year-old former Green Beret who said he squandered his $2,400 Vietnam savings for heroin has been sentenced to two years in prison for the $22 robbery of a curbside market.

"This is an absolute tragedy," Criminal Court Judge Ellen Morphinios said Tuesday in sentencing John Gerald Jennings of Hialeah.

She recommended that Jennings, who served two years in Vietnam, be sent to prison hospital until cured, but denied a plea by Assistant Public Defender Thomas Morgan that Jennings be sent to a live-in rehabilitation centre.

"We're participating in a travesty of justice," Morgan said.

"Combat soldiers who became addicted in Southeast Asia are just being turned loose in the community. There are no facilities at the Veterans Administration Hospital—not even a methadone clinic," Morgan said.

Contract Let Quietly

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a $13.5-million contract to expand the still-unfinished Terminal 2 at Toronto International Airport was quietly awarded Tuesday, strengthening rumors that construction of a second major airport for Toronto has been shelved.

However, it quoted an unnamed transport department official in an Ottawa report as saying the expansion was planned at least since the fall of 1969, when the government also decided on a second airport, and the lack of publicity Tuesday may have been an attempt to avoid that kind of conclusion being drawn.

The newspaper says the expansion project will employ hundreds of construction workers at least until the end of next year and eventually triple the number of aircraft gates at the new terminal.

It says the contract was awarded to Eastern Construction Ltd. of Toronto and calls for a 22-foot-wide tunnel, 600 feet long, connecting Terminals 1 and 2 and featuring moving sidewalks to carry passengers between the two.

India Emissary Blames Refugees

The arrival in India of more than 2.5 million refugees seeking protection from "atrocities" of the Pakistani army is endangering the success of Prime Minister Indira Ghandi's plan for economic development.

Amarbandhu Raychaudhuri, first secretary for information and cuture with the High Commission of India in Ottawa, was in Victoria Tuesday. He is seeking help from the Canadian people for his government.

He calls the influx of so many refugees a disaster for the Indian economy.

Raychaudhuri pointed out that Mrs. Ghandi won an overwhelming majority in the election last March on the development, which promised basis of her plan for economic the poor and unemployed a better deal.

"The massive exodus of refugees from East Bengal can mean that the prime minister will be unable to keep her election promises," he said.

Raychaudhuri said Mrs. Ghandi spoke to the Indian parliament May 24 on the tragedy of Pakistan.

She said that for 25 years India had never interefered in the internal affairs of Pakistan even though they had not exercised similar restraint, her emissary said. But what has actually happened?

"What was claimed to be the internal problem of Pakistan has also become the internal problem of India. . . .

"For us it is an intolerable situation. The fact that we are compelled to give refuge and succour to these unfortunate millions cannot be used as an excuse to push more and more people across our border."

Raychaudhuri is touring Western Canada to acquaint the Canadian people with the magnitude of the problem facing his government.

He said that within the next few weeks the number of refugees in India is expected to exceed five million.

The estimated cost to India for shelter and relief for the three million refugees already in the country is estimated at $197.460 million for the first six months.

Raychaudhuri is asking Canadians and East Indian Associations for support for Mrs. Ghandi's appeal to the world community for funds and UN help to settle the issues in Pakistan.

He said several countries, including Canada, have pledged their help, but that the most important thing will be to bring about a political solution in Pakistan through the force of world opinion so that the refugees may return to their homes.

More Families Using Clinics For Planning

Family planning clinics in B.C. have had a gradual increase in clientele during the last two years, says Family Planning Association president Mrs. Mary Bishop.

In 1969, clinics had 2,000 patient visits, in 1970 more than 4,000. This year's total is expected to exceed 5,000, Mrs. Biship told the Victoria chapter of the FPA.

She said the association is considering establishment of a central purchasing agency that would distribute contraceptives at lower cost than present retail outlets.

The association supports a recommendation by the Royal Commission on the Status of Women that abortion be made available to any woman pregnant for 12 weeks or less.

EXOTIC DANCER and a show of India fashions will be part of the entertainment at the East Indian banquet to be held Saturday by the Victoria Cultural Association of India and Canada, St. Andrew's Hall, 1012 Pandora Avenue. P. K. Samal, joint secretary of the ministry of foreign trade, comptroller of imports and exports, and K. V. N. Menon, trade commissioner of India, will be special guests. Fashions will be from the Carnaby Street Boutique. Left to right are: model Beverly Grooms, dancer Nina Bains and model Rashna Charania.

St. John Shows How To Survive Summer

Nobody goes to a cottage to sit around being alarmed at things that might go wrong. But summer and summer activities do sometimes involve people in situations where there is no medical help immediately available, and someone should know something useful to do fast.

St. John Ambulance has tips available, and courses to back them up in many cases.

The two-hour course here, called the Save-a-Life Program, is available from St. John Ambulance, 941 Pandora Avenue.

The program is not taught at the centre. James A. Tyre, secretary-treasurer for St. John Ambulance here, gives the course in schools and to other interested groups.

Anyone interested may join a group already in progress or form one of their own.

The free two-hour class in artificial respiration to teach techniques to use if someone has stopped breathing be cause of immersion in water, choking, shock, exposure or smoke inhalation.

They recommend starting this immediately without looking for help, without moving the victim unless it's necessary to protect him from more harm. Then, they add:

★ ★ ★

Put him on his back, put padding under his shoulders if there is a towel or coat available. Be sure his access to air is not obstructed. Pinch his nostrils and put your own mouth on his to form a tight seal. Blow into his mouth so his chest rises. Turn your head and watch his chest fall.

Take another breath and repeat every three to five seconds for an adult, a little more frequently for a child.

If the victim is a small child or an infant, only small puffs of air should be sent into his mouth to avoid damage to his lungs.

Casual meals and hot weather can combine with poor refrigeration and food handling to create food poisoning.

It usually shows in a few hours in nausea, abdominal pains or diarrhea. If the food was not clean, symptoms may start with a chill and develop into a fever.

The victim should be given simple hot liquds such as tea. If the suspected source of food poisoning came from a store or restaurant, it should be reported to health officials who can take action.

If abdominal pains are severe, they might indicate some other medical problem that should be referred to a doctor.

You should be careful with water, also. If you are not positive it is safe for drinking, boil it. Ice cubs should be made from boiled water.

Someone who has drunk contaminated water feels desperately ill suddenly, has a high fever and cannot keep solid foods down. He should be put to bed, given clear fluids and examined by a doctor as soon as possible.

★ ★ ★

Tanning should start gently — with a 20-minute session, gradually increased. Late afternoon and early morning sun is kindest because ultra violet rays are filtered through a greater depth of atmosphere.

Cold cream, olive oil, petroleum jelly or cool wet compresses ease the pain of sunburn. If it is severe, see your doctor.

Someone who has sunstroke may suddenly develop headache, dizziness, nausea, vomiting, cramps. He may collapse. His face is pale and sweaty and his pulse weak.

Get him into a cool place. If he is conscious, give him cool salted water to drink — half a teaspoon of salt to a pint of water. If he is cold, keep him comfortably warm and watch him for heat stroke.

Heat stroke is a dangerous condition that may come suddenly or develop from sunstroke. The body temperature may rise rapidly and it is imperative to lower it. Put the victim in the coolest place possible remove his clothes, sprinkle him with cool water or wrap him in a wet sheet and fan him.

When his temperature drops, put him in a dry sheet and continue to fan. When he recovers, treat him as you would a sunstroke victim and keep him under observation.

An insect sting can be serious. If a child has an unsuspected allergy, the first warning may be a swelling and discoloration of a bite.

When an allergy is known or suspected, or for any stings or bites in the mouth, it is advisable to see a doctor.

If a stinger is visible, it can be removed by indenting the surrounding skin and scraping across it with a sterile instrument.

For an irritating insect sting, apply a paste of baking soda and a clean, dry dressing.

CLUBS

The Ex-Service Women's Branch No. 182, Royal Canadian Legion, will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Britannia Auditorium, 1516 Blanshard Street.

The Victoria Rebekah Past Nobel Grands' Club will hold a Centennial rose tea and bake sale Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Douglas Street.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Fearful Wife

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I get along fine, but I have a problem I can't talk to anyone about because this is a small town and if this ever gets out it might hurt him in a business way.

I've heard about some people having far-out hangups on sex, but listen to this: My husband gets excited if he can pretend that some part of his body is missing. One time he wants me to pretend that one of his legs is missing. Another time he pretends that one of his fingers is missing. Lately he asks me to pretend that one of his eyes is gone! He feels no guilt or shame when he asks me to go along with this pretending game.

I don't know why he should get turned on by pretending that a part of his body is missing, but he does. I find this weired and sometimes frightening. I never have refused to play his game for fead his mind will snap and he will harm me. Do you think he's dangerous? Ask one of your doctor friends and let me know.—Worried

DEAR WORRIED: Fetishes (and this is one) are usually harmless if both parties derive a mutual enjoyment from them. But if your husband's "something missing" game is causing you fear and anxiety, discuss it with a doctor and take his advice.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have two sons. One is 2 years old and the other is nearly a year old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, children and responsibilities!

My mother has offered to stay with the boys for the one weekend we will be gone. My husband thinks we should take the boys to show them off. He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if I leave them home. What do you think?—Needs A Rest

DEAR NEEDS: I think it will be unfair to you if he insists on taking them. And he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minuutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. I should think a wife would be tickled pink to be able to go through her husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners or putting the washables into the machine.

Most women have to wait until their husbands are asleep before they can get into their pockets.—E. C. Stillwater, Ok.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Space-Saving Ideas For a Young Bedroom

By PAULINE GRAVES

If lack of space is one of your decorating problems, consider the solutions available to you.

Double-duty furniture saves floor space, because one piece functions as two. Also, a room looks larger with a minimum of furniture. On the question of scale, most agree that small scaled furniture shows off a small room to best advantage. And glass and mirrors offer another alternative because they render walls practically non-existent.

Shown here is a young girl's room that exemplifies mot of these solutions, the room designed by Darrell Howe. First, the headboard doubles as a bookcase, putting to use space above the bed that normally would be wasted.

Beside the bed and stretching under the window, an eighteen inch deep ledge functions both as desk and as bedside table, another doubling up process. And these two manoeuvres reduce the number of furniture pieces in the room by two.

Regarding scale, the room qualifies with a narrow bed consisting of mattress and box springs only, and with the ledge, painted the color of the wall, instead of a heavy desk. The lack of legs on the ledge makes for a light look, too.

Mirrors, in case you hadn't noticed, line the backs of the shelves, giving depth to this corner of the room, another space illusion that always works. The one bright busy pattern is the fabric used on the spread and portions of one wall, enough to spark up the room without crowding.

TWO-BITS A GLASS?

New Disaster Looms For Draught Drinkers

By WALTER McKINNON

Writing this hurts almost as much as doing the obituary for a near and dear friend. And the pain is even worse because it follows by only a day that devastating increase in government booze prices.

Draught beer, nectar of the gods and recommended fuel for journalists the world over, may soon be a quarter a glass.

Hotelmen in Vancouver Tuesday raised the cry for 25-cent draught. And needless to say, innkeepers on this side of the water think it's a fine idea.

Twenty-five cent draught, when the price of scotch has just come down? And some tapmen don't even top off the glass?

●

Obviously, the time has come for puberawlers to organize. Present them with a united front and fight this galloping inflation where it will do the most good . . . in the pubs of British Columbia!

L. W. Manuel, managing director of the British Columbia Hotels Association, said Tuesday that "it seems reasonable that an increase should be there to offset" rising labor costs and the new hike in the price of a keg.

The 25-gallon keg of draught which used to cost $36 now costs $38.70. Any tapman worth his beer can get about 500 glasses out of that keg . . . $100 worth of beer on the table.

At a quarter a glass, it would put $125 in the till.

Your correspondent this morning placed a telephone call to Liquor Control Board chairman William Bruce, attempting to get to the root of the problem. His only comment was "No comment."

He did say, however, that no formal application for the increase has yet been made. And he wouldn't speculate.

"I don't deal on hypothetical cases at all."

●

Manuel was a little more talkative. He explained that the application is not yet in the works, . . . but admitted likely it is to be, soon.

The last time a disaster of this magnitude hit the pub-crawlers of the province was in 1967. At that time, the size of the glass was reduced from 12 ounces to 11 and the price was held at 20 cents.

That was the same year bottled beer was bumped up a nickel a case, from $2.52 to $2.57. It's now $2.84.

By the way — those 11-ounce glasses to which reference was made a paragraph back . . . you only get eight or nine ounces of beer. The exact measurement depends on the tapman. A discriminating draught man can pick up an extra ounce or so in each glass if he takes the time to shop around.

And now, parting shot . . . remember, draught men, that extra nickel, when and if it comes, is the one they chopped off the $11 scotch.

MOM AT CAMP

Freedom: A Phone For Room Service

Sheer, rotten cowardice caused me to decline an invitation to speak tonight to the Victoria Women's Caucus, the local women's liberation group begun at the university and now spreading its iron wings, but I wish I could change my mind.

Since I gave my fearful "no thanks," my wife and I have spent a weekend at one of the Island's best known resorts and, baby, if there was ever a case for women to violently cast off the bonds of their traditional role it's to be found in that kind of holiday retreat.

The season has barely begun, but already you see the familiar phenomenon of Dad and Mom and the little ones by the seashore, all having the time of their lives —except Mom, that is. Mom may appear, in fact, only on the day of departure when she is helped to the waiting car, sobbing with gratitude at the prospect of a year's convalescence back home.

No other family rite is so calculatingly, cunningly devised to take advantage of the modern form of white slavery called home-making. When the home becomes a damp, cramped cottage, a hundred or more miles from the nearest labor-saving device, when the single modern appliance is a shower that emits a choice of ice-water or live steam, something must give. What gives is Mom. And gives and gives and gives.

Why do women do it? Why, in that stage of planning those precious three weeks of freedom, when Dad ingratiatingly proposes yet another grand family vacation at Camp Bide-a-Wee, don't women shoot Dad between his little stoat eyes with a Webley 30-30 or run away with the mail man or take a slow freighter to Pago-Pago or do something, anything, that will spare them the predictable agonies that lie ahead?

Consider, simply as a clinical case, the sacrificial sex object I will call Mrs. Thing who, with husband and three small children, occupied the cabin next to ours in this brief weekend respite. For her it was the start of a 21-day stretch with no time off for good behavior, commutation of sentence or, short of total collapse, reprieve. Hatchet-murderers are given better deals.

★ ★ ★

My guess is that, in those two days alone, Mrs. Thing prepared and served no less than 98 meals, a feat of short-order cookmanship seldom equalled outside of a logging camp. The piteous cry of "Mom, I'm hungry," might be heard at regular intervals throughout the two days. Mr. Thing, being an ardent sportsman, was victualled on a schedule determined entirely by the tides on his fishing day and teeing-off time on his golfing day.

In those brief periods when Mrs. Thing was not bent over a hot stove or a sink full of dirty laundry her time was spent entirely as a life-guard valiantly combatting the death-wish and suicidal tendencies characteristic of all small children at any resort.

If the Thing children weren't drifting out to sea on a home-made raft they were pursuing each other with the proprietor's double-bladed axe. When they weren't shredding their little bare feet on the razor edges of the nearest oyster bed they were hanging by their heels from the upper branches of the highest maple. The gods that protect drunks and small children were working over-time and so was Mother standing there at the door, wringing her dish-pan hands and hollering. Why she did not remain inside with a quart of gin and allow them to self-destruct, one after the other, only a woman can know.

But let us draw the curtain mercifully on these all-too-familiar scenes and pause to speculate on this heaviest cross borne by the domesticated, house-broken, un-liberated woman, the reason why the Victoria Women's Caucus is growing, as the saying goes, by leaps and bounds.

It's no good rationalizing that it is simply ignorance or unawareness on the part of the husband. No male chauvinistic pig can be married long enough to have three children without knowing, in his blackest hearts of hearts, what a woman really wants—and, God knows, deserves—in that precious three weeks.

★ ★ ★

First, she wants a total, therapeutic separation from the children. Let them be farmed out to some camp or put in a creche or in prison or anywhere, but cut them loose from those apron strings one way or the other for the sake of Mama's sanity and as a reward for Mama's enduring them 49 weeks of the year.

Second, she wants a room without even a remote reminder of a kitchen, a room perferably within strolling distance of a small, charming restaurant that specializes in candle-lit dinners, maybe even with a make-believe Gypsy violinist. Whatever else it has, the room must have a telephone with a direct dial to that one beautiful miracle that every home-maker dreams of: Room Service, glorious Room Service.

That way, however briefly, lies the one promise of liberation that makes sense to the Mrs. Things o' the world. All that remains unanswered is why they don't insist on it when all they have to lose are their chains.

Recycling Study Seeks Attitudes

Wanted: 89 people with a car, bike or sound legs, an interest in the environment and a few hours to spare this Saturday.

Call 382-3971 and ask for Paul Baker. Or call the Environment 100 office at 477-8415.

That's the small army Paul Baker needs to distribute 2,000 questionnaires which will measure attitudes and effects of recycling, re-using of materials usually thought of as garbage.

The Uvic sociology student is one of the organizers of the project, which is being sponsored by the federal government's Opportunities for Youth program.

The questionnaire will sample what the public is now doing with various forms of refuse and what it thinks about the comparitive seriousness of various social issues.

Another questionnaire at the end of the summer will provide matching study.

The 2,000 forms for distribution to householders in Greater Victoria will go out on a random interval basis. That means volunteers will be delivering them to one house in each 25 and that's what take the time. Each volunteer will be asked to deliver only 20. And the following Saturday he will be asked to pick them up.

Baker says the problem is many young people who normally volunteer are currently occupied with exams. For the study to achieve its aims, the first questionnaire needs to be delivered immediately.

Municipal Heads Lavish Applause On Fiscal Report

A report on the "disastrous" financial deal given B.C. cities and towns by the province got a full round of applause today from municipal leaders in Greater Victoria.

The report released Tuesday by the Union of B.C. Municipalities traced a steady decrease in the amount of help local governments have been getting from the province for more than a decade.

Principal recommendations included a complete takeover of all social welfare costs by the province and increased help in covering education expenses.

BACKED BY FACTS

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford termed the report "a really good one, backed by facts and figures."

She also criticized Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, who has already questioned the validity of the report's conclusions.

Campbell also said that no mater what the report says, B.C. municipalities are better treated than any other in Canada.

"As usual, Dan Campbell steps aside and then comes back with a sharp attack," Mrs. Elford said.

"To say that the province does more than other provinces is no excuse. Perhaps the other provinces should hang their heads in shame."

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock agreed. Asked about Campbell's comment that B.C. towns are the best treated in Canada Haddoc replied:

"Then there's probably something wrong with Canada."

Mrs. Elford said the report underlined "the nub of the point municipalities have been making that although the provincial local government grants have gone up in actual dollars, percentage-wise, they have decreased."

She pointed out that in the period from 1961 to 1968 the municipalities share of the social assistance bill had risen from 19.7 per cent to 31.4 per cent.

WELFARE COSTS

Haddock recalled that Victoria council had recently submitted a resolution to the next UBCM convention calling for all welfare costs to be removed from the shoulders of the municipalities.

There's "no question in my mind," said Haddock, that cities cannot afford to keep paying welfare bills, especially sharp rises like this year, coming like "a bolt out of the blue."

Haddock said he is especially concerned for the high percentage of people in this community on fixed incomes because of retirement.

Haddock said he had not had time to study the report but from early reports "I certainly agree in principle."

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich is out of town and unavailable for comment, but acting mayor Ald. Leslie Passmore said the recommendations of the report are "something that almost every municipality" has been working for.

'LONG PAST DUE'

A reduction of municipal responsibility in paying for education and welfare is "long past due," Passmore said.

He said these costs should not be assumed by the property taxpayer because there is "no connection" between the welfare and education services and property.

Mayor Arthur Young of Esquimalt disagreed only with the emphasis of the report's recommendations.

He disagreed that the province should assume all the costs of welfare.

The total education cost should be paid by the province, Young said.

"It is unfair that the property owner should be stuck with education costs. This is strictly a provincial responsibility."

City Police Union Rejects Mediation by Commission

The Victoria Policemen's Union is prepared to accept binding arbitration of its pay dispute — providing it is not by the B.C. Mediation Commission, union members decided Tuesday.

"We only ask we have equal say in appointing the arbitrator as the arbitrators," the union said in a statement after the meeting.

"The members of the union are convinced that the commission is incapable of dealing with the many complex reasons behind the union's request for parity with their counterparts in Vancouver."

The union said that before March 1, 1969, the Victoria first class constable was paid $24 a month less than the same man in Vancouver.

GAP WIDENED

This gap was widened by a mediation commission binding decision to $48 a month, later narrowed to $34 a month by the city "in order that the morale of the force would not be entirely destroyed."

The Vancouver police were recently awarded a 16.4 per cent pay increase in a one-year contract by an arbitrator outside the mediation commission.

The Victoria union said police here have to meet the same requirements as those in Vancouver and "in every other respect" have the same duties and responsibilities.

"He is therefor entitled to the same rate of pay. The recent offer by the Victoria board of police commissioners of 7½ per cent is totally unacceptable.

"Such an increase would result in a differential that would increase to $72 a month as of Jan. 1, 1971, that would widen further to $104 per month on July 1, 1971. This differential cannot be justified."

Building Activity Tops 1970 Totals

Construction activity in Victoria during May was well over last year's figure and building in the first five months of 1971 was the highest in the last six years.

Building permits issued in May have a dollar value of $2,148,125. In May, 1970, the figure was $1,460,907.

The five-month total this year came to $15,107,174 a full recovery from the low 1970 figure of $10,478,376, and better than the high 1968 mark of $14,813, 042.

In Saanich, activity last month remained almost unchanged from a year ago, and the five-month total was down from 1970.

★ ★ ★

Permits worth $1,087,687 were issued in May compared with $1,053,193 in May of last year.

For the first five months, permits worth $5.5 million have been issued, compared with $6.6 million in the same period of 1970.

House construction in Saanich was up, however, with permits issued for 137 dwellings worth $3.4 million this year against 99 dwellings worth $2.9 million last year.

Five permits were issued in Victoria last month for $1,137,000 worth of apartment buildings.

CAR RALLY DEADLINE EXTENDED

Numerous inquries has forced the extention of the deadline for entries in the B.C. Centennial '71 car rally to June 15, the general chairman of the provincial centennial committee Lawrie Wallace said today.

Wallace said over 700 entries have been received for the 4,800-mile rally which begins in Ottawa June 20 and ends in Victoria July 1.

Pedicabs Approved For City

Tourists in Victoria will be able to ride richshaw fashion to Beacon Hill Park and back this summer.

Council's traffic committee approved an application Tuesday from William Brown, 107 Wellington, to operate two "pedicabs" on a route from the Inner Harbor CPR docks through James Bay to Beacon Hill Park and return.

Traffic engineer Dave Campbell told the committee the pedicabs might cause some traffic confusion in the causeway area, but confusion is at such a level already, it probably won't be noticed.

Brown's application argued that if successful, the pedicab operation would employ students and avoid adding to pollution.

The pedicabs are designed to pull two passengers and are fitted with three-speed bicycle gears.

Nitinat Road Approved by Forest Service

A controversial road constructed on the north side of Nitinat Lake on the west coast of Vancouver Island was approved by the Vancouver district B.C. Forest Service office in 1970, a government official said today.

Construction of the road — a stretch of about four miles — near the edge of the lake by B.C. Forest Products has been criticized by conservationists because it despoils the waterfront and its esthetic amenities.

The road issue erupted when John Bruce, chief forester of planning, last week said he never received the road layout plan and didn't know why it had not been sent to him.

NEW POLICY

(Under a new government policy all logging roads are now sent to the chief planner for study with a view of seeing that they don't alienate lake and river frontage.)

But a government spokesman explained today that Bruce did not receive the plan because the road was approved before the new policy was instituted to protect streams and rivers.

"That is the road plan was approved before Bruce was involved in the multiple land-use policy," he said.

"But since the beginning of the year in particular, revisions have been made to incorporate new recreational and multiple land use policies," he added. "Road construction is now under continual inspection by forest rangers."

He said all debris resulting from the road construction at Nitinat Lake is being removed and cleaned up.

At the end of the four-mile stretch, the road will swing back away from the lake and will remain away from it, he said.

He said the road was built along the edge of the lake because it was not feasible to build it up the slope.

John Willows, an executive member of the Sierra Club of B.C., disagrees.

"There are no obstacles there which could not have been overcome," he said.

IT'S BERRY TIME

1,000 Pickers Needed Soon

About 1,000 berry pickers will be needed this month to harvest the Saanich strawberry crop.

Canada Manpower officials said today registration of pickers is under way at the Farm Labor office, 614 Humboldt, the old Belmont Building.

Picking is expected to be in full gear my mid-June, but it's no bumper crop, according to Tom Michell, vice-president of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

He said the cool spring and winter reduced this year's crop by about 50 tons.

"On some pastures the crop is good and on others it isn't," he said. "We expect to harvest about 300 tons."

Michell said most of the berries will be shipped to Vancouver for processing into frozen pack. The wine industry also will take some.

MICHELL

Fresh Saanich berries should be available in most stores by Saturday.

Prices growers will receive for their berries has not been determined.

Michell said strawberry growing on the Saanich Peninsula is declining rapidly.

"Land values are so high that more and more farms are being sold for subdivisions," he said. "Apart from that we have to compete with Mexican berries which somehow seem to get into the province in roundabout ways."

He noted that in 1926 the average crop was about 2,000 tons. Now it was about 350 tons.

Minimum picking wage has been set at 90 cents a crate for strawberries and 65 cents for jam strawberries. A good picker can earn about $10 a day.

Opposition Boycotts House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The opposition may not be back in the Newfoundland legislature this session—three are suspended and the others are boycotting the house.

Opposition benches were empty again Tuesday as the legislature considered labor legislation.

Two Progressive Conservatives and one independent Liberal are serving a three-day suspension for calling the Speaker partial. Other opposition members walked out and may not be back since the session is likely to end today or Thursday.

Expelled for three days were John C. Crosbie (Ind.-L.—St. John's West), William Marshall (PC—St. John's East) and H. R. V. (Val) Earle (PC—Fortune) after they accused the Speaker of favoring the government.

In other legislatures Tuesday, Prime Minister Trudeau was criticized in Toronto for "giving respectability" to communism on his recent Russian trip, and in Winnipeg the prospect of a renewal of a debate on public auto insurance was raised.

In Quebec, the national assembly's committee on press freedom adjourned after a brief meeting attended by only seven of 15 members. The committee will interview witnesses and interested organizations later.

In St. John's, the expulsions followed a punch at Mr. Marshall last Thursday by Premier Joseph Smallwood's son, William, after Mr. Marshall mentioned the premier's wife while reading an article on slum landlords.

In discussing the scuffle on a radio program Friday the premier said he couldn't condemn his son for defending his mother as he did and "I hope he always will."

On Monday Mr. Crosbie said in the house the premier's statements were an incitement for the use of violence in the legislature and asked the Speaker to rule them as a breach of privilege.

After the Speaker ruled against this, Mr. Crosbie said the decision was a "sham and a bluff."

The government majority then passed a motion that Mr. Crosbie be expelled for three days. Mr. Marshall and Mr. Earle were expelled on motions by the premier after both declared the Speaker was not acting impartially.

PROPOSE AMENDMENTS

In Winnipeg the prospect of a renewal of last year's drawn-out debate on Manitoba's public auto insurance plan was raised with introduction of amendments to the act, including the setting up of an appeal board.

Opposition Leader Sidney Spivak said in an interview the Conservatives will take advantage of debate on the bill to seek information on assistance to agents displaced by the plan and a comparison of public insurance rates with private rates.

The plan goes into effect Nov. 1.

At Toronto, John Yaremko, provincial secretary and minister of citizenship, told the house it was "a great tragedy" that Mr. Trudeau had made certain comments that "will equate Canadian democracy" with the system of government in Russia and its satellite countries.

"I strongly condemn Mr. Trudeau's action," he said.

His statements were finally ruled out of order by Speaker Fred Cass after opposition members jumped to their feet in protest.

Mr. Yaremko said he spoke as a private citizen and not as an Ontario cabinet minister.

Crash No. 138

BONN (Reuter) — A West German air force Starfighter crashed into the sea off northeast Holland but the pilot used his ejector seat and was later picked up unhurt, a defence ministry spokesman said. It was the 138th Star fighter to crash since the American-designed plane joined the West German armed forces more than 10 years ago.

SOFT MUSIC HELPS MINERS

CWM, Wales (UPI) — Officials at the Marine Colliery, coal mine outside CWM, said production was definitely up since the mine's radio station began piping in soft music and other entertainment to the 586 miners as they work in the pit.

"The music really helps put the men in a happy frame of mind," pit manager Harold Edwards said.

Sales Tax Up

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP — New Yorkers have begun paying another penny on the dollar on a wide range of purchases as the state sales tax went up to four from three per cent. Many localities impose their own sales taxes of up to three per cent. These levels will remain the same, but the increased state tax means that many consumers will be paying as much as seven per cent on purchases.

'Limited Strike' Begins

VANCOUVER (CP)— About 130 electrical workers did not report for work today at British Columbia Hydro's Vancouver - area head quarters in surburban Burnaby in what an official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers had said would be a limited strike.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said he understood the men, who were to have reported for work at 8 a.m., were attending a meeting. They are expected to report to their jobs, Thursday morning.

Line crews covering the Greater Vancouver area, Burnaby and Richmond operate from the Burnaby headquarters.

Doug Cronk, secretary of the union's Vancouver local, said Tuesday electrical workers would strike to back contract demands, but their action would not affect the entire Hydro system.

The 2,200 electrical workers employed by the Crown corporation can legally strike at any time. Contract talks, in progress since December when the union was asking a 29½-per-cent pay increase over two years, broke off Friday night.

Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum has said a strike by all 2,200 workers would probably shut down the Hydro system in a matter of hours.

He said in the event of rotating strikes, Hydro would try to man the affected areas with supervisory personnel where this could be done safely. A spokesman said there was no need to call on supervisory personnel in today's work stoppage.

Negotiators have said the union has reduced its original demand for an increase of 29½ per cent. Basic pay for electrical workers now is $5.39 an hour.

The latest Hydro offer was seven per cent a year in a contract of any length. Dr. Shrum said he could not offer electrical workers any more than the 21¾ per cent over three years that Hydro office workers received last month.

Guerrilla Bases Constantly Shelled

Times News Services

AMMAN — King Hussein charged today that Palestinian Arab guerrilla leaders are plotting to set up a breakaway Palestinian state in Jordan and vowed to launch a "final crackdown" against them.

The guerrillas immediately reported that all their bases were surrounded by two army divisions and were being "constantly shelled." Government forces seem to have been given a free hand for an all-out assault.

Hussein, in his most unrestrained attack on guerrilla leaders in eight months, accused them of "plotting to grab power at any cost" and of "selling out to the enemy."

He ordered Premier Wasfi Tell to take "bold, decisive and tough action against the handful of professional criminals and conspirators who use the commando movement to disguise their treasonable plots."

"I want no hesitation, tolerance or compromise in handling them," said the king in a letter to Tell, broadcast by Amman radio.

Tell, whom the guerrillas consider their most implacable foe, promised a "quick and sweeping purge" of the guerrilla movement.

Hussein's action apparently heralded stronger armed action against 3,000 guerrillas stationed in hilly terrain near the town of Jerash, 25 miles north of Amman. They represent the only sizable guerrilla presence left in Jordan after last September's civil war and April's guerrilla pullout from Amman.

Meanwhile the Jordanian troubles spilled over into Egypt where President Anwar Sadat postponed accepting the credentials of the new Jordanian ambassador because of the fighting between the Jordanian army and guerrillas.

FINANCIAL DOOM SEEN FOR CITIES

Financial disaster is overtaking B.C. cities, predicts a report commissioned by the Union of B.C. Municipalities to set the stage for its annual harangue with the government over fiscal policies. See background story by Clement Chapple on Page 3.

Campbell Flays Report On Municipal Costs

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today lashed back at criticism of his handling of provincial funds to municipalities.

Mr. Campbell departed from introductory remarks to a municipal officers conference to shout: "I will not stand still when irresponsible statements are made about the financial state of the municipalities of this province."

His voice rising in anger, Mr. Campbell said:

"It does little service to this province to suggest as the Union of B.C. Municipalities does, that the municipalities of this province are financially sick."

The municipalities, in a 103-page report released Tuesday, said communities face "disastrous developments" unless the provincial government assumes total welfare costs and a greater share of education costs.

Mr. Campbell denounced the UBCM report as "irresponsible, juvenile and completely false."

In Vancouver, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer had called for Mr. Campbell's resignation because of a pledge the minister made in the legislature that if anyone could prove that B.C. treated its municipalities poorly, he would resign.

Mr. Campbell replied today by repeating that pledge.

"The finance formula in the province is not sacred, but it's the best in the nation. If that is not a fact, I will resign."

Later in his speech, he added: "Fear not that I will resign, for the financial affairs of the province are in good hands."

War Crime Charges Face U.S. General

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Army announced today that charges have been preferred against Brig.-Gen. John W. Donaldson, accusing him of murder and assault involving eight Vietnamese civilians.

Donaldson, until recently a top planner for the joint chiefs of staff, is the highest ranking officer to be accused of killing civilians in the Vietnam war.

The 47-year-old West Point graduate also is the first general to be charged with an alleged war crime since the Philippine insurrection 70 years ago.

A U.S. Army spokesman said Donaldson is accused of killing six civilians and assaulting two.

The army also announced murder charges have been preferred against Lt.-Col. William J. McCloskey, who served under Donaldson in Vietnam. No details in McCloskey's case were disclosed. An army spokesman said the two cases involved separate incidents.

The army said charges against McCloskey, 39, involve "two alleged victims." It said the incident occurred in March, 1969.

McCloskey served at the time as the 11th Brigade's operations officer. As a much-decorated veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, he was wounded nine times.

McCloskey now is assigned to the combat developments command, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The incidents on which the charges against Donaldson are based took place, the army said, between November, 1968, and January, 1969, in Quang Ngai province, where the My Lai Massacre occurred the previous March.

Donaldson, then a colonel, commanded the 11th Infantry Brigade, which included Lieut. William Calley's platoon at the time of the My Lai massacre. However, Donaldson did not take over the brigade until October, 1968, more than six months after My Lai. Calley has been sentenced to a life term for murdering civilians at My Lai.

No details of the Donaldson case were provided, but sources said an investigation was started after statements were made by a helicopter pilot attached to the 11th Brigade during the period.

Lt.-Gen. Claire Hutchin, commanding general of the 1st Army with headquarters at Fort Meade, has not yet announced what course he will follow. Army officials said Hutchin could dismiss the charges or order a grand jury-type proceeding to carry the case further.

Army records show the last general accused of war crimes was Brig.-Gen. Jacob H. Smith, a brigade commander in the Philippines in 1901.

18 Prisoners Charged In Kingston Rioting

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Eighteen prisoners have been charged as a result of the four-day rebellion at Kingston penitentiary last April that left two convicts dead and the institution wrecked. Ten other prisoners were injured.

Thirteen have been charged with non-capital murder in the two deaths, city police announced Tuesday night. One of the 13 and five others are charged with kidnapping six guards at the start of the April 14 uprising.

Inspector Wilfrid Kealey said in an interview that the charges were laid Monday. No reason was given for the delayed announcement.

Those charged will appear in provincial court here Friday.

Appearing Thursday in court at Napanee, Ont., will be 11 guards from Millhaven penitentiary where about 300 of the Kingston prisoners were moved after their rampage caused damage to the old building estimated at between $300,000 and $1 million.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

The guards face charges of assaulting prisoners involved in the unrest.

When the prisoners ended their protest and released the guards, officials found the body of Brian Ensor, 26, of Hamilton, in the rubble.

Bertrand H. Robert of Chatham, Ont., died later of massive head injuries suffered during the final hours of the disturbance.

Insp. Kealey said Tuesday that more than 500 prisoners involved in the riot were interviewed.

In a Toronto interview Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said the investigations resulting in Monday's charges had been conducted mainly by Kingston police with some assistance from provincial police.

Last Thursday, Mr. Lawrence said that the 22 counts of assault laid against the Millhaven guards involved

GUARD PUNCHED

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police here are investigating a disturbance Monday night at nearby Collins Bay penitentiary by prisoners involved in the April Kingston riot.

A police spokesman said five prisoners held in isolation cells since their transfer from Kingston penitentiary after the 92-hour riot allegedly assaulted two guards.

A spokesman for Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer in Ottawa said today the five wrecked fixtures in their cells and one guard was punched in the face when he attempted to quiet them.

ALL PACKED, READY AS FIRE NEARS TOWN

MOOSONEE, Ont. (CP) — Residents of this James Bay community of 1,600 were "packed and ready" this afternoon to evacuate the town as a wind-whipped forest fire four miles south of here burned out of control in a direct line towards the town.

Earlier, some persons from the section of town closest to the fire had been taken over to Moose Factory Island, 2½ miles away.

A Land of Lichee and Lotus

Articles describing the China visit of former Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning will be published as they are received. This is his second account.

By CHESTER RONNING
Special to The Times

DELTA-TUNG KUAN HSIEN, China — My daughter Sylvia Cassady of Camrose, Alberta, and I arrived in Tung Kuan Hsien last night from Canton to see its casava processing factory and one of the ingenious ways of harnessing tide water for hydro electric plants for power and light for one of the many villages of the Tao Chiao commune.

Yesterday afternoon, accompanied by three friends from CTV, we left Canton by car to pass through one of the most productive rice-producing areas of Asia.

In the city and the outskirts we saw hundreds of Phoenix trees in full dress of flaming red-orange blossoms.

People who say Canton is just another dull, drab city do not see the wooded hills, the attractive public parks and many glazed-tile buildings with great banyan trees, rock gardens and flowers of every color.

When one gets out into the open countryside it becomes abundantly evident that it is from these rice paddies, extending to the horizon or to the distant wooded ranges of hills and low mountains, that millions of people in Canton and Hong Kong are supplied with rice, vegetables and fruit.

★ ★ ★

Driving along the highway in a Russian version of the Cadillac we could see fields of dark green peppers, cucumbers climbing on tripods of bamboo, egg plants and cabbages. The road is lined with shade trees to shield wayfarers from the blazing sun. There are also rows of "horse tail" pines, of bananas producing delicious sweet fruit in great abundance. Orchard after orchard of lichee trees are now heavily laden with this year's first ripe crop of exotic lichees. Most impressive of all is the luxuriant, heavy crops of rice covering thousands upon thousands of acres of rich, delta soil.
